SUMMARY.

The sinking of the Lusitania by a German submarine off the Irish coast caused a profound impression in London and New York.

The Cunarder was torpedoed 15 miles off the shore, and sunk in 15 minutes.

The Admiralty announces that only 658 were saved, though unofficial reports state that 750 were saved.

It is unofficially estimated in Dublin that 1000 lives were lost.

The London press bureau states that there were 2160 souls aboard. Nearly all those in the first class perished.

The Lusitania was struck by a torpedo forward, a loud explosion following.

A few seconds later another torpedo struck the vessel. The crew immediately got the passengers into the boats.

Public opinion in the United States is rapidly reaching a pitch of exasperation.

The New York journals demand that the Government shall take immediate steps to safeguard citizens travelling abroad.

A Special series of Motion Pictures, 2000ft in length, being a complete day and night tour over the Great San Francisco Exhibition, has just come to hand. It reveals all the wonders of the World's Greatest Fair, by night and day, and, what is of supreme interest to Australians, the magnificent Australian and New Zealand exhibits, the dedication ceremony performed by Mr. Alfred Deakin, and all the splendour of the Commonwealth pavilions. Photographed at close range, the cars, travelling at seventy miles an hour, skid, collide, and crash, often plunging the intrepid drivers to death, along the track.

INDIGESTION & LIVER DISORDER

Throughout Australia, indeed throughout most of the British Empire, it would be difficult to find a village, or even a street of over twenty houses, in which there do not reside persons who frankly state that they owe their present good health to the old and world-famous remedy, Mother Seigel's Syrup. The extent to which this well-known remedy is used as a regular family medicine for all those troublesome ailments, which arise from stomach or liver disorders, would be surprising were it not for the fact that this root and herb extract has established itself as a popular favourite, by reason of the remarkable cures it has effected all over the world. Here are two cases in point:—

Mr. Henry Jenkins, of "Taree," Camden Haven, New South Wales, writing on Feb. 24th, 1914, says:—"For some years I suffered from stomach troubles, which often caused the most excruciating distress and agony. I ate so little owing to the pain and discomfort which always supervened that I was in a half-starved condition and often felt ravenously hungry. Then I perhaps would have something cooked I had a fancy for, but just as soon as it was dished up and set on the table the mere smell would take my appetite away, and I would be unable to swallow a morsel. I got very weak, white and washy, and could hardly keep on my feet. In fact I felt very ill, looked ill and was thoroughly run down. But about eighteen months back a friend appeared to be so positive that Mother Seigel's Syrup would do me good that I was induced to try it. I am pleased to say that after taking about half a bottle I began to improve rapidly. I ate better, the food kept down, and there was a welcome absence of the usual pains. I continued to use Mother Seigel's Syrup after every meal until I had taken nine bottles, when I was quite cured and could eat whatever I had a mind to, and digest it with ease and comfort. An occasional dose of Mother Seigel's Syrup now keeps me in such good order that I sometimes forget I own such a thing as a stomach."

Banished by MOTHER
SEIGEL'S SYRUP

Mrs. M. Fox, 107, Rochford St., Newtown, Sydney, N.S.W., wrote on Feb. 24th, 1914.—"Your most excellent remedy, Mother Seigel's Syrup, has on many occasions proved a veritable 'friend in need' to me when suffering from various ailments. I was induced to use it in the first instance through noting the beneficial effect it had on my husband, who took it in 1911 for liver complaint and chronic constipation. It afforded him immediate relief and restored him to perfect health. After that I had no hesitation in resorting to it myself when suffering from biliousness, a malady I had always been very subject to from my youth up. A few doses sufficed to cut short the attack, and about four bottles permanently cured me of the bilious habit. I have also used Mother Seigel's Syrup with most satisfactory results for splitting headaches and digestive derangements, and found it to be an ideal 'Woman's Medicine,' and infinitely superior to all others I have tried. I always keep a supply on hand and would not be without Mother Siegel's Syrup if it cost a guinea a bottle."

Such letters as these are received, almost daily, by the Proprietors of Mother Seigel's Syrup, not only from Australia, but from all over the world, and they afford conclusive proof that Mother Seigel's Syrup is worth a trial for all who suffer from stomach and liver troubles. The fact that Mother Seigel's Syrup, for forty years, has cured men and women of these ailments, even after all ordinary medicine has failed, should convince you that this herbal remedy possesses curative properties not found in other medicine. Indeed, the extracts of roots, barks and leaves of which Mother Seigel's is made possess, in combination, the power of toning up and strengthening the organs of digestion as nothing else does. Test it yourself! Take the Syrup daily, after meals.

CONSERVATORIUM.

MR. VERBRUGGHEN ACCEPTS.

A cable message has been received from Mr. Henri Verbrugghen, accepting the appointment of director of the New South Wales Conservatorium of Music. The cablegram states that Mr. Verbrugghen is keenly enthusiastic, and is prepared to leave by the Blue Funnel liner, which sails from Liverpool on July 5. Mr. Verbrugghen has made one or two minor stipulations, which it is expected will be complied with.

Mr. Henri Verbrugghen possesses primarily many qualifications not only as a violin virtuoso but as a quartet leader, conductor and as chief professor at the Athenaeum Music School, Glasgow. In that city he succeeded our one-time visitor, Dr. Coward, as conductor of the Glasgow Choral Union (1911), where also, and in Edinburgh, his party has performed the 16 quartets of Beethoven. At the Athenaeum he directed a strong orchestra of 40 players and an operatic class.

The new director of the New South Wales Conservatorium was born at Brussels in 1873, the only child of a Belgian merchant. His mother was very musical, and was of note in connection with Beethoven's chamber-music, so that her house was the resort of many well-known artists. The boy's parents wished him to practice medicine, but his musical gifts were so remarkable that they accepted the advice of Wienawski and Gevaert (director Brussels Conservatoire), and entered him at that school, where he studied under Hubay and Ysaye. In 1893 he joined the Scottish Orchestra, founded by George Henschel, and later he led the Jules Riviere Orchestra at Llandudno. His next experience was as a member of the Lamoureux Orchestra in Paris, and he then returned to England for three years as deputy-conductor at Llandudno. During four years he directed the music at Colwyn Bay, and in 1902 he was appointed leader and deputy-conductor of the Scottish Orchestra under Sir Frederick Cowen. In the summer of that year, and for three succeeding years, he was leader of the Queen's Hall Orchestra, London, for the promenade seasons. He then settled in Glasgow, as already noted.

During recent years he has conducted symphony concerts at Brussels, Berlin, Munich, and St. Petersburg. Just a year ago Mr. Verbrugghen was chosen to conduct the great Beethoven Festival at Queen's Hall, with the Leeds Choir and the London Symphony Orchestra, when the five concerts included all the nine symphonies, five piano concertos, the violin concerto, and choral works. This engagement was one of the most important any artist could fill. Again this year Verbrugghen was secured to conduct the Bach, Beethoven, Brahms Festival, opening in London about April 22, with a similar orchestral and choral combination. As after that he is announced to share with Hamilton Hartz the direction of the Halle Orchestral Concerts at Manchester, the delay in his arrival here is easily understood. The newcomer is, we believe, a British subject, and his long residence in England has enabled him to speak excellent English with fluency.

"THE PARISH PRIEST."

After an interval of two years, Allen Doone revived "The Parish Priest" at the Palace Theatre on Saturday night, and with it all the charm of his really wonderful impersonation of gentle, peace-bringing, and saintly old age. Necessarily rare in any community, such men as the Rev. John Whalen may occasionally be found amongst the ministers of every Christian religion, but the particular type vivified by Mr. Doone is that of an Irish Roman Catholic priest. The scene is not laid in Ireland, however, but in America, and shows the lawn of an ivy-covered villa on a hill, with a widespread bird's-eye view of the gardens, pastures, spires, and hamlets, that stretch out far away to the green hills on the horizon. Here the author—Daniel L. Hart—unfolds the quiet action of his sentimental comedy, the style of which is scholarly, with some wit, wisdom, and philosophy, in a composition chiefly remarkable for its homely Irish humour.

Playgoers who saw this piece before will find that it well bears seeing again; and others should not miss it. Indeed, Allen Doone's portrait of the gentle priest, whose cheerful spirit somehow suggests that a wounded and weary heart beats beneath his well-worn clerical coat, is one of those happily perfect examples of histrionic art which might become world-celebrated. It shows that this romantic Irish comedian has a second string to his bow, that of "character," in which he hits a higher mark, though possibly a less popular one. In addition to his scenes of gentle pathos, Father Whalen has various humorous encounters with Michael Sullivan, the man who does odd jobs about the place. This rough specimen of warm-hearted humanity could not have been better played than by Mr. Tom Buckley, whose manner served as a foil to the refined Father Whalen.

The cast was much as before—Miss Edna Keeley again well expressing the girlish sincerity and sweetness of Helen; and Miss Ethel Bashford conveying a good idea of the haughty and hot-tempered Agnes. Mr. Onslow Edgeworth's earnestness was the strong point in his new impersonation as the remorseful young medico; and others were Ethel Grist as Katherine Corrigan, "in search of a father;" Clive Farnham as Dougherty, Vincent White as Dr. Cassidy (cleverly made-up), and Frank Cullenam as Jim.

"Lilting Larry O'Shea" will be produced for the first time in Australia next Saturday.

THE PINTEL RECITAL.

M. Jacques Pintel, the Russian pianist, who first visited this country with Mme. Calve, made a welcome re-appearance last week at St. James's Hall. The thoughtful charm of his pianoforte style had not been forgotten, and a large audience soon found itself under the classic spell of the Schumann Sonata in G Minor (Op. 22). The artist just sufficiently insisted upon the recurring song-like phrases of melody which mark the first Allegro con fuoco; he retarded the time with perfect taste in the Andantino; and showed the most brilliant executive facility in the final Rondo. The scherzo of this sonata is neither so light nor so piquant as might naturally be expected, and it may be fairly said that the latter half of this fine work is less absorbing than the first.

After several recalls of enthusiasm, M. Pintel played the familiar "Ballade in G Minor" of Chopin, in the opening of which he adopted an authoritative deliberation, whilst later he attained a powerful and effective climax. One of the entrancing moments of the evening was afforded by the Liebestod, which closes "Tristan and Isolde." Another of M. Pintel's finest efforts was the Chopin group of five pieces, all admirably played. Indeed, in the final "Valse in E Minor" he showed an extreme finish, which resulted in repeated recalls, and the presentation of a wreath bearing the French and Russian colours.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

LATE MR. R. E. PAYNTER.

Probate has been granted of the will of the late Mr. Robert Emilius Paynter, chemist, of Strathfield, who died on March 25 last. Testator appointed his wife, Susanna Paynter, sole executrix, and bequeathed to her the whole of his estate, the net value of which was estimated at £8096 3s 11d, of which £6500 represented moneys in the bank.

LATE MR. H. NELSON.

Probate has been granted of the will of the late Mr. Henry Nelson, of Fordon, Darlinghurst-road, Sydney, who died in a private hospital at Darlinghurst, on April 6. The testator bequeathed to his three children, Miriam Basser, wife of Adolph Basser, Evelyn Ina Nelson, and Gustave Joel Nelson, the whole of his estate, the net value of which was sworn at £15,943 12s, of which £8800 represented real estate.

STATE CHILDREN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I crave space in your valuable columns to ventilate a little matter which I think is very important. Two widows in our midst were left, one with five, and the other with three children, and they enjoyed the State's pittance until November last, when the amounts suddenly were cut off with no reason assigned. Communications to the department, from various gentlemen, have met with absolutely no reply. The most peculiar part is that the inspector has paid two visits to the district since to see the children who are receiving nothing from the State. The inspector is driven here under big expense to the country. The circumstances in each case are extremely painful, one widow is in receipt of 10s per week to maintain herself and three children, whilst the other person, who is in very delicate health, maintains five little girls on a bit of washing or other housework, which these times is very scarce. Without making any disparaging remarks towards all the funds that are being contributed to at present, I must say it is the duty of the Government to see that our own widows and children are not allowed to starve. The present high rate of living makes it a very hard battle for families to live who are not deprived of their breadwinners, to say nothing of the ones who are.

I am, etc.,
J. J. NEVE.

RIFLE SHOOTING.

BELGIAN FUND CARNIVAL.

On King's Birthday, June 3, Randwick rifle range will be the scene of a big carnival of rifle shooting, tent-pegging, and general military exercises in aid of the Belgian Relief Fund.

In addition to a large number of riflemen engaged in the annual musketry course, 17 clubs secured targets on Saturday for practice or club shoots. The weather conditions varied during the afternoon. The wind troubled marksmen a good deal in the early stages, but became a much smaller factor as evening approached. Shooting at the 500 and 600 yards ranges, S. Battishall, of Sydney Club, scored a double possible, 35, 35—70. H. E. Caricher, a club-mate, missed the possible by one at 500 yards, but put all his seven shots into the bull at 600 yards. Private Harrison, of the South African Soldiers' Association, found the bull with all of his 10 consecutive shots at 600 yards.

Although first-class shooting, these scores may be said to have been eclipsed by P. M'Arthur, of Randwick Culb, and J. Pittaway, of the Cockatoo Naval Dockyard Club. Both these marksmen went down with their club mates at the 800 yards range, 14 shots in two stages. The former scored 34, 34—68, out of the possible 70, missing with one shot in each stage, a trifle high at "12 o'clock." Pittaway missed twice, once at "9 o'clock," and once at "6 o'clock," in his first stage, but scored a possible in the second stage.

Members of the Police Club went out to the 900 yards mound, where the March quarter shooting was completed. The winner of the quarterly score was A. Hill, with an aggregate of 133. He had the assistance of a handicap of 5. Rockdale Club members also went down at this range, and were again led by that consistent shot W. J. Faux, with a score of 31, 34—65, out of the possible 70 in 14 shots in two stages.

The 700 yards range was occupied by three clubs, Eastern Suburbs, Lands Department, and Clyde Engineering Works. The former's members fired 10 shots in the second June quarter shoot, the scores also counting for the Mick Simmons Cup. L. W. Hunt headed the card with a score of 46 out of the possible 50. The Lands Department club members fired 14 shots, the best score being made by T. Juck, with 61 out of the possible 70. Clyde Engineering Works club members concluded their June quarterly shooting with 14 shots in two stages. W. M. Abell again headed the card with 33, 33—66, out of 70, and carried off his club championship for the year.

At 600 yards, Randwick Literary Institute Club put a big muster of members through, with 14 shots in two stages. W. H. Cutler, with 33, 32—65, and A. H. Byatt, with 32, 33—65, headed the scoring card. The Legion of Frontiersmen had a handicap shoot. Major Heap, from scratch, scored 32, 29—61, which was the best, off the rifle. Yorkshire Society club members had the second shoot of the June quarter, the card being headed by A. H. Pitcher, with 31, 32—63, and E. Garnett, with 30, 33—63, out of the possible 70, with 14 shots in two stages.

North Sydney and Enfield club members used the 500 yards range. G. H. Paine scored a possible in his first stage of the 14 shots, but missed the bull three times in the second stage. He finished up with a score of 35, 32—67. W. G. West, with 31, 31—62, did best for Enfield in a club shoot under the same conditions, 14 shots in two stages.

The shorter ranges were occupied by a section of the Cockatoo Naval Dockyard Club, in a handicap club prize shoot, 7 shots, at 400 yards. C. Ray won, getting, with the assistance of a handicap of 5, a possible 25. At 200 and 300 yards, mebers of the Metropolitan Railways Club held club shoots. G. Giles put all his 10 consecutive shots at 200 yards into the bull, scoring a possible 50, while 25, by W. Sellars, and A. Case, was also a possible with 5 shots at 300 yards. On the Botany range, T. W. Baldwin, with 30, 30—60, led the South Sydney Club's second shoot of the June quarter, 14 shots in two stages at 300 yards.

LETTERS FOR THE ISLANDS.

The Postal authorities intimate that in future the penny rate of postage will be charged on letters posted in the Commonwealth to Samoa, New Guinea (except Dutch New Guinea), Bismarck Archipelago (comprising New Britain, New Ireland, New Hanover, Admiralty Islands, etc.), Nauru, Bougainville, and Buka (Solomon Islands).

AMUSEMENTS.

"EAST LYNNE."

A full house at the Adelphi Theatre on Saturday night, on the occasion of the opening performance of "East Lynne," was ample justification for the management conceding another run to this drama. It is a story of which people never seem to tire, and the audience on Saturday accorded the principals warm applause. "East Lynne" will be staged for five more nights and at the matinee on Wednesday. The leading parts were so ably portrayed that the play never became too heavy. Olive Winton proved quite equal to the role of Lady Isabel. Robert Inman was an admirable Archibald Carlyle. Gwen Dorise, the second wife of [illegible], was fascinating in all her work, and her brother, Ronald Conway, gave a good interpretation of a limited part. Lord Mount Severn (J. H. Nunn), Justice Hare (Victor Leslie), and Cornelia Carlyle (Connie Martin) were the other leading actors. Victor Fitzherbert was Sir Francis Levison.

HARRY THOMAS'S HOSPITAL RECITAL.

Mr. Harry Thomas secured a crowded attendance for his recital in aid of the South Sydney Hospital at St. James's Hall on Saturday night. The elocutionist contributed an important group of character pieces, and besides his successes as the old grandfather dwelling on the comfort of Little Nell, and Uriah Heep snuffling upon the advantages of being 'umble, he made a decided hit in his portrait of cheerful age, entitled "No Old." As an actor his best effort was in the opening scene as Pygmalian, assisted by Rita Ranck as Galatea, and Nellie Moss as Cynisca. Mrs. Jack Maiden revealed herself as a monologuist of decided charm and skill in "The Soliloquy of an Old Piano," a desperately sentimental effusion, which she carried through to success. Mr. Sid Macdonald was called upon to repeat Russel's "The Stars that Light My Garden." Further encores were in demand, however, and the popular tenor then sang with spirit Vern Barnett's "War, 1914," a patriotic song which deserves to be better known, as the composer (who was at the piano) has taken pains to provide an effective accompaniment. Mr. C. Murray Gibbes also captured the audience with Lohr's "Where My Caravan Has Rested," and responded with Clutsam's "Myrrha." Miss Belle M'Rae, Mr. Will Stephen, and the Gibson Orchestra also assisted.

THE FRANK HUTCHENS RECITALS.

The first of these recitals will take place to-morrow evening when an interesting programme will be given. Special attention attaches to the first performance of two works by Sydney composers, namely, a sonata for violin and piano by Mr. Rex de Cairos Rego, which will be played by Mr. Cyril Monk and Mr. Frank Hutchens, and one for piano alone by Mr. Roy Agnew. The plan is now open at Paling's.

POLISH RELIEF FUND.

A grand opera recital will be given at the Repertory Theatre on Tuesday next in aid of the Polish Relief Fund. The students of Mr. Illingworth will give the recital. The plan is at Nicholson's.

FREE KINDERGARTEN UNION OF N.S.W.

On Wednesday evening next, at 8 o'clock, a grand opera recital will be given by the students of Mr. Nelson Illingworth at the Repertory Theatre in aid of the Free Kindergarten Union of N.S.W. The plan is at Nicholson's.

MR. NELSON ILLINGWORTH'S PUPILS.

On behalf of the Belgian Fund, the pupils of Mr. Nelson Illingworth on Saturday evening presented a grand opera recital at the Repertory Theatre, in Grosvenor-street. Among the pupils who appeared were the Misses Nellie Hildebrand, Peggy Thorne, Kathleen Byrne, May Forster, Dulcie Williams, Dulcie Huxtable, Nellie Cook, Dorothy Ewbank, Edith Watts, Elsie Condon, Peggy Chamberlain, and Barbara Niven. Mr. Frank Hutchens was applauded for his pianoforte rendering of Liszt's "Liebestraum." Mr. Nelson Illingworth, supported by the students, sang two war songs by Alfred Hill, the latter, "Song of the Belgians," of which the manuscript was sold by auction by Mr. Neville Mayman, evoking hearty applause. Mr. Cyril Monk contributed two violin solos.

WESTERN SUBURBS PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

The programme rendered at the Town Hall on Saturday evening afforded the large audience present another opportunity of enjoying the excellent work done by the Western Suburbs Philharmonic Society under their capable leader, Mr. W. Reginald Goond. As usual, the chorus work elicited the warmest admiration. Mr. Percy French was deservedly recalled for his singing of "The Call" by Miss Amy Constance Bellamy, in which he was accompanied by the composer. Some of the most pleasurable moments of the evening were afforded by Mr. Mowat Carter's violin solos, in which a special meed of praise is called for by artistic accompanying of Mrs. Mowat Carter. Mr. W. Reginald Goond, in Handel's "Honour and Arms," from "Samson," contributed a fine performance. Miss Dorrie Ward evoked hearty applause, her rendering of Noel Johnson's "Farewell to Summer" receiving a well-merited encore. Mr. Carl Gotsch, who, in this number provided a 'cello obbligato, later contributed the Gluck "Andante," in which his firm yet delicate technique and warmth of colour showed to advantage. Mr. Harry Thomas appeared in several musical monologues, rendered with marked dramatic power. Harp solos by Signor A. Torzillo were also enjoyed by the audience. The net proceeds of the concert were devoted to the Belgian Relief Fund.

NATIONAL CONCERTS.

A series of monthly national concerts, under the Faulkner Smith direction, is to be instituted in Sydney at the Town Hall during the winter months. The programmes will be compiled from the traditional songs of the various nations, opening on Saturday evening, June 5, with a Scottish musical festival, for which Madame Mary Conly, the celebrated soprano, has been specially engaged. Popular prices are announced.

CHAPTER VII.

THE CHASE.

Bob had not had his hand on the wheel a minute before he knew that the car was a racer, and it was with a little thrill of intense satisfaction he saw that, although the police were getting everything possible out of their engine, while he was running well under full speed, he was able to hold them comfortably.

He had a lead of some three hundred yards, and, as they kept shouting to him to stop and sounding their loud horn incessantly, he quickened, and the gap between the two cars soon widened.

He had had plenty of experience both of road and track racing; the excitement delighted him; the rush of cool evening air acted like a tonic upon his jaded nerves. He had no doubt of the issue of the race, and he was thoroughly enjoying himself. Even if the police caught him it would mean nothing more serious than the possible loss of his wager, while the fact that they were the police added to the zest of the adventure.

Two things bothered him a little. First, the fact that he did not know where he was. Put as he dashed through Fontenay he recognised the place to his intense satisfaction, and got his bearings. He had been at school at Sceaux, only a mile or two distant, and the whole district was as well known to him as that round his home at Achester.

[illegible] a moment he had fixed on his route. Bourg lay ahead of him, and just to the south of that place there were a number of little cross roads with sharp, sudden turns which only a driver of exceptional skill would dare to take at anything like racing speed. Every one of them would be worth more than a hundred yards in such a race as he was running.

The second bother was more serious—Enid. If the chase hadn't been so hot, he would have pulled up and let her get out if she wished, but to stop at present meant failure.

The rushing air had much the same effect upon her as upon him. It revived her quickly, and before they reached Fontenay she had recovered sufficiently to sit up. A moment later a louder shout than usual from the police car startled her, and with a gasp of astonishment she looked back and then turned to Bob, who was too intent upon his work to pay any attention.

"Who are those men following us?" she asked excitedly.

They were rushing through Fontenay at the moment, and he had just recognised the church, and made no reply.

"Do you hear me? Who are they?" she cried, plucking at his arm.

"Don't do that," he exclaimed with an impatient gesture. "You might upset us."

"Then answer me," she retorted. Now that she was out of her prison her courage returned, and she was determined not to be taken to another. But she was afraid of Bob, for he had ill-treated her, and even struck her in that awful house. She had not quite understood all that had occurred in the last hour or two at the villa, and the words of that terrible old woman were still in her mind—that his real intention was to get her away from Gaudin for his own purposes. She would rather die than face such a fate.

"If you don't answer me I'll throw myself out of the car," she said after a pause, speaking with intense vehemence.

"You'll only kill yourself," he grunted.

"I'd rather die than be made a prisoner again by you."

Knowing that it was one thing to talk about jumping out of a car going at a racing clip and quite another to do it, he did not answer.

His silence heightened her sense of peril, and confirmed her belief that he had taken advantage of her unconsciousness to carry her off. She got up, therefore, and stood swaying a moment as she made ready to jump.

Taking his left hand from the wheel he grabbed hold of her dress, and pulled her back into the seat. "Don't be so mad," he growled. "They are police. I'm making a bolt of it for reasons of my own; and as soon as I've shaken them off I'll pull up and let you get out. But you can't jump."

"I will unless you stop at once. You've deceived me once, and you're doing it now. You're taking me away from those who will save me."

This roused his temper—not unjustifiably, considering all he had done for her. "Even if you're only a girl you might have sense to understand things," he said roughly. "I'm not bragging, but I've just had the fight of my life to make that brute Gaudin and the others set you free. Do you think I'm idiot enough to take a risk like that merely to fool you?"

This quieted Enid for a time, and she tried to piece together the tangle of her thoughts and distressing doubts. As they ran through Bourg she glanced back, and her heart sank as she saw how fast they were drawing away from the pursuing car. "For God's sake, let me go," she cried piteously, and burst into tears.

There was nothing in the world which touched his heart so keenly as a woman's tears, and he could have cursed himself for a soft fool in heeding them now. But Enid had made a very deep impression on him, and his instinct was to tell her the whole truth, and let everything else go hang. "You're about as unreasonable as a girl could be," he grumbled; "but if you'll only wait a few minutes you shall get out."

She was surprised at the effect of her tears, but she did not check them. The alteration in his tone was so great as to allay much of her previous fear of him. She half believed in his sincerity, and that he would do what he said. But she affected to be far more distressed than she really was, and sobbed vehemently.

"You don't know all that it means to me to let those beggars catch me," he said, trying to temporise and find a way of avoiding a full explanation.

"What will it mean to you?" she asked between her sobs.

"In the state you're in, you wouldn't understand; and, what's more, I can't tell you," he replied bluntly in his baffling indecision.

They had reached the first of the sharp turns, and as the car whipped round she cried out, fearing an upset, and began to sob again more vehemently than ever.

"You—you're only going to take me to some awful place," she stammered.

This decided him. "I'm not going to let you believe I'm such a scoundrelly cur as all that," he said almost angrily, and began to slacken speed.

"What are you going to do now?"

"Stop for the police. What else. I hope that'll satisfy you that you're altogether wrong."

The car was slowing down to a crawling pace now, and the police horn was heard again.

"What will they do to you?" she asked.

"Never mind about me. They'll help you; and that's all you seem to think about," he answered curtly in his chagrin. "Perhaps you'll believe now that I meant what I said."

This last proof had completed her conviction of his good faith. "I—I do believe it," she said.

"Then why the dickens do you want me to stop just when everything was all right?"

"I—I don't want you to stop—now. I—I want you to go on."

"Do you mean that?"

The police were near enough now for their shouts to be heard, and she started nervously "Yes. I—I want you to save yourself. Go on. Go on," she urged excitedly.

He needed no second bidding. He laughed in sheer wonder at her sudden change, and lost no time in quickening the speed.

"Do you mean to stop in the car with me?"

"Of course I do. Do you think I wouldn't trust you after this? Hurry. Hurry."

"We can still do it, I think," he answered. "How far are they behind?"

"Two or three hundred yards," she told him, looking back at the police, who were coming up fast in the belief that the car had broken down, and began to shout again angrily as they saw it start off again, quickly reaching its former racing speed.

The rest of the sharp turnings gave Bob all the advantage on which he had calculated, and by the time he reached the open road once more, all fear of capture was at an end.

After a few miles he turned eastward and headed, choosing the by-lanes and making short cuts, for the Bois de Vincennes, by way of Creteuil and St. Maur, but skirting round those places, lest news of them should have been wired ahead to put the police on the alert to stop them. His plan was to look for a secluded spot in the Bois, leave the car hidden there, and finish the journey on foot.

"You seem to know every foot of the way," said Enid later.

"I have good reason to." A reply which recalled to her what she had been told—that he was the chauffeur of the red car.

"What are you? You have a trade, I suppose?"

"Oh, yes," replied Bob, shutting down a smile. "I served my time in the engineering sheds; chiefly motors and so on."

That was why he had been chosen by this red car gang as chauffeur, was Enid's conclusion; but she kept the thought to herself.

"Where do you work?" was her next question.

"I don't work for my living, if that's what you mean?"

That was her meaning, of course, and she was sorry to get such an answer. He had saved her from a terrible fate, and although he had bullied and browbeaten her at first and even ill-treated her, there must be some good in him. A man who was ready to face imprisonment to stop a woman's tears could not be beyond reclamation, however great a criminal he might be. And he seemed anything but a criminal.

She sat trying to think of some way in which she could save him from his present life, casting curious glances at him now and again as he concentrated all his thoughts upon the management of the car. It was impossible not to feel a considerable interest in him. He was really a fine fellow; not very good-looking; a strong face, full of character, with the frank, clear blue eyes of a soldier. Not a bit like the traditional portraits of men who led a life of crime. "What a pity!" she thought, with a sigh.

They had reached the Bois and were running at a slow space, as Bob looked about for a spot suitable for his purpose; and when he found it he stopped. "You'll have to get out here," he told her.

"Why?"

"Because I'm going to hide the car behind those bushes over there."

"But I want to go to the Hotel d'Avignon, in the Rue Plassy. Why abandon the car?" she asked in surprise.

"Two reasons. First, it isn't mine, and I don't care what becomes of it, and—"

"But your friends?" she interjected.

"Oh, they won't mind. Besides, I expect it's been stolen and someone might recognise it and ask questions which I mightn't be able to answer."

"But it's nearly dark, and I don't know where we are."

"We're close to Vincennes, and I can walk with you as far as that."

"You don't suppose I wish to be with you longer than possible?" she exclaimed with a shrug.

"You'll probably be able to get some sort of vehicle, a taxi or something, to take you to the city. You can walk on ahead and I'll follow to see that nothing happens. But get out, please. Someone may come at any moment."

She got out and after a rapid glance to make sure that no one was likely to see him, he drove across the intervening grass, turned deftly right and left among the trees, and stopped behind some bushes which concealed it effectually.

"You've hidden it completely," she said, as he returned.

"And the sooner we're out of here the better," he replied. "Will you walk on, please, and as fast as you can."

"I think it will be better if we walk together."

This surprised him considerably, and pleased him not a little. "You must have changed if you're not afraid to be alone with me in the dark at such a time!" he said as they started.

"I have something to say to you. That's all."

She appeared in no hurry to say it, however, for they were close to Vincennes before she could make up her mind how to begin.

"Which is the real you?" she asked unexpectedly, causing him to start in astonishment.

"I don't think I understand you."

"Oh, but you must. It's I who can't understand you."

"Let's leave it at that, then. At the present moment I can't tell you any more than that I am Jean Colonne, a motor mechanic. Here's Vincennes, however. There's an hotel a little to the right, where you'll be able to find something to take you into the city. You're quite safe now, and there's only one thing I'll ask—that you won't say anything about me, at all events for a fortnight. It won't matter much then, perhaps."

"But I haven't said what I want to say yet."

"I'm sorry, but I can't stop to hear it."

"Then I shall walk with you."

"It's a goodish way to the Rue Plassy."

"If I am tired, I can get a taxi," and she turned to the left toward the city. "I suppose you'll think this is very absurd of me," she exclaimed as he caught her up.

"I was thinking of something else at the moment. You may be a great help to me at the Barrier."

"How?"

"Well, it's just occurred to me that the douaniers may be on the lookout, and perhaps the police also, if any word has been sent on describing us. Do you mind if we talk English when we're there? Americans can be as eccentric as they please without any questions being asked, and neither of us is in very good trim."

"Do you mean that you can speak English?" she cried in astonishment.

"I told you so before."

"Yes, but your accent—"

"Oh, I can do a little better than that," he replied in English, without a trace of foreign accent.

This set her wondering, and her astonishment was vastly increased, as they reached the Barrier, and he raised his voice and began to speak with a gross exaggeration of an American twang.

"Did I ever tell you the yarn about that cloud-burst in Nevada, when old Seth Williams lost his teeth, blown clean into the air? My! But that was some circumstance!" He pushed his hat to the back of his head, stopped, and began to gesticulate freely. "Now, old Seth was here, and his buggy there, and the log hut over here, say," and he indicated different points on the ground as he continued the story.

He had seen what had escaped her. A couple of police were on the lookout, and had been scrutinising them both with great interest, apparently comparing notes, and had crossed the road, blocking the path. It was obvious to Bob that they were to be stopped, and this had set him telling the story with his grotesque exaggeration of American manner and speech.

If they were questioned, it was a thousand to one that the girl would take alarm and be confused; and then—good-bye to all chance of escape.

For an instant the thought had flashed into his mind to make a dash for it, but he could not leave his companion in the lurch. The only hope was to try and carry the position with a bluff.

"START IN LIFE."

OCCUPATIONS OF YOUTH.

"For some time," said the Minister for Education on Saturday, "the Education Department has been gathering statistics as to the occupations boys take up upon leaving school. This year details have been obtained from 9705 boys who left the primary schools during 1914.

"It is significant of the growing feeling in favour of education beyond the primary standard that 2467 of these boys left the primary school to proceed further with their education and passed on to high schools, district schools, day continuation schools, the Technical College, the Teachers' College, the Hawkesbury College, the Military College, and so on. This leaves 7238 boys who left the primary school for the purpose of entering upon some occupation. Of these boys 1940 took up pastoral and agricultural occupations, 1836 entered into commercial work, 1185 into trades, 1559 became labourers, messengers, or similar unskilled occupations, 229 became miners, and 332 entered the Post Office and railway services, while 112 entered upon a professional career for which the University or technical training was apparently unnecessary."

FRUIT COMMISSION.

A Royal Commission on Fruit and Vegetables was recently appointed by the Victorian Government.

The commission held a sitting last week, and it was pointed out by the members that complaints were made in Victoria about the delays on the railway. The Victorian fruit, it was stated, was frequently held up at Albury. One subject for inquiries in Sydney was to see if something could not be done to remedy an injustice which in some instances had been almost disastrous to the Victorian producer.

The commission will sit to-day.

THE BUGLE CALL.

FROM THE DARDANELLES.

AUSTRALIANS RESPOND.

RECORD RECRUITING AT THE BARRACKS.

Australia has been thrilled by the story from Gallipoli. The message has acted like a bugle call, and the response is illustrated by record recruiting at Victoria Barracks yesterday.

"I knew they'd come out all right," said a veteran of a score of fights, as the ribbons on his breast denoted, when watching the recruits going into the barracks on Sunday morning in an apparently endless stream. "There's a lot of knock-alls who said that the 1st and 2nd battalions were too raw for the game, that there were too many men among them more accustomed to the pen than the rifle, and that they'd crumple up if put to hard work. I watched 'em at Kensington, and I watched 'em on route marches, and it was just those boys who had never handled a rifle before whose grit and pride pulled 'em through. Now that they've seen the casualty lists and read the story of how those lists came to be made up, it's stirring 'em, stirring 'em, and they're going to sign on."

That is just what they were going to do, nearly 200 of them in one Sunday morning alone—equal to a battalion in five days. They did not come with the first rush of recruits eight months ago. They hardly realised what war meant then. It was so far away it could not affect them. Now that they had seen the names of brothers and friends in those grim, callous lists, which tell so little to many, and yet so much to some, they rallied to the bugle call that had been ringing these days past on the battlefield.

An' now I'm a-sprawl in a blood-soaked trench,
An' all around there's hell's own thunder,
An' the hill-slope's black with the waiting Turks,
An' the lad at me side may go under.
For I don't care a hang what the end may be,
Fair clear through the shrapnel falling,
I was not the one that the Empire 'eard
The voice o' the bugle calling.

Saturdays and Sundays being only half-days, and the trams ceasing to run at 11 o'clock on Sunday mornings until the enrolling office closes, are looked upon as the days on which the least number of recruits generally arrive.

There was a different story to tell last week-end, however. Early on Saturday morning men were mustering at the enrolling shed, many of them with copies of the morning papers in their hands, reading the story of Australia's baptism of fire in Europe, and only anxious to get the chance of following in their footsteps. They were the right kind of men, and even if all were not of the big Australian type, the remainder made up in willingness what they lacked in stature. Well over 150 men were passed through the enrolling office before noon on Saturday, but Sunday's muster easily eclipsed it, putting up a record for the half-day of nearly 200 men.

Not a few of this number were giving up a lot to go to the front. One man was a station owner, another was an accountant, a third held and produced his diploma in economics from the Sydney University, stating that at the present time he held a good position in the Commonwealth Audit Office. There was a horse-driver, who gave as a special qualification that he could handle six or twelve horse teams, and a signaller from the Newcastle Light Horse, who was a telegraphist and wireless operator, besides being a good shot. Two buglers were in yesterday's batch, one was a motor man in his spare time, while the other was a sergeant bugler (in uniform, with bugle complete), who had served for years in the citizen forces, and is now attached to the New South Wales Lancers.

Quite a number of tramway men in uniform offered themselves, and nearly all of them belonged to both the Tramway Rifle Club and the Tramway Ambulance, and looked very useful additions to the ranks. Many clerks, including bank clerks, presented themselves, and a number of engineers and motor engineers. Service men were represented by those who had fought in South Africa, and a number of men who had been recently relieving Germany of her Pacific possessions.

Not the least interesting recruit who faced the enrolling officer was a young man in Holy Orders. He said that it was his intention to give up the ministry—at any rate for the present—in favour of fighting for his country. "He was a fine stamp of young man, too," remarked the enrolling officer; "and he was marked to go into the Australian Medical Corps."

Some men who have been sent down from the country by the police have failed to pass the medical test, and some youths have not been accepted because they failed to get their parents' consent in writing.

"Many a man willing and fit to join is held back by his wife," remarked the enrolling officer. "We get many letters from wives asking us to refuse to accept their husband for military service."

"Take my case," said a man. "I'm sound as a bell. I've been passed by the doctor; I know my job, and my wife will suffer no financial inconvenience if I go away to fight for the Empire. But she won't hear of it, and threatened that if I left her she would never see me again. I guess the Belgian women didn't hold their menfolk back from going to fight the invaders of their country," he went on. "Yet, only for a geographical difference, my wife might have been treated as many a Belgian woman has by the hands which overran that gallant little country. Our women should be proud that we are willing to go and do our best to avenge the deaths, and worse than deaths, of their sisters in Belgium, but they won't—that's the pity of it."

All applicants for a pension under the War Pensions Act should apply for an "application form for a war pension" to the Commonwealth Deputy Commissioner of Pensions under the Invalid and Old-age Pensions Act, 17 Bligh-street, Sydney, or to the Commonwealth Registrar of Pensions under the Invalid and Old-age Pensions Act at the locality at which they reside.

The military authorities state that the friends of soldiers, when making inquiries concerning members of the Expeditionary Forces, should supply the soldier's name and the unit to which he belongs. Failure to do this causes unnecessary delay.

Private Alex Dick, son of Mr. J. Dick, of Glenbrook, and Private Will Tomlinson, of Rockdale, son of Mr. J. Tomlinson, of Burton-on-Trent, England, who are proceeding to the front, were last week at Newtown presented with wristlet watches.

Dr. O. R. P. Muller, of Lismore, who left by the Malwa for London, is offering his services to the War Office for service at the front. Prior to leaving Lismore he was given a send-off and presented with a solid silver salver and gold sovereign purse. Mrs. Muller was presented with a gold wristlet watch.

Private George and Robert King were on Wednesday presented by their friends in the William-street Methodist Church with a money belt, a set of brushes, and a Testament each.

Major W. K. Fethers, second in command of 20th Infantry Battalion A.I.E.F., was on Thursday presented by his friends and the officers of his late battalion, 26th Infantry, Parramatta, with a leather writing satchel and a pair of field glasses, and by the managers and staff of the Royal Insurance Company with many useful gifts. Major Fethers recently came from Victoria, and is one of the youngest officers to hold such a responsible position, having risen from private to major in nine years.

Mr. William Edward Hugh Macdermott, who has enlisted for service with the next expeditionary force, was presented yesterday with a wristlet watch and mounted pipe by his colleagues on the staff of "The World." Mr. Macdermott has had a military career; he was a lieutenant in the 1st Commonwealth cadets, joined the 1st Australian Infantry Regiment as bugler, and rose to the rank of sergeant, afterwards going through the South African campaign with a commission as first lieutenant. For some time past Mr. Macdermott has been instructing a company of citizen forces at North Sydney.

Lieutenant H. W. Johnson, who recently returned from active service in New Guinea, and is now attached to the 17th Battalion for the front, was last week presented with a wristlet watch by the principals and staff of H. B. Allard, Way, and Hardie. He has been associated with the firm for the past five years.

Mr. Raymond Jones, who is leaving for the front with the 13th Battalion, was on Wednesday presented with a fountain pen and pocket compass by his colleagues in Anthony Hordern and Sons' electrical department.

Mr. R. Ramage, who is leaving for the front with the 19th Battalion, was the recipient of a wristlet watch and a gold mounted fountain pen from his colleagues of the "Sydney Morning Herald" clerical staff.

On Thursday a send-off was tendered to Warrant-Officer Cheadle, Sergeant Fay (Infantry), and Sergeant Hughes, of the Army Medical Corps, prior to their departure for the front, at Fay's Hotel, Enmore. Each was presented with a wristlet watch and silver hair brush. A musical programme was contributed.

Mr. Arthur Ferguson (son of Mr. Justice Ferguson) is shortly going to the front as lieutenant in the 20th Battalion. He has for three years held a commission as lieutenant in the Scottish Rifles, now the 25th Infantry. Mr. Cecil R. Lucas, who was admitted to the Bar last week, is also a lieutenant in the 25th Infantry, but is at present serving as a lieutenant in the 17th Battalion of the Australian Imperial Force.

Messrs. N. Hickey, W. Anderson, and J. Bingham, employees at the railway foundry, Eveleigh, who have joined the Expeditionary Forces, were entertained by their fellow employees on Wednesday, and presentations were made to the guests.

There have been two issues of "The Camp and Gunroom," an illustrated weekly newspaper, which is edited and controlled from the military camp at Liverpool.

UNDESIRABLES.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The attention of the Minister for Defence, Senator Pearce, was drawn to a report that a magistrate in Melbourne had stated to a man that he would discharge him for a certain offence provided he joined the forces.

Senator Pearce said he did not think it desirable that people who had been convicted of criminal offences should be asked to enlist in this way. Of course, in the case of a man who had served his sentence he took it that the crime had been expiated, and then there was no reason why the man should not be allowed to take his chance along with the rest. He did not, however, agree that this sort of thing should be encouraged. He added that enlistment was going on in a satisfactory manner.

BARRABA, Saturday.

An enthusiastic meeting was held here last night for the purpose of forming a corps in connection with the Citizens' Defence Forces. One hundred and twenty-five members were enrolled.

ZINC INDUSTRY.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

In the House of Representatives last week Mr. Sampson (V.) drew the attention of the Attorney-General to a cable message stating that the British Government had refused to allow a Broken Hill company to raise sufficient capital for the future development of the zinc smelting industry. Would the refusal have any effect on the bill relating to enemy contracts now before the House, he asked.

Mr. Hughes said that he had noticed the paragraph, and believed the refusal was due to a general prohibition issued some time ago regarding new flotations. No doubt there was a very good reason for that continual control being exercised.

THE CONSCRIPTION OF HONOUR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Military service in the British Empire is free and optional, with the exception of a few easy regulations wisely introduced by the Commonwealth of Australia of late years. Every British subject's life is his own to shape without interference or interruption from military authority, and this has always been our privilege and our pride—whether it was a wise privilege is and has been questioned by many—and what the future holds no man can tell. But now comes a time when the Empire is struggling for its very existence—trying to put forth every ounce of strength to defeat a powerful and most dangerous enemy—an enemy whose backbone is militarism, and its teachings founded on "Might is Right." The very opposite in principle to the "Justice with Mercy" of our own nation.

Now the two principles stand face to face in a fight to the death, and every man in the Empire should do his utmost to uphold his nation in the victorious vindication of the freedom and immunity which he has always enjoyed. Soon after the war broke out one heard so often, "I would love to go, but cannot possibly manage it," "My people will not hear of it," "I cannot leave my wife (or mother)," and so on. All good and unquestionable reasons for remaining deaf to most calls, but not sufficient for not obeying the supreme call to arms, the call of honour. Nothing should count against it—except physical unfitness for any branch of service. It is a matter of utmost conviction that with that one exception—medical rejection—nothing should prevent a man of the fighting age from obeying the call to arms. He should look on himself as under the most rigid legal obligation to enlist, as in a country regulated by conscription. He is in honour bound to pay the debt he owes for all the privileges he has enjoyed, that he may hand down to those who come after the same right to clean national pride that his forefathers fought and won for him. After the struggle, when we pray that England will stand with her Allies victor at fearful cost, in the settling of claims and the readjusting of administration it is inevitable that the man who gave most will receive most. That he served his country in her need will be a key to open doors of opportunity to him. Justice will be done, and no man, whether he goes or stays, can escape the effects of the war.

I am, etc.,
D. P.

PATRIOTIC FUNDS.

HELPING THE DISTRESSED.

At the last meeting of the executive committee of the Lord Mayor's Patriotic Fund no fewer than 59 applications for relief were considered. In the majority of these cases practical assistance was granted.

The disbursements to the dependents of soldiers on active service at the present time amount to about £150 per week, the total amount paid out up to April 30 being, roughly, £3500. The recipients include 350 wives and widows and 650 children, a total of 12,000. Relief is also being granted to a number of men who have been invalided home from Egypt. The fund is at present living within its income, the expenditure being at the rate of £7500 as against an income of £8000, but there are indications that a special effort will have to be made on behalf of the fund in the near future.

The total executive expenses for the last eight months—including the salary of the inspector, who is paid at the rate of £200 a year—amount to £186 8s 6d.

Up to the end of March £2931 8s 2d had been received as interest on moneys loaned from the fund, and considerable interest has accrued since. The deposits now include £75,000 with the City Council at 4½ per cent., and £25,000 with the Australian Gaslight Company at 5 per cent.

The Lord Mayor gratefully acknowledges the receipt of the following contributions to the patriotic fund:—

RED CROSS.

In response to the special appeal for the No. 3 base hospital, 40 bales of clothing, valued at £800, are already on their way to England, and within three days 65 additional bales have been packed, sewn up like wool bales, and roped for export. These will be sent this week. The Town Hall basement this month has also provided hospital clothing, representing a total of over 2400 garments for the use of the men on the transports who may be ill on the voyage. The next call upon the Red Cross is for the hospitals in Egypt. Sheets will be most acceptable for our men who are now being nursed there.

Wool can now be purchased at the head office, 215 George-street.

The following is the record for five days' work of the sewing guild at the Town Hall: 151 pairs of flannel and flannelette pyjamas, 60 quilts, 41 kitbags, 32 doctors' operating gowns, 74 pillow slips, 12 towels, 5 pairs of sheets, and 12 beautiful dressing gowns.

RUSSIA'S CLAIM TO CONSTANTINOPLE.

The Allied fleets are making excellent progress in demolishing the forts defending the Dardanelles (writes "A Diplomatic Correspondent" to a London journal), and if the weather remains favourable it seems likely that the passage will be cleared in a very short time. As soon as the Dardanelles are open the surrender of Constantinople is inevitable. The capital, lying at the water's edge, cannot possibly be defended against a fleet provided with the most modern and powerful guns, and it seems likely, therefore, that the city will surrender unconditionally as soon as the fleets enter the Sea of Marmora. While the provisional occupation of Constantinople is unlikely to lead to any differences among the three allied Powers, the permanent disposal of that wonderful town is a matter of great difficulty and delicacy. The site of Constantinople is unique. Lying almost on the meeting point of the three most populous continents and of three most important seas, Constantinople is the centre of the three continents of the Old World. It vies in picturesqueness with Naples, Palermo, and Rio de Janeiro. It lies on a placid inland sea, the approach to which is defended by those wonderful and unique sea gates, the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus. From the land side Constantinople can be attacked only with difficulty, partly because it lies on a narrow neck of land, which can easily be defended by powerful fortifications, partly because large swamps make the approach of an enemy difficult. However, although Constantinople occupies a position which would appear invaluable to an Alexander the Great or a Napoleon, it is an error to believe that Constantinople dominates the world, that the possession of Constantinople ensures the mastery of the world. So far, the Powers holding Constantinople have not prospered. After all, world-dominion is exercised not by a site but by armies and navies. Moreover, it is a fallacy to believe that Constantinople dominates the world or the Mediterranean, or the route to India. It dominates merely the access to the Black Sea.

The Black Sea trade is most important to Russia. Commercially, industrially, and financially, free access to the Mediterranean is of vital importance to that country. The freedom of trade through the Dardanelles is a vital Russian interest, and it is almost equally important to Russia that an enemy should not be able to attack her Black Sea shores. Russia is by far the most important Black Sea Power. It is therefore only natural that Russia desires to control Constantinople and the Narrows. It has been advocated that Constantinople and the Narrows should be given to a small Power, such as Bulgaria or Greece, that several Powers should hold that position jointly, one occupying the Dardanelles and one the Bosphorus, that the position should be neutralised and remain unfortified, or that it should be administered by the European Powers in common. All these proposals seem scarcely practicable. A weak Power could hardly defend that important site against a determined enemy. Its neutrality would scarcely be respected in case of a great war, and the condominium of several Powers would lead to friction among them, as it has always done in the past whenever and wherever it has been tried.

Russia has obviously the strongest claim upon the possession of Constantinople and the Straits, and she can feel secure only if she controls the passages which are of vital importance to her well-being. As long as Constantinople is in non-Russian hands, Russia and her probable opponents will always strive to dominate a position by the possession of which the most effective pressure can be exercised upon Russia. Constantinople lies not very far from the Suez Canal, but it can scarcely be said that it threatens Great Britain's route to India. Turkey's unsuccessful attempt to seize the Suez Canal shows that it cannot easily be attacked overland. It is true Constantinople lies on the flank of the route to India, but so do Spain, France, Italy, and Greece. Last, but not least, it is an error to suppose that Russia's power will be enormously increased by the possession of Constantinople. The defence of that site, which has no territorial connection with the Russian Empire itself, would require a very large army. Russia's control of Constantinople, far from increasing its power of aggression, would obviously make that country more vulnerable, more cautious, and more peaceful. That, at least, was Bismarck's view, as we learn from the memoirs of that great statesman.

POLITICAL REFORM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—It would be no idle venture to say that the letter of Mr. G. S. Beeby, of the 27th ultimo, has met with the acceptance of a considerable section of the thinking community, by whom its sentiments will be generally endorsed.

One is glad to know that it is possible to bring into the political life of the people a reform party which will be neither Liberal nor Labour, but which may possess the best features of both making for the highest good of all sections and classes. Such a party, composed of the best minds that can be drawn from the commercial, educational, and industrial realms, free from class prejudice and bitterness, would unquestionably do much toward raising the affairs of this State to a nobler and more exalted plane than she occupies at the present time.

It seems quite alien to the common conception of an educated democracy that the policy of a country should be shaped and determined by an irresponsible body over whom the electors have no jurisdiction or control. No caucus of the kind with which we are acquainted has the right to abrogate to itself powers affecting so vitally the history and destiny of a people, no matter how intelligent and well-intentioned such a caucus might be. Such usurpation of authority is quite contrary to modern thought and teaching, and is derogatory to the best and wider interests of the community. It is obvious, therefore, to many that the time is opportune when the foundations of a new reform movement should be laid, the aims and objects of which will be broader, more comprehensive, and more national in character than, unfortunately, obtains under the present political conditions. The question for the moment is—Who will take the initial step. Will Mr. Beeby?

I am, etc.,
JAKE.

The Sunday Observance and Social Reform Committee has replied to the statements recently made by the Chief Secretary, Mr. G. Black, in respect to Sunday observance. In the course of a letter to the Chief Secretary, a protest is lodged, and Mr. Black's statements are deprecated. In the course of a letter to Mr. Black it is stated:—"Your statements that we have libelled you at some conference of ours is utterly enigmatical to us, as we have held no such conference, nor have any such accusations as you refer to proceeded from this committee. Your sarcastic reference to the Acts of Charles I. and II. is as illchosen as it is plausible, unless, forsooth, you are prepared to suspend some of the foundation Statutes of the British Constitution."

FARM AND STATION.

ITEMS.

A large portion of the State where rain is most badly wanted again failed to benefit from the recent fall.

It is said there are waterless places in Riverina that no white man has seen dry before.

The severity of the drought is illustrated by the fact that there are hundreds of dead sheep, in varying stages of decomposition, lying on river flats above the town of Corowa.

This is viewed naturally as a serious menace to the health of the community, in view of the town water supply being affected.

Dr. Andrews, of Albury, who has gained repute as a local historian, says it would be necessary to go back to 1851 to find a worse drought than the present one.

The removal of stock from the west to parts of the Darling Downs, owing to the dry spell, will be stopped by the recent rains that fell over a large part of southern Queensland.

It should be remembered when using oil washes, that mandarins, lemons, and oranges suffer in that order from injury in the shape of losing leaves and damaged twigs. The dilution of spray, therefore, should be made accordingly.

The splendid rains that have fallen over most of the wheat country in Queensland should do much to assist a good crop this year. The position had previously looked grave.

The next exhibition in Brisbane will see the novel sight of the Governor judging the blood section. He has offered a cup for competition in this section, and undertaken to do the judging.

There has been no "breaking up" of the drought so far in Southern Riverina. The Albury stock inspector reported last week that the district was suffering from an unprecedented drought.

Larger areas of wheat, oats, barley, and turnips are being sown around Blacktown. The wet weather has delayed some farmers, who had no land fallowed. Fodder crops are growing well, but crops of citrus fruits will fall far short of the average estimate of orchardists.

The rubbish in the shape of weeds at present growing rapidly through the citrus trees might be well left alone, as it will serve the purpose of holding the water and assist in keeping the soil from setting hard, and later will act as humus when turned in.

Hares are causing considerable damage to young fruit trees in some localities just now by gnawing the bark. In some districts numbers of trees have died as the result. An inexpensive remedy is the placing of a fair-sized stick which has been previously coated with a strong wood preserving oil against the young tree.

In view of the high price of butter in the northern State there has been an agitation to stop the export of butter and cheese to the southern States from Queensland, but it has been pointed out that the other States might retaliate by stopping the northern movement of potatoes and onions.

There are still a few weeks available for killing red scale, brown scale, and white louse, and no time should be lost in spraying with oil washes. Growers should be careful to follow the directions given by the firms handling the miscible oils.

Mr. R. R. Kerr, dairy supervisor, writes in the Victorian "Journal of Agriculture":—"Where there is specialisation in dairying and the individuality of the animals is studied, the drudgery is removed, and the dairy cow becomes an interesting study, and worth far more consideration and care than is generally given it."

"Many of our best cows produce over 10 times their own weight of the most digestible food, and leave progeny to do likewise. No other farm animal does so much."

"The steady, reliable milker is worth all the cracks, and if a man averages eight or nine cows an hour in the spring months he is not losing much time, although odd men can do more."

So serious has the slaughter of calves become in the United States of America to cater for the taste for veal that the matter of keeping up the herds has become a vital question. In Australia veal is only in small demand.

Chaff has reached such a high figure that orchardists are at great expense in feeding their horses. The present season is so favourable for sowing green feed and oats for hay that no time should be lost in planting the seed. If hard pushed for land a strip sown between young trees might be used. A little extra fertiliser should be given to avoid robbing the trees.

Orchardists and market gardeners in the county of Cumberland are planting largely of peas, Yorkshire Hero being the favourite variety. Daisy and Stratagem are found to mature too quickly, when planted this time of the year. Seed has been very hard to obtain but a large supply has been secured from New Zealand. Blood and bone, and bonedust at the rate of 1cwt to the acre, give splendid results.

In parts of South Australia reeds will be used in connection with the packing of fruit trees for conveyance over the railways. Formerly straw was employed for the purpose, but the great scarcity of fodder has made it too valuable to be utilised now in this way.

The sugar crop in Queensland this season will be short. This is unfortunate, as a large new mill has just been completed at Inkerman, Burdekin River, and another—a Government mill, on the most up-to-date lines—will be ready for crushing in July. A second mill of similar capacity, also erected by the Government, will be ready in the following crushing season, and a co-operative mill is likely to be erected in the Childers district.

Mr. E. Correll, of Minlaton, S.A., last season cut 250 acres of his wheat crop with the binder, stooked it, and then threshed it. He also cut 70 tons of straw which, when chaffed, was worth £5 to £7 a ton. The major portion he is using up mixed with good hay. He considers that if only 10 per cent. of the straw from last season's crops had been conserved in this manner, there would have been practically no shortage of feed for stock throughout the whole of the State.

GOONDIWINDI.

(BY J.D.M.)

Recently it was reported in these columns that a farmer in the Goondiwindi district had harvested a fairly heavy crop of wheat. The locality referred to is a tract of country in the northern basin of the Macintyre River, between the junction of that stream, with the Severn on the east, with the united rivers and the weir on the west, when the confluence is known as the Barwon. Further to the west, with more additions, the united north-western rivers are now known as the Darling. About 60 years ago the writer lived for a few years on a sheep and cattle station nine miles distant from the site of the present township of Goondiwindi, on the opposite side of the Macintyre. The township is built on a long sand ridge about two or three hundreds of yards from the river bank. The sand ridge had been formed by the effects of previous inundations. In the mid-'Fifties of last century, when the river overflowed its banks, the whole site of Goondiwindi, Anglice, Tunder, and Lightning, with the exception of the sand ridge, was several feet under the flood waters which spread over the adjacent country for many miles.

A belt of forest, open in some parts, dense in others, fringes the river, and extends back an average distance of about a mile and a half. The country then opens out into a succession of large plains, separated by long, thin belts of pine timber, or strips of brigalow or myall trees, interspersed with bloodwood, stringybark, and white or silver box. The soil both on the plains and forest country consisted of fairly fertile sandy loam. The myall country had a rich black soil. The general formation is carboniferous, the subsurface being a stiff reddish clay. On the opposite side of the river the surface of the land and soil are very similar, and is capable of producing cereals, sorghums, grape vines, tobacco, and, with deep cultivation, maize, lucerne, and roots. The physical features of the country offer great facilities for irrigation by water drawn from the joined rivers, the Macintyre and Severn. The area of the arable country is very much more extensive than that in the Murrumbidgee-Barren Jack scheme. The writer cultivated a small garden, in which he grew lettuce, tree cabbage, love apples, tomatoes, cucumbers, pumpkins, and melons in sufficient quantity to supply the station, the greatest trouble to fight against being the opossums, which could clear off a bed or two of young plants in a night. Goondiwindi, like many other places out-back, suggests the possibilities of this vast country.

WHEAT ACQUISITION ACT.

Mr. S. C. Browning, Uralla, writes:—Why is the farmer singled out and treated in such a disgraceful way with his wheat, while all the rest of the community are let go scot free; and, more, they have been allowed to raise the price of all other commodities from 50 to 200 per cent., for which the farmer has to pay. If any Government had attempted to pass a bill to rob the members of workers' unions of their wages in the same way that the Holman Government have robbed the farmers of their wheat, the unions would have been up in arms at once, and would have strained every nerve to have prevented it becoming law. But not so with the Farmers and Settlers' Association. It did absolutely nothing to try to prevent this most iniquitous bill from becoming law. I do not blame the individual branches and individual members, but the executive should have taken action when the bill was before the House. Can the president and secretary explain their action, or, rather, their non-action, in this matter? When are the farmers going to realise that if they want to be something more than slaves and working bullocks for the rest of the community they will have to do more than plough their land and sow the seed? They will have to become a spoke in the political wheel, and unite and become one solid body, and not till then will they get justice.

WEDDING RING.

LADY'S GIFT TO THE BELGIANS

GOSFORD, Sunday.

An anonymous letter has been forwarded to the secretary of the local branch of the Belgian Day committee by a lady of Gosford. She sends her 18-carat wedding ring, with a request that it shall be sold at the auction sales and the proceeds given to the fund.

"It is the only piece of jewellery I possess," she writes, "but I will gladly part with it in the knowledge that the proceeds for its sale will help to feed these starving people."

The public response to Farmer and Co.'s Belgian clothing scheme continues with undiminished vigour. The total for the past week includes no less than 1502 items for men, 2379 garments for women's wear, and 2067 articles of clothing for children.

WHITE MAN'S BURDEN.

IN THE PACIFIC.

CASE OF NEW GUINEA.

Dr. Simson's charge against the administration of New Guinea, and the reply to it published in our columns last Saturday on the authority of the Lieutenant-Governor, will have attracted some attention, even amidst the stress of great events connected with the war. There is no need at present to go into the merits of the case, since to the dispassionate mind it is still sub judice. The reader who is interested in the Pacific and Australia's relation thereto will, however, be ready to discuss it from the side of a responsibility which in the near future may become exceedingly onerous; and he will naturally ask for the facts when considering the position of the white settler and the native in possession. Broadly, of course, the white man is in possession. Little or nothing remains in the Pacific which does not fly the flag either of Great Britain or of one of her Allies; and the natives, therefore, are under the flag. Why, then, should the white man, provided that he is a law-abiding British citizen, find it necessary to voice such protests as the one which appeared from Dr. Simson in our columns last Friday? For it must be understood that this latest attack upon constituted authority is only one in a series. These challenges have been varied enough, and began when Fiji was made a Crown colony in 1874, after annexation by Great Britain. Dr. Simson declares that "for political purposes the Native Affairs Department has been straining every nerve for the past few months to obtain convictions against the two largest companies in Port Moresby. It has been alleged that the companies did not feed or treat the natives fairly." Here we get to the heart of the whole business. There is a conflict of interests. Yet during Sir William Macgregor's administration a severe attack was made upon the Lieutenant-Governor because a large grant or lease of land was made to a syndicate of white men with headquarters in London; and the charge against him was that the colonies had not been consulted. The agitation which resulted led to the cancelling of the concession; but the interest of the discussion lay very largely in the principles then defined. It was made clear, to begin with, that the native cannot be helped to better things except through the white man. Native interests were thus placed first. New Guinea was not to be exploited to serve the white man, but must be developed to give the natives a chance. This was Sir William Macgregor's position. There has been no greater friend of the natives than he, and his defence of his action was not challenged upon those grounds at all. It was quite realised in Australia that a syndicate such as the one under the microscope, would never be allowed to pursue a policy inimical to the true interests of the native while he was at the head of affairs; and his character for probity, his extraordinary ability, and his genuine statesmanship received a fine advertisement while the controversy was carried on. But the various colonies of Australia were concerned in the administration of New Guinea, and had to find money year by year to enable the officials to carry on. Therefore, the demand was made that what amounted to a new departure in policy should be submitted to the Governments of the colonies in the first instance. It will be seen that this was a charge rather of favouring the white man than of unduly protecting the native, and it was made against one whose whole career had been a monument of solicitude for the latter.

Sir Wm. Macgregor, before taking up the work of Administrator in New Guinea, had done fine service in Fiji. He went there with the first Governor, Sir Arthur Gordon, in 1875, and was identified with the group in positions of authority until 1888. He probably had more to do with settling the finances of Fiji than anybody else; and he certainly did some very fine work in safeguarding the health of the native population. He was always sane, resourceful, humane, and progressive; yet he, too, found the conflict of white and native interests a continual complication. This experience, and an invaluable natural capacity, he took to New Guinea; but for some time his energies were necessarily occupied in laying foundations and in preparing the ways of peace through the tangled thickets of native brutality and incessant tribal wars. Before the Commonwealth of Australia was established he had succeeded in giving the natives of part of New Guinea, at any rate, an idea of the alphabet of civilisation; but the white man's burden pressed more heavily than in Fiji, where the Governor and his staff had British power and sovereignty behind them. There the native co-operation in chiefs and tribal organisation was real and helpful. Missionary enterprise, moreover, had made Fiji a land of promise after centuries of the most bestial cannibalism, and the way was clear for the new experiment of serving the native through the white man. In New Guinea Sir Wm. MacGregor was landed practically alone and without any force behind him worth the name. As he himself has explained in his preface to Judge Murray's "Papua," he was like a man flung into deep water with his hands tied behind his back. The naval officer who put him ashore could promise him no assistance, not even the countenance of an ordinary constable, though he assured him informally that if he found him in difficulties he would not let him be overwhelmed, or words to that effect. Missionary effort through men like Messrs. Chalmers, Lawes, and Brown was bearing fruit, and the new leader in civilisation found them full of fine helpfulness; but it was very much a forlorn hope at the outset. The white man, otherwise, was only present as trader or adventurer; and before Sir Wm. MacGregor got to work, a correspondent of repute in our columns, writing from New Guinea, said:—"A pretty long experience in out-of-the-way places like this leads me to believe that in wickedness and bestiality the white man exceeds all other." Such a terrible indictment needs to be read in conjunction with nearly every move towards annexation under the British flag in the Pacific. Sir John Hay, speaking in the Convention of 1883, said that its first object was the annexation of New Guinea; the second "was to see that the islands in the Pacific do not become a nuisance to the civilised communities near them, and to see, above all things, that they are not made the cesspools of European crime." This had reference, no doubt, to the importation of criminals in New Caledonia, but the trouble was already a serious one, and the "Herald" in a leader at the time noted that "while the Convention was sitting five French housebreakers have arrived in Sydney from New Caledonia." The islands of the Pacific had for long enough been an Alsatia for escaped criminals and white wastrels, and for derelicts of all classes; and Australia was concerned to see an end to it. So was Sir William MacGregor's special work made more difficult, and his outlook was the more clouded.

This must be kept in mind when discussing present protests from white men in New Guinea, even though it has to be admitted that the settlers are honourable men, whose position, in fairness, must be recognised. Probably the Lieutenant-Governor would be the first to confess that they work under disabilities in the special conditions of New Guinea, apart from administrative interference altogether. Judge Murray would also, no doubt, declare that as regards the white man's relation to the black as employer there is no desire or attempt to enslave or overreach. At least, such is the impression one receives from reading the Lieutenant-Governor's reports. But always the strange problem of the native and his needs demands attention, before the white man's burden can be eased, or even lifted. In Fiji at the time of the 1883 Convention there were about 2000 whites; and in New Guinea to-day there are not so many among a quarter of a million natives in the territory. When the white people of Fiji sent their petition to Sydney, 30 years ago, they urged their claim to be represented at the Convention because they were white, and put themselves upon the same footing as the people of Australia. They protested that the Governor, "Sir George William Des Voeux, K.C.M.G., has been received as representative of Fiji, although it cannot be asserted that he in any way represents the colonists thereof," and from the grumbling in New Guinea, it is possible that some of the white settlers would use similar language towards Judge Murray. Moreover, they are under Commonwealth control, with the Labour party in power. New Guinea is a Commonwealth Crown colony. Yet democracy, they may urge, should guard its own. Under the Commonwealth flag the native is cared for as though he had a vote and could upset governments; and this is the position, therefore, imposed upon the Lieutenant-Governor, who is an inheritor of the puzzles which Sir Wm. MacGregor sought so valiantly to answer, and for which those in authority must find a key. The native can only be uplifted and helped through the white man, whose enterprise and the investment of European capital must be encouraged. But can the white man under present conditions expect to govern the natives as though he were resident in Australia and able to make laws and administer them free of outside control? This is the vital question, and it goes to the root of everything.

BELGIAN DAY.

ENTHUSIASM RUNNING HIGH.

At Her Majesty's to-morrow, at noon, there will be an auction of seats and boxes for the gala matinee at Her Majesty's on Belgian Day. The auctioneers will include Miss Muriel Starr, Miss Violet Paget, Miss Lizette Parkes, Miss Dorothy Davies, Mr. Lincoln Plummer, Mr. Jack M'Ardle, and other stage personalities.

The programme for the matinee is announced this morning. It is a gargantuan theatrical feast. The design of the programme is specially befitting the occasion, the note of patriotism being struck early in the performance, and the realisation of what the day stands for will conclude the afternoon. The first scene is "somewhere in Egypt," where a camp of Australian troops receives a visit from the favourite players of the Sydney theatres. Mr. Hugh Ward specially arranged that the new English principals for "The Marriage Market," shortly to be presented in Melbourne, rehearse in Sydney in order to be available for the matinee. One of the attractive features of the performance will be the Bardell v. Pickwick trial, in which some of the most distinguished players ever on the Australian stage will take part. Mr. Julius Knight, Mr. Jack M'Ardle, Mr. Geo. S. Titheradge, Mr. Walter Bentley, Mr. Charles Brown, Mr. Leslie Victor, Mr. Arthur Styan, Mr. George Darrell (the Australian dramatist), Miss Maggie Moore, Miss Emma Temple, Mr. Leslie Holland, and Mr. Barry Lupino, are to interpret "the Pickwickian sense" in the famous Dickens' characters. As Pickwick Mr. F. G. Crouch, a well-known Sydney citizen, will make his one the only stage appearance. Leading public men will appear as jurors, spectators, and counsel.

Miss Amy Castles, the distinguished Australian singer, is remaining in Sydney to take part in the performance.

"Whatever is paid for the seats for the matinee," said Mr. Ward yesterday, "will be less than it will cost one to be at large on Belgian Day."

The Lord Mayor of Sydney (Alderman Richards) has endorsed an appeal by the honorary organiser of the day to the citizens to decorate business premises. On Saturday morning Mr. T. A. Dibbs telephoned Mr. Ward to put his name down as one of the donors of a £500 cheque. Mr. R. Craig, of Cooma, also paid Mr. Ward a visit, and producing a cheque book wrote a cheque for £500.

There are now 17 promises of £500 cheques, made up as follow:—

Mr. John Hunter	£500
Mr. Sam Hordern	£500
Mr. Anthony Hordern	£500
N.S.W. Railways and Tramways War Fund	£500
Mr. J. Joynton Smith, M.L.C.	£500
Mr. Chas. W. Bennett	£500
Mr. Lebbeus Hordern	£500
Messrs. David Cohen and Co., Ltd.	£500
Mr. Wallace J. Carson	£500
Mr. F. G. Sargood	£500
Mr. Francis T. White	£500
Mr. N. C. Bucknell	£500
Mr. William Macleod	£500
Civic Club	£500
Employees of W. D. and H. O. Wills (Australia), Ltd., British-Australasian Tobacco Co. Pty., Ltd., and the States Tobacco Co. Pty., Ltd.	£500
Mr. T. A. Dibbs	£500
Mr. R. Craig	£500

On Saturday morning a letter was received by Mr. Ward from a Sydney lady, who wishes her name withheld, saying that she would make the twentieth £25 if nineteen other women would come forward with a similar sum, in order that the women might be represented with a £500 cheque. This was duly announced, and the first lady to respond was Mrs. John Hunter. Eighteen more ladies are wanted to realise this aim. Perhaps there are some ladies who will give £500 straight out.

Mr. M. Meagher, of Bathurst, last night stated to Mr. Ward that so sure was he of the response of his town on Belgian Day that he was personally prepared to guarantee the collection of Bathurst for £500.

RIFLEMEN'S CARNIVAL.

At the monthly meeting of the council of the National Rifle Association of New South Wales it was decided to hold a patriotic rifle shooting carnival on the King's Birthday in aid of the National Belgian Fund. A collection in aid of the Belgian Fund will be made on the ground, and the entry fees and admission charges will go to swell the fund. Messrs. J. J. Wallace and G. L. Ardill were appointed organisers of the carnival, and Mr. J. B. Thomson hon. treasurer to the movement, in which country teams will be asked to compete.

THE DOMINION'S AID.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Sunday.

The Treasury has received £237,268, including £66,000, the value of goods in kind, from the beginning of the war to the end of March, for Belgian and British relief. During April an additional £21,822 was received, of which £19,083 was earmarked for Belgian relief.

The Women's Guild of St. Thomas's Church, North Sydney, hold every year a sale of work for the funds of their church, and this year one-half of the proceeds were given to the Belgian Fund. By means of this effort the church treasurer (Mr. A. J. Willgoss) was able to forward this week to the Consul for Belgium a cheque for £105 10s 6d.

To assist the Belgian Fund, Mr. Fielding presented several pictures of celebrated greyhounds which were sold by auction yesterday at the Rooty Hill coursing meeting. They realised £17 17s. This sum was supplemented by contributions to the amount of £2 3s, making in all £20 for the fund.

At a meeting of the Newtown branch on Wednesday it was resolved to make a collection on Belgian Day, Friday, May 14, within the municipality, on the lines of the Hospital Saturday collection.

Amongst other donations the treasurer reported, British Empire League of Newtown, £10; Newtown Congregational Church, £7; Mr. E. J. Broad, £5; and a further £3 3s monthly donation from Messrs. Cragn and Sons, Federal Flourmills; £2 2s monthly donation from Bamfields, Ltd.; R. Henley, £1 10s; A. Melville, £1 1s; William Simpson, £1.

The principal attractions at the garden fete in aid of the Belgian Fund organised by Mrs. Hugh D. M'Intosh, and which is to take place at her residence, Benoni, Etham-avenue, Darling Point to-morrow, will be vaudeville and dancing. Two vaudeville performances will be given—one in the afternoon, and the other in the evening—and dancing will be in a marquee erected for the purpose in the grounds. The music is to be supplied by an orchestra under the conductorship of Mr. A. Tremain. The Premier is to declare the function open at 3 o'clock, and afterwards the time will be devoted to the sale of goods, auctions, and raffles. The fete closes at midnight. Visitors should take the motor 'bus from Darling Point-road to Benoni.

At a meeting of proprietors of picture shows last week, it was decided to give to the fund half the gross receipts on Belgian Day between the hours of 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. This will be done at the Broadway Theatre, Globe, "The Hub," Newtown, and the American Picture Palace, Alhambra, Kings, New York, Lyceum, Crystal Palace, Lyric, Colonial, and Empress Theatres, Sydney.

The pupils of Beecroft Public School held a very successful fete on Saturday in the school grounds in aid of the Belgian and Allies Food Funds. It is expected that about £50 will be realised.

The pupils of Bexley Public School have unanimously decided to forego their annual outing on Empire Day, and devote the money to the Belgian Fund.

BOMBALA, Sunday.

A sale of work organised by Mrs. Brennand, and contributed to by the members of the local Red Cross Society, was held at the Masonic Hall. Over £27 was realised.

CAMDEN, Sunday.

Camden branch of the Belgian Central Fund report that £260 has been collected to date, and that the average monthly collections amount to £30.

CURLEWIS, Sunday.

About £130 was realised as the result of the bazaar which Mesdames Isaacs and Livermore promoted. Nearly £300 has now been collected.

GOOLAGONG, Sunday.

The benefit for the Belgians realised about £70.

HILLGROVE, Sunday.

A euchre party, dance, and sale of goods realised £12. Ladies were admitted by a gift of wearing apparel, and by this means 84 articles were received.

LIVERPOOL, Sunday.

The Consul-General for France, M. Chayet, opened a Belgian carnival sale on Wednesday. The result was £240.

LITHGOW, Sunday.

Belgian Day will be observed here by the decoration of the streets, sale of badges, and other efforts. A special effort will also be made to send a substantial cheque to the Belgian Consul. Owing to the fact that Friday is not a suitable day for such celebrations at Lithgow, it was decided almost unanimously at last night's meeting of the patriotic committee to have a celebration on a large scale on Empire Day instead. Exclusive of Red Cross funds, the total amount collected here to date is about £3350.

LOCKHART, Sunday.

The net result of the sports carnival will be nearly £250. At the Roman Catholic Church on Sunday £14 10s was collected for the Belgian Nuns' Fund.

MOREE, Sunday.

At a meeting last week it was resolved to take up a street collection on Belgian Day, with a sports meeting in the afternoon. A deputation of Public school children expressed their desire to forego their usual picnic and sports this year, and to give the money to the Belgian Fund.

MOSS VALE, Sunday.

At a meeting held in the Moss Vale Council-chambers last night it was unanimously decided to celebrate Belgian Day. All business places are to be decorated with Belgian flags. Over £20 was collected at the meeting.

MOLONG, Sunday.

A sports carnival, concert, and dance at Molong realised over £125. Contributions towards the same fund collected within the shire of Amaroo amount to £33 8s monthly.

NEWCASTLE, Sunday.

The request made to Newcastle City Council to observe May 14, and to gain the cooperation of the citizens to augment the fund had been considered by the local committee of the Belgian Fund.

It was decided that, in view of their own programme for raising funds, it would be inadvisable to make the special effort requested on May 14.

The secretary of the fund, Mr. T. H. Raysmith, said Newcastle people had given generously, and would continue to give freely. Arrangements were in hand to hold a big commercial travellers' and salesmen's carnival on June 7 in aid of the Belgian Fund. The permanent subscribers to the fund contributed £650 a month. It would be realised, therefore, that Newcastle was doing its share in support of the noble Belgians.

PENRITH, Sunday.

Penrith is falling into line with other centres regarding holding Belgian Day on May 14.

PARKES, Sunday.

The local committee is thoroughly well organised. In March the collections reached £125, and for April £168; total for two months, £293.

TENTERFIELD, Sunday.

The Tenterfield Jockey Club has voted £25 in place of a winter race meeting. Belgian Day will be celebrated by an impromptu concert.

WOLLONGONG, Sunday.

A continental held at Port Kembla realised £37 12s.

A CHALLENGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Every member of the community must do his little to assist in making Belgian Day a huge success, and it has struck me as rather strange that one class of business people have not been approached in the matter. I refer to the Licensed Victuallers, who, as is generally known, are liberally disposed when matters affecting the public welfare are concerned. My idea is that each licensee throughout the State should, on Belgian Day, devote their bar takings to the national fund. I shall devote the takings of my hotel, the White Horse, at Parramatta, to the object. I hope that action will be taken to induce my fellow-licensees to follow my example.

I am, etc.,
LEON. A. CHESSHER.

Parramatta, May 7.

MOTHERS' DAY.

GENERAL RECOGNITION.

If I were to hang on the highest hill,
I know whose arms would cling to me still:
Mother o' Mine.

If I were to drown in the deepest sea,
I know whose tears would come down to me:
Mother o' Mine.

If I were damned of body and soul,
I know whose prayers would make me whole:
Mother o' Mine.

In these forcible lines Kipling well expresses the love and devotion of a mother for her son. The second Sunday in May is regarded in most English-speaking countries as Mother's Day, and yesterday it was remembered in Sydney by thousands who wore the white flower—emblematic of purity—in their buttonholes. In many country centres observance also was made of Mother's Day.

There was a big gathering yesterday at the Y.M.C.A. Hall. The principal speaker was the Rev. James Wilson, who took for his text "Thy gentleness hath made me great."

"Motherhood," said Mr. Wilson, "is one of God's greatest gifts. What grander emblem of this was there than that supplied by England's mothering of Belgium's homeless ones? Recently I witnessed on a dreary, wet and miserable day, about 1000 dejected women and wounded Belgians being banqueted in one of England's historic halls."

"I ask," concluded Mr. Wilson, "God's blessing on mothers, especially Australasian mothers. May those of them whose noble sons are on the battlefields of Europe have strength given them to meet any trials that may be in store."

TRADES AND LABOUR.

PREFERENCE TO UNIONISTS.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Fisher, has issued a fresh instruction to the heads of all departments on the question of preference to unionists in Government employ.

The instructions state that where a bona-fide union is in existence applicants for employment must be members of that union. No appointment is to be made on the promise of applicants to join the union. They must be members of the union before the appointment is made. It must be distinctly understood, the Prime Minister concludes, that preference to unionists is given on the understanding that the unions offer all reasonable facilities for non-unionists to join the ranks of organised labour.

SHIP-PAINTERS AND DOCKERS.

The system inaugurated by the Minister for Defence, whereby all ship-painting and docking labour is engaged through the union's office in Balmain, is proving a great success, hundreds of men having been so engaged during the last month.

A BENEFIT FUND.

An example of what can be done by co-operation to provide sick and accident benefits is shown by the results achieved by the club formed some time ago by the Sydney Ferries employees to provide benefits for members in case of sickness or accident. When a member has been away from work through sickness or accident for a period of six weeks a levy of 1s per member is struck, and the amount, approximately £10, handed to the sick member. In case of a death a levy of 2s 6d per member is struck. The balance-sheet for the first year's operations shows the receipts at £141 10s, out of which sum £134 was expended in benefits to the members.

THE BOILERMAKERS.

SPORTSMEN.

BRITISH CRICKETERS TAKE ACTION.

DUTY BEFORE PLAY.

At a meeting of secretaries of cricket clubs, held in London on March 19, the following resolution was passed:—"That this meeting of delegates, representing a large proportion of the foremost cricket clubs in Greater London, having fully discussed the unfortunate position created by the European war, feel that it would be in the true interests of the game to endeavour, as far as possible, for the older members, to keep the grounds and staffs going, while the younger members are showing their patriotism by fighting for their country, so that rents, taxes, and other incidentals may to some extent be met."

A letter from Lord Hawke was read at the meeting, as follows:—"It is a great pleasure to me to send a message to this meeting of the club cricketers. Now that we are in the midst of a terrible war, with our losses increasing daily, it is not becoming that we should think of any serious cricket this summer.

"There can, however, be no harm in friendly games amongst cricketers who are not qualified to enlist, or who must stay at home for Government work. Thus they will give healthy relaxation to themselves and others; and I hope club cricketers, when taking part in the matches that are played, will remember they are providing health and relaxation for those who cannot actively serve the Empire on the field."

The controllers of several branches of sport in Australia hold similar views, and no interstate contests have been arranged. Even the local competitions have been cancelled, and ordinary club matches will take their place. Some bodies, however, intend to carry on interstate games in addition to the local competitions, as in normal times.

The Orange list includes Lieutenant Roy Saul, who was wounded in the Dardanelles action, while Lieutenant Watkins (killed) was a member of the Hurlstone College Rugby team of 1910-11.

The estimated total—700—is likely to be exceeded, as nine city clubs and 15 country centres have yet to complete their lists. The difficulty in doing this may be gauged by the fact that in some cases the first intimation of some players volunteering has been contained in the report of the casualties.

The pathway had grown too steep.

WAR BY ASSASSINATION.

The Lusitania, a ship designed primarily for the passenger trade, and one of the most famous of her class, was torpedoed last week off the coast of Ireland, and sunk with great loss of life. The victims of this assault were non-combatants proceeding on a peaceful voyage for their own purposes between the United States and Great Britain. The officers of the vessel, which did not carry guns, had no warning, such as the navy of any civilised country would give to a merchant ship suspected of carrying contraband of war. These officers and their crew did their best for the passengers in their charge, as British sailors always have done. But owing to the suddenness and the violence of the attack, they were prevented from saving them all. Hundreds of men, women, and children whose fate could not have the remotest bearing on the war have been drowned by an act which is none the less a murder because it must be attributed to a Government, and not to an individual. The act has been described in the German newspapers in terms which reveal callousness and lack of insight in an almost equal degree. The murder of a number of non-combatants, many of them in all probability American citizens, has been claimed as the revenge of the German nation for the loss of a number of ships of war with their crews fighting in honourable warfare. A German newspaper, commenting on the outrage, says that it will be followed in the British press by denunciations of German barbarism, though no mention will be made of the Lusitania's cargo and of its armament. There will be no concealment of the real facts by the British press, nor will there be any credence in any part of the world for the statements issued to excuse this atrocity by the authorities at Berlin. But though the facts in no way palliate an attack without warning, they will not for that reason arouse any surprise or any fresh denunciation among the Allies. The German Government has proved already that there is no outrage on the laws of nations or on the instincts of humanity which it would not authorise, and the German people have shown that there is no extremity of barbarism which will evoke a protest from them. The result of the progress of science in Germany has been to arm her soldiers with a weapon crueller than any yet revealed in the history of warfare. The result of a century of philosophic teaching is that German soldiers can admit in one of the best known newspapers of their country that they have used non-combatants as a screen without arousing any protest either from the newspaper itself or from any of its readers.

With these facts before them, British newspapers will regard the sinking of the Lusitania as differing from other acts of the German Government, not in the motives or the instincts which prompted it, but only in the magnitude of the crime. The reply of the British people, and of the British Government will be to persist in their course with more determination than ever. If the Germans hoped by striking at a well-known vessel to kill the trade between England and America, they show a persistence in delusion which is most encouraging to their enemies. The trade returns, which show by how much the value of imports per month has increased, is a clear proof of the failure of this so-called blockade. The British Government will carry on its trade with the United States, as it has done in the past, without being deterred by threats, or even by such instances of the policy of frightfulness as this. The effect of this outrage on American opinion is indicated in the reports we publish this morning. Clearly there is a large section of the American people which feels that nothing can atone for the murder of so many of their peaceful fellow-citizens. In deciding on what steps they will take the American Government will, of course, consider the interests of its country alone. In doing so it will be watched with respectful sympathy by other nations. Ministers will scarcely be influenced one way or the other by any offer of the German Government to compensate the relatives of their victims. President Wilson is indeed in that difficult position described by Mr. Asquith in one of his speeches. A statesman who engages his country in a war takes a terrible responsibility, but his responsibility is no less if he sees the national honour about to be attacked and allows it to go undefended. The neutral countries of Europe will accept this disaster as characteristic of the nation which desires to impose its ideals of life on the rest of the world. Neutrals as well as belligerents have been enabled to study the German character at work in the desecration of Belgium and of Northern France. Their decision depends on quite other considerations. In the German mind it obviously depends on the impression they have gained of the prospects of the allied armies and on their fears of a possible revenge. To such a belief we may attribute the exaggerated accounts of Russian defeats, and the Emperor's contemptuous description of the British soldier. Neutral nations, however, will form their impressions from other sources than German messages. They will remember that the Russian armies have recovered from defeat with remarkable persistence; that the new British soldiers have fought no less steadfastly than the old; and that attack after attack from the Germans has been beaten back along the whole Western line. There seems reason to believe that this impression has had a decisive effect on one or more of the most important neutrals. M. Ribot's prediction in the French Chamber may best be interpreted beside the statement of a German newspaper that Italian neutrality can no longer be maintained. M. Venizelos' recall shows the mind of the Greek people in face of the attack on the Dardanelles. The German people will find that they have no friends in the world. They may for a time terrorise or bribe their neighbours. But once the scale of war has turned against them they will find that a nation which sets itself above every law and every humane instinct has all mankind for its enemies.

OUR SUGAR SUPPLIES.

Whence we are to obtain our supplies of sugar after the middle of July demands the instant attention of the Government. By that time the chief supplier, the Colonial Sugar Refining Company, declares that the stocks in the State will be down to bare boards, with no opportunity of replenishment from within the Commonwealth till the middle of August. The position was very plainly put before the Government by the Sugar Company as far back as a fortnight ago, yet although time is pressing no action has been taken to relieve the situation. All that has been done, according to a letter from the Premier published by the company, is that the information has been forwarded to the Necessary Commodities Commission for further consideration; and, according to a letter from the Premier, Mr. Holman has asked his colleague, the Attorney-General and Minister for Justice, "to give the matter urgent consideration, the subject of food supplies being one with which Mr. Hall is particularly concerned." In this State on Saturday last bonded stocks of sugar, both Australian and foreign, amounted in round numbers to twenty-two thousand tons. By comparison with the bonded stocks of previous years, we find that that quantity will just carry the State to the middle of July. From the Commonwealth yield, in the most favourable circumstances, the company declares, no sugar can be expected till the middle of August. Thus there will be soon upon us a month during which we shall have no Australian sugar for use, and even when the Australian yield is all crushed and refined, the estimate is that there will be a further three and a half months' supplies wanted to fill the requirements for the twelve months. It is the duty of the Government to see that the people have their sugar, inasmuch as the Government has interfered with the normal process of trade, and has prevented the natural action of supply and demand. All the world wants sugar outside of Germany, Austria-Hungary, and Russia. What is that demand is shown by the price to-day compared with the price in July. Then it was 11s 6d, now it is 27s 6d per cwt.

How is the gap between the giving out of the old stocks and the coming in of the new stocks to be bridged? If it be determined that there is no call on the company to come to our aid, then either the fixed price must be abolished so as to allow traders to import sugar from the markets of the world, or the Government itself must become the merchant and purchase whatever is required at the world's price. The cost to the consumer would be as much in the one case as in the other. This solution of the problem is not as simple as it looks. The position is complicated by the attitude of many of the Queensland growers who threaten not to supply the produce of their cane for consumption in the southern States, because of the unduly low prices fixed in those States. That the fixed prices are not just prices must be admitted. They are the prices which ruled before the war, when a glut of sugar brought very low prices all over the world. The war locked up much sugar in the countries of our enemies, and at once there was almost a famine in sugar, with soaring rates. Yet values here were compulsorily kept down by Government fiat. If the consumer benefited by the glut of sugar, should he not pay when the world is suffering from a famine of that commodity? The Necessary Commodities Commissions, here and in Victoria, considered matters only from the standpoint of the consumer. That there was a producer did not trouble them. It almost looked as though they treated the producer, because he belonged to another State, as a foreigner. The least that the Commissions should have done was to raise the price to the average rate of the years when the world's supplies were normal. Something of the kind was done in Queensland, the chief producing State, and the producers made no demur. While admitting that the price as fixed is unjust, it may be questioned whether it would be politic for the growers to treat their customers in the way they propose, because those customers are also in a manner of speaking their masters. The sugar industry in Australia is an industry which lives at a very heavy expense to the people of Australia. To enable the industry to exist the people of Australia have sanctioned a duty on sugar in the neighbourhood of 50 per cent. ad valorem. In other words, to enable the industry to exist, the people of Australia tax themselves a million and a quarter sterling a year. If Queensland withheld her supplies of sugar the people of New South Wales and Victoria would have it in their power to retaliate by demanding the abolition of the duty. They might come to believe that the survival of the industry is not worth the price paid, and if the demand were unanimous, as it would be were a sugar famine in prospect, then no Federal Ministry would be strong enough to withstand it. This aspect of the case is well worth consideration by the growers before they take impulsive action.

PERSONAL.

The Premier of Western Australia, Mr. Scaddan, who has been ill in Melbourne with pneumonia, is now out of danger, but his medical advisers have ordered him to take things very quietly for a week or two. He will not be able to attend the Premiers' Conference, but will visit Sydney a few days later.

Mr. J. D. Fitzgerald, M.L.C., was entertained at dinner at Farmer's Rooms on Friday by the Town Planning Association of New South Wales, on the occasion of his appointment as Vice-President of the Executive Council. Mr. John Sulman, president of the association, presided. Among those present were the Premier, Mr. Holman, Mrs. Holman, the visiting Premiers and their wives, the Minister for Education (Mr. Griffith), Mr. Thomas Hughes, M.L.C., and others.

Colonel W. Holmes, D.S.O., V.D., commanding the 5th Infantry Brigade, A.I.F., was tendered a dinner by the president, members, and principal officers of the Water and Sewerage Board at the Wentworth Hotel on Saturday night.

IMPERIAL TARIFF.

CEMENTING THE BONDS OF UNITY.

A BRITISH PROPOSAL.

The Premier has received from the Agent-General a report of the British Tariff Commission, which lays stress on what it calls the "new Imperial relationship," and recommends the imposition of a tariff on enemy goods at the end of the war.

In forecasting a permanent increase of at least £100,000,000 in the normal national expenditure, the Commission says:—"To endeavour to obtain this sum from a mere increase on direct taxes would be to place an undue and inequitable burden upon capital and industry; the new revenue must be obtained by enlarging the productive power of the community. At the same time a basis should be found for the economic partnership which oversea States of the Empire have long desired, and which the facts of the war have proved to be as much in our interests as theirs.

"The immediate object of Imperial co-operation is the permanent removal of that German menace which it is realised, as never before, is a menace against the whole British Empire. The course of events, as well as the definite declarations of statesmen of the Empire, has, however, made it clear that the question of defence cannot be dissociated from the question of how to bring the economic resources of the whole Empire to their maximum of efficient development. To meet these new conditions a co-operative relationship must be established between the States of the Empire covering defences, commerce, foreign policy, and all matters in which they have a common concern as citizens of the Empire. Whatever measures are now proposed to meet the difficulties that immediately affect the United Kingdom must take account of this new Imperial factor and the new Imperial relationship."

HIGHER FREIGHTS.

In addition to the proposed increase in intercolonial freights mentioned in a cablegram received from Wellington (N.Z.) yesterday increases on outward freights from New Zealand to England are also proposed.

According to advices received from Auckland by the steamer Maheno the advances decided upon are equivalent to about 15 or 20 per cent.

VISITING PREMIERS.

There was no sitting of the Premiers' Conference on Saturday, the day being put in inspecting the third rail device (which was shown in actual operation at the Thornley Engineering Works, Sydenham). A visit to Daceyville followed, and a motor trip was made yesterday to the Jenolan Caves.

Sir Alexander Peacock said that the third rail principle was a practicable proposition. The conference will be continued this morning at 10.30.

LOST LINER.

SURVIVORS' STORIES.

BOILERS EXPLODE.

LONDON, May 9.

There are fourty-four American survivors.

Dr. Moore, an American, states: "At 1 o'clock we saw a submarine's conning-tower on the port side appearing and disappearing, and altering her speed. The Lusitania meanwhile was zigzagging at 18 knots. Presently the submarine disappeared and the Lusitania ceased to zigzag.

"We sat down to lunch and about 2 o'clock heard a muffled drum-like noise from forward. The ship trembled and began to list to starboard.

"Unless the first submarine was able to run rings round the Lusitania, there must have been a second hidden to starboard. We heard no second explosion.

"There was general excitement, and the second saloon was soon quitted. By the time we reached the deck, the list made walking difficult. Most of the passengers went on the promenade deck.

"Within a few minutes the rail was only 12 feet above the water. A stewardess struggled along the promenade under a load of lifebelts. The ship was settling bow first."

Dr. Moore entered a boat which got clear. The boat leaked, and those in her bailed it with their hats, but it sank. Many rafts were afloat and saved a large number.

All accounts agree that there was no panic among the passengers. The crew showed magnificent courage and discipline. The passengers firmly believed the ship would not sink, especially as after the first heeling she did not list further.

One passenger states that eight boats were hanging over the side when she sank.

John Davis, a member of the crew, said: "We had a splendid voyage to the coast, going at half speed near Fastnet owing to the fog. Then we increased to 16 knots. Full speed was rung for at 2.5, and the vessel zigzagged. An explosion followed almost immediately. The torpedo struck a bunker, and all the divisions were rent and coal scattered in all directions.

"The ship finally stood on end and dived like a duck. Her boilers exploded and her funnels were blown out."

DIABOLICAL ACTS.

CALL FOR REVENGE.

LONDON, May 9.

Lord Derby, in a letter to the newspapers, writes:—"Within a few days Germany has committed two diabolical acts, only describable as murders—firstly, use of poisonous gases, resulting in scores of painful and lingering deaths; and now the sinking of the Lusitania, with the loss of many innocent lives. Britain no longer calls for men to fight an honourable foe, but to join in the purpose of hunting down and crushing once and for all a race of cold-blooded murderers. Whether men join the regulars, Kitchener's army, or the Territorials is immaterial. All will be present when the day of reckoning comes, and bitter revenge is taken."

INQUEST OPENED.

The inquest on one victim was opened at Queenstown. The Coroner remarked that it was a case of a powerful, warlike engine attacking an unarmed passenger vessel without warning. The inquest was adjourned.

RELIEF FUND.

The Lord Mayor of Dublin, in issuing an appeal for a relief fund, says:—"The staggering news of the prearranged murder of hundreds of innocent passengers comes as an unprecedented shock. The whole civilised world stands dazed and horror-stricken before the stupendous atrocity, but the monstrous and dastardly crime knocks at the heart of every individual."

VON BERNSTORFF'S WARNING.

NEW YORK, May 9.

Count von Bernstorff's warning that the Atlantic must be regarded as a war zone has reappeared in the newspapers.

Many persons in Washington received letters from officials in Germany asserting that Friday had been fixed for the torpedoing of the Lusitania.

RESCUE OF PASSENGERS.

GERMAN STATEMENT.

AMSTERDAM, May 9.

German newspapers state that as the Lusitania was armed it was impossible for the submarine to rescue the passengers.

SUGGESTED BOYCOTT.

PARIS, May 9.

Mr. Shoninger, ex-President of the American Chamber of Commerce, in an interview, says the chamber will consider the question of a reprisal by boycotting everything German.

INDIAN INDIGNATION.

SIMLA, May 9.

The use of gases caused indignation throughout India, but the Lusitania outrage has roused an indescribable feeling of horror.

MEN OF THE DARDANELLES.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MAJOR BLAIR I. SWANNELL.

As a tribute to the memory of their late comrade and officer, the officers and cadets of Area 24A paraded at Rushcutter Bay on Saturday afternoon, under Captain G. K. Richmond. They were addressed by Captain P. E. Hollander, area officer, who eulogised the good work Major Blair I. Swannell had performed for the area, his first commission under the Compulsory Service Act being lieutenant and commanding B Company. In his first year he trained and commanded the team which won the battalion competition. He also inaugurated the bugle band for the area. After his promotion to captain he was transferred to Darlington as area officer. After the address the short but impressive ceremony was concluded by the sounding of the "Last Post" while the parade presented arms.

LIEUT. MAY.

Lieutenant Royston Kenilworth Sydney May, reported wounded, is the only son of Mr. Sydney May, chemist, Manly. He was born in 1894, and educated at King's School, Parramatta, where he was a lieutenant in the school corps, and also the holder of the Burton Exhibition Scholarship. He afterwards joined the 34th Regiment, Newtown, with similar rank. When the war broke out Lieutenant May was in his second year of medicine at St. Andrew's College, Sydney University. He was one of the fourteen King's School cadets sent to the Indian Durbar, and formed one of the guard for King George during the picturesque and historic event. Lieutenant May took a keen interest in sport, and is a fine all-round athlete. Lieutenant A. B. Champion (severely wounded) was at King's School with Lieutenant May.

LIEUT. WOODFORDE.

Although only 21 years of age, Lieutenant P. S. S. Woodforde has devoted a good deal of his life to military work. Nine years ago he entered the old junior cadets, and after the introduction of compulsory training was drafted into the senior cadets. In this body, after holding non-commissioned rank, he gained a commission. He joined the 29th Infantry, and became a second-lieutenant. With this rank he left Sydney in the first Expeditionary Force. His second star was gained in Egypt. The wounded officer took much interest in rifle shooting, and was a good shot. His parents reside at Mosman, where Lieutenant Woodforde is well known.

LIEUT. H. E. BUTLER.

Lieutenant H. E. Butler, who was wounded in action at the Dardanelles, is a first lieutenant in A Company 3rd Battalion. His relations reside at Earlsholme, Chandos-street, Ashfield. At the outbreak of the war he was manager of the Government Savings Bank, Temora.

SERGEANT SHARPLEY.

Sergeant Edmund Anthony Sharpley, whose death from wounds at the Dardanelles was notified last week comes of a fighting family. A number of his relations have served in the army, and his grandfather was killed in the Crimea. Sergeant Sharpley, who was only 25 years of age, was a native of Melbourne, where his family resides. After completing a three years' course at the Melbourne University he went to Queensland, and whilst there obtained a lieutenancy in the Artillery. Coming to Sydney, he was employed as a wool classer. At the outbreak of the war he was one of the first to enlist, and he left with the 13th Battalion under Lieut.-Col. Burnage.

PRIVATE E. H. CHEAL.

Private Edwin Harold Cheal, who was killed at the Dardanelles between April 28 and the 2nd inst., was the second son of Mr. Joseph D. Cheal, of Alt-street, Waverley, and was born at North Sydney 19 years ago. He finished his education at Fort-street school, and entered the employ of the City Council as a clerk. After being there for three years ill-health forced him to resign his position, and he went to Katoomba, where he was living when the call came for volunteers for the front. He was one of the first to enlist, and left Sydney with the 3rd Battalion of the first expeditionary force. His elder brother, Joseph, went with the 4th Battalion of the same contingent, and when last heard from was in Egypt, but had met with an accident, which his father thought would have prevented him from accompanying the colonials to the Dardanelles. Private Edwin Cheal had from boyhood taken a great interest in military affairs, and for some time was connected with the 21st Infantry (Woollahra) Regiment. Among the messages of sympathy received by Mr. Cheal, senr., was a letter from Mr. Kilgour, principal of Fort-street School, in which the writer stated that while there Edwin had gained the esteem of all the masters.

PRIVATE STRAKER.

Private George Straker, who was killed in the action at the Dardanelles, was, prior to enlistment, employed by Messrs. Langdon and Langdon, timber merchants.

PRIVATE BUCKERIDGE.

Private Stanley Buckeridge, whose parents last night received news of his being seriously wounded at the Dardanelles, is the son of Mr. Buckeridge, draftsman at the Public Works Office in Wollongong. During his sojourn in this centre he had made himself popular amongst all with whom he came in contact. He is 21 years of age, and had always taken a keen interest in military affairs, being at one time connected with the Baden Powell B. Scouts in the Newcastle district.

SAPPER F. R. CLUETT.

Sapper Frank Roper Cluett, who was reported to have been wounded, is the son of Mr. Frank E. Cluett, boot importer, of Parramatta-road, Leichhardt, and left Sydney with the First Expeditionary Force. He was born at Parramatta, 22 years ago, and was educated at All Saint's School, Petersham. He served his apprenticeship to marine engineering with the Adelaide Steamship Company, and after being in the Engineers for some time he left them to make way for ex-trainees who were adopting that branch of the military service. He then joined the National Reserve, but when the call came for volunteers for the front he enlisted in the Engineers as a sapper.

PRIVATE CANTWELL.

KURRI KURRI, Saturday.

Private Henry Joseph Cantwell, of Kurri Kurri, who has died of wounds received at the Dardanelles, was a well-known footballer. He was 19 years of age, and volunteered during the first week of the war. The flags over the principal business places here were flown.

"ALL WELL."

MESSAGE FROM COL. RYRIE.

Colonel Ryrie, who is in command of the 2nd Light Horse, cabled Mrs. Ryrie last week that all was well.

THE ENGLISH MAILS.

English mails by the R.M.S. Moldavia, dated London, April 3, are expected to reach Sydney to-day in time for delivery at about 2 p.m.

WAR NOTES.

HORROR ON HORROR'S HEAD.

Germany has heaped horror upon horror's head in sinking the Lusitania. She has set the seal to the long document she has been preparing by which she will be known through all the ages as the most criminal nation in history. The historian of the future will count it a mere waste of time to compare her with the violent peoples of the past, for she has proclaimed herself blatantly to the point of nausea to be the undisputed leader in all that counts on the finer side of human nature—the very flower of modern civilisation. Away back in the Dark Ages there may be found some parallel for the ruthlessness of Germany in Belgium, the murder, rapine, and pillage that marked every step of her armies in that unhappy State and in Eastern France; there may be found something to compare with the torpedoing of a crowded refugee ship, the attempted sinking of a hospital ship, the warring on the shipping of neutrals with whom there existed no quarrel, and the sending to the bottom of the sea of a great passenger liner with hundreds of women and children on its crowded decks; but, whereas the deeds may have a family resemblance in criminality, we have it on the word of Germany herself that she must be judged on far loftier and more highly developed standards than even the other nations of the world to-day, let alone those of the far-off days of darkness. So, judged on the very standards she has herself set up, no nation since the world began has sunk to such depths of infamy as she.

COLD-BLOODED MURDER.

There can be no possible excuse for the murder of the hundreds of souls that went down with the Lusitania. Germany states officially that as soon as it was learned that the vessel was to "carry such an amount of contraband as would give the Allies sufficient material for several weeks" it was resolved to torpedo her. The intention to sink a ship carrying contraband when it is impossible to convey her to a German port is one that cannot be cavilled at. But by all the usages of international law something more has to be done before the intention is directly translated into action. In the first place, the warship accosting the vessel has to ascertain whether or not she actually has contraband on board. A mere report from the port of departure cannot be taken as evidence. In this case the war vessel never came near the Lusitania—to examine her papers or to search her cargo. Then, apart from what might or might not be the law on the matter, the dictates of humanity demand that notice should be given before any peaceful ship is hurled to destruction, in order that those on board might be afforded some chance of saving their lives. And if this be so in regard to the merest tramp cargo boat, the demand is intensified a thousand-fold in the case of a mammoth passenger ship which numbers among its crowd of passengers hundreds of helpless women and children. No notice whatever was given the Lusitania; in broad daylight she was struck by a bolt from a clear sea, as it were, and in some minutes, all too terribly few, she was no more. The German Embassy at Washington declares that "as the Lusitania carried guns and ammunition" the Germans had the right to sink her without warning. Had such been actually the case it could only be a people with the mercilessness of the Germans that would have exercised that right to the letter; but we have it on the authority of the British Admiralty itself that the Lusitania did not mount guns nor was she carrying ammunition of any kind. Thus, viewed in any light, the incident resolves itself into cold-blooded, premeditated murder.

ON THE REGULAR ROUTE.

As to how the Lusitania came to run right into the German submarine waiting for her we do not know. It is understood that all important vessels trading to and from the ports of the United Kingdom receive advices from the Admiralty when it is prudent that they should depart from their regular courses. In this case the Lusitania was on her ordinary route—and the intention of the German threats were dismissed as unworthy of consideration, or that the speed of the liner was relied upon to get her out of any trouble. The captain himself declared in New York before sailing that he had no fear of enemy submarines as he was "too fast for them." But the fact that a submarine might simply lie in wait for him, and that, if good luck brought him within close call, his huge vessel would offer a particularly easy target for skilful torpedoers, seems to have been overlooked. The question is being raised as to the provision of escorts for important liners when nearing the Irish and English coasts; and, although it must be admitted that the German attacks upon mercantile shipping must in no way be allowed to interfere with the normal carrying out of the Admiralty's plans, still, it does seem a little curious—after the event, of course—that not even a single destroyer was sent out to convoy in a great liner which had been threatened, and was following the beaten track. As to these things, however, we will probably receive some enlightenment in the course of the next few days.

GERMAN JUBILATION.

In the meantime Germany is in transports of delight—over having committed the biggest sea murder in history. Being what she is, it is a record of which she must needs be proud. But she finds food for pride in it otherwise. Her papers claim the sinking of the Lusitania as the logical answer to the destruction of her squadron of warships off the Falkland Islands, and her people have almost buried the Minister for the Navy under a snowstorm of telegrams congratulating him on the victory. This constitutes one of the most astounding commentaries upon the German character of which we have a record. They have a fleet of which they were wont to speak vaingloriously as the instrument with which they were going to sweep the British from the seas; but ever since the war opened their battle squadrons have not dared show themselves outside their ports—and when a lurking submarine manages to sink an unarmed liner crowded with non-combatants they overwhelm their naval Minister with congratulations! The fact that the sinking of the Lusitania has not a vestige of bearing upon the naval position seems to be quite beyond their purview; the only thing that counts is that the brave German sailors have sent hundreds of people to their doom. Those people were not fighting the brave sailors, but that does not matter—they were killed. It resolves itself into a maniacal blood-lust, pure and simple. And the pitiful part of the whole business is that British bluejackets have actually risked their lives on a dozen occasions to rescue from drowning the brothers in arms of the very men who steamed away and left scores of helpless women and children to drown as the Lusitania disappeared.

OTHERS CONCERNED.

A cablegram from Berlin states that the general impression there is that "England has got what she deserves." This is, of course, in keeping with the attitude indicated above, and again emphasises the fact that the Germans regard the sinking of a liner as a great warlike feat which means a serious blow to the enemy. They cannot realise that the British Empire has not suffered in any way by the murder. A large number of civilians have suffered, and many thousands more will experience deep pangs of sorrow for them in their affliction; but the nation itself is not affected. Above all its fighting value, one of the factors working for the final crushing of Germany, has not been lessened one iota—it has probably been sensibly increased because of the anger the great crime has aroused. But Britain is not the only nation concerned in the affair. We have lost a large number of civilians, just as we have already lost a number of others, and will probably lose more as the war goes on; but there were not a few United States citizens aboard the Lusitania, and the wanton murder of such neutrals was certainly not part of "what England deserved." As to what the outcome of this particular phase of the matter may be we cannot say. But a great wave of indignation has swept over America, and the President will surely have some difficulty in calming down the outraged people. That he will strive his utmost to allay the present passion and emerge from the chances without war is certain; and the chances are that he will be successful. The Allies, as we have often pointed out, would rather the United States remained neutral than that she should enter the war on their side. They are making far more use of her now than they could make of what military and naval forces she could throw into the scale. Whether the people of the United States will later on fully appreciate the part they are playing in the great world-struggle is of no particular concern to the Allies. The latter are to-day deeply sympathising with President Wilson in the difficult position in which he finds himself, and are praying most earnestly that his pacificatory efforts among his own people will meet with complete success.

DARDANELLES.

Australians' Heroic Work

HOLDING FIRM.

THRILLING NARRATIVES.

How the Australians who landed on the Gallipoli peninsula held their ground is related in a further narrative by Mr. Ashmead Bartlett.

Every man knew that the only hope of safety lay in victory, as it would have been impossible to re-embark had they lost their positions.

The Colonials proved an exception to the rule that troops under fire feel their early losses keenly, and fought with great determination.

An improvised township is springing up behind where the troops have dug themselves in.

The Australians are extraordinarily good under fire, and one of the strangest sights was to see several bathing in the sea with shrapnel bursting around them.

Turkish snipers are the main source of trouble at present. The opinion is expressed that all the Turks in Thrace and Gallipoli could never turn the Australasians out.

The latest Australasian casualty lists contain the names of 18 killed, bringing the total number of deaths to 160.

AUSTRALASIANS.

POSITIONS ESTABLISHED.

MR. BARTLETT'S STORY.

LONDON, May 8.

Continuing his narrative of the work of the Australasian troops at the Dardanelles, Mr. Ashmead Bartlett writes:—Throughout the night of the 26th the Turks harassed our lines by creeping up and endeavouring to snipe the Australasians in their sheltered trenches, but never daring to press home the attack, although they were present in overwhelming numbers. The Turks paid dearly for their temerity. One section of the New Zealanders charged them with the bayonet, and drove them off in disorder.

It was obvious on the morning of April 27 that the Turks had not recovered from the terrible hammering they received on the 25th, and they had no stomach for another big attack. The entrenchments were now firmly established in a semicircle in front of the whole foreshore, which was being used for the disembarkation of troops, supplies, guns, and ammunition. The Colonials' position had also been immeasurably improved by the landing of field guns and several Indian mountain batteries.

The Turks evidently intended to drive the Australasians into the sea on the 25th by great concentration of infantry and unceasing shrapnel fire, expecting to find the line thinly held by men exhausted by losses and the exertion during landing. They were soon disillusioned. These Australians were determined to die to a man rather than surrender the ground so dearly won. Every man knew that his only hope for safety lay in victory, as it would be impossible to re-embark an army once the ring of hills commanding the beach was lost.

KEEN, DESPITE LOSSES.

Most troops when under fire for the first time, especially volunteers with only a few months' training, keenly feel losses if they occur before there is time to settle down, but these Colonials were the exception to the rule.

Despite heavy losses the survivors were as keen as ever. The enemy throughout the 27th resorted to new tactics in the hope of driving the Colonials off the shore and preventing supplies and reinforcements reaching the beach. The enemy on the night of the [illegible] brought up many field guns, with which they opened a tremendous bombardment on the foreshores and the sea. They kept up an incessant rain of shrapnel. The Turkish trenches could no longer enfilade the beach, as every attempt to place the guns was immediately checkmated by a few well-aimed salvos from the warships. The Turkish gunners tried to put a great curtain of shrapnel over the sea, between the warships and the transports and the shore. It was an amazing sight to see scores of shells bursting and churning up the water like a great hailstorm.

Some of the shells fell far out, others made a great danger zone, through which boats and trawlers had to pass. This hail of lead made not the slightest difference to the gallant crews in pinnaces, boats, lighters, and tugs, who took as much notice as if it were a tropical thunderstorm. The spectacular effect of the bombardment was magnificent, but the damage practically nil.

WARSHIPS' WORK.

The warships throughout the 27th incessantly fired on any of the enemy's infantry attempting to advance. Hydroplanes did excellent work, directing the fire on the guns inland. The ships' indirect firing, daily becoming more efficient, was now so accurate that nothing could live, provided the target was accurately spotted. The Turks frequently fire heavy guns from the other side of the peninsula, hoping to hole the transports, but have not yet succeeded.

If a Turkish warship in the Straits makes an attempt a salvo from the Allies' ships speedily forces her to fly up the Channel.

The scene ashore is one of the intensest activity. One lands in an avalanche of shrapnel, and finds regiments waiting on the beach before moving to the trenches, fatigue parties unloading boats and lighters, mule trains endeavouring to drag field guns into position, Indians conveying mountain guns, dressing stations tending the wounded, and telegraph and telephone units laying wires. Meanwhile the landing parties from the warships have been busy building bomb-proof shelters.

Thousands of hardy New Zealanders and Australians are concentrated on the narrow shore, each engaged in some occupation, for as soon as the men leave the front trenches they are required for fatigue duty. Few have had more than a few hours' sleep for days past. Generals and staff officers fare no better than the men.

GENERAL BIRDWOOD'S PRAISE.

General Birdwood told Mr. Bartlett that he couldn't sufficiently praise the courage, endurance, and soldierly qualities of the Colonials. The manner in which they hung on to the position day and night was magnificent considering the heavy losses, the shortage of water, and the incessant shrapnel to which they were exposed coverless, also the enemy's incessant infantry attacks. After they retired to the contracted line the Colonials set their teeth and refused to budge a foot.

These Colonials are extraordinarily good under fire, often exposing themselves rather than take the trouble to keep under shelter of the cliff. One of the strangest sights was to see numbers bathing in the sea, with shrapnel bursting all round them. This Colonial colony is assuming a definite form, the whole face of the cliff being cut into roads, dug-outs, and bomb-proof shelters. An improvised township is springing up as the troops slowly dig themselves in and make themselves comfortable. We are holding a semi-circular position.

TROUBLESOME SNIPERS.

The trenches are well made, providing ample cover, but the slightest exposure has the almost certain result of a hit from a bullet.

This incessant sniping greatly puzzles the men in the trenches, and is the great problem at present, apparently even when an advance post has been thrown out, the enemy's sharpshooters remain behind and snipe the unwary.

Volunteers venture nightly in order to hunt the snipers, but so far have been unable to keep them under.

The cheerfulness of the men in the trenches is most marked. They feel they have overcome the initial difficulties and paved the way to success. They now occupy such a position and are so thoroughly entrenched that all the Turks in Thrace and Gallipoli will never turn them out.

ASIATIC SHORE.

WORK OF THE FRENCH.

TURKS SUFFER HEAVILY.

PARIS, May 7.

It is officially stated that a regiment of Colonial infantry, on April 25, with a battery of seventy-fives, which had been ordered to create a diversion on the Asiatic shore of the Dardanelles, landed at Kum Kalessi, under the protection of the guns of the French warships. The disembarkation was carried out under good conditions.

The force marched on Yeni Shehr, where a fierce fight began that night, and was continued on the following day. The Turks, who were in greatly superior numbers, suffered heavily. Five hundred were taken prisoners.

The re-embarkation of the troops was effected on the night of April 26, with the support of the warships.

Meanwhile, large forces had been landed on the position.

ALLIES' FLEET.

CONTINUED BOMBARDMENT.

ATHENS, May 8.

Mitylene reports state that the Allied fleet is bombarding the last line of defence, especially Nagara.

A German aeroplane bombarded the Allies on the peninsula, doing insignificant damage.

The Allies are bombarding Smyrna.

MR. ASQUITH'S SON WOUNDED.

LONDON, May 7.

Mr. Asquith's son has been severely injured in action in the Dardanelles.

BRITISH LANDING.

SANGUINARY FIGHTING.

COUNTLESS BRAVE DEEDS.

A Reuter message states that the British landing at Seddul Bahr was of the bloodiest character. The enemy's position was particularly strong, the beaches being flanked by a fort on the right, and a high cliff on the left. The landing parties encountered a terrific fire, and ran the gauntlet for two hundred yards. The survivors entrenched in the sand, and remained so the rest of the day.

Countless deeds of the utmost bravery were done by the men bringing the wounded struggling in the water across the beach into shelter. Soon hundreds of wounded were lying at one point.

Another party landed on the eastern end of Seddul Bahr, and struggled up the cliff into a village, which was a jumble of broken gaping walls, and which afforded shelter to Turkish riflemen. The British were compelled to withdraw.

Meanwhile, a force landed at Helles, carried the wire entanglements at the bayonet's point, and stormed the promontory. A magnificent infantry fight at the top of the plateau lasted till nightfall, when the British reached the old fort on the ridge behind Seddul Bahr Beach. The remainder landed after dark, and the enemy at midnight opened a terrific but harmless fire on the ships, whose guns all day had kept down the batteries' fire.

The British shattered a strong attack during the night on the ridge above the beach at Cape Helles. At daybreak we occupied the whole seaward edge of the plateau. The British displayed the utmost coolness throughout, and overcame an awkward series of wire fences. The infantry on the crest advanced along the ridge, and the troops on the beach stormed the long hill, joined their comrades on the ridge, and captured Seddul Bahr, also the trenches at the top of the ridge. Many of the enemy's dead, killed by the ships' fire, were found in the trenches.

The French landed in the night, and joined the British on the ridge.

STARTLING RUMOUR.

"GALLANT LADS."

SENATOR PEARCE'S WORDS.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

At Victoria Barracks yesterday a Red Cross ambulance of the latest Berliet type, valued at £515, was presented to the Defence Department for use at the war by merchants, employers, and employees in the carriage building trade.

The ambulance was received by the Minister for Defence, Senator Pearce, who, in returning thanks, said it was a magnificent gift, and would be of considerable service at the war.

No doubt they had all read in the newspapers of the gallant doings of the lads from Australia. (Hear, hear.) Everyone realised that they had distinguished themselves during the last fortnight in face of terrible odds. (Cheers.) He, personally, was very proud of them. They had faced great difficulties in having landed on an unknown coast, confronted by unknown numbers and dangers. Not only did they hold their ground, but they vastly improved their position in the most courageous, determined, and distinguished fashion. (Cheers.) Their deeds would live for ever in the history of the Empire. Unfortunately, already, many fine lads had died in the performance of their duties, but their gallantry would be cherished in the memory of Australians.

WOUNDED RETURNING.

HOME BEING SOUGHT.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

As a result of the Dardanelles engagement the Defence Department anticipate receiving a large number of wounded men in Australia. To provide accommodation for them the Minister of Defence is seeking to hire or borrow a large house and grounds in or near Melbourne.

BAPTISM OF FIRE.

In the course of his sermon at St. John's, C.E., Glebe, last evening, the rector (Canon Cranswick) referred to the part which Australia is taking in the war. He said:—"Have not our hearts been stirred with emotion and thrilled with pride at the news from the front during the last few days? At first we heard of the brave deeds and dauntless courage of the Canadians, and now our own Australians have had their baptism of fire, and have maintained the highest traditions of the British army for daring, endurance, and resourcefulness under the most trying conditions."

A WORD FOR SHIRKERS.

At a special service held in the Lyceum yesterday in celebration of the 31st anniversary of the Central Methodist Mission, the Rev. Henry Howard, of Adelaide, said:—"Everyone has been reading of the recent fighting in the Dardanelles, where our brave lads have proved themselves worthy of the heritage bequeathed them, for which their ancestors died. Whether they perish by bullet or bayonet or succumb to disease; whether they return scarred and maimed, or safe and sound, they will have made the sacrifice that transfigures even the most commonplace life and wreathes it with deathless glory. But the brighter the glory that gathers round the names of the country's heroes, the blacker is made the selfishness of those who hear, without responding, to the Empire's call."

DURATION OF WAR.

FRENCH MINISTER'S HINT.

PARIS, May 7.

M. Ribot, Minister for Finance, in the Chamber of Deputies said that French war expenses for April were between 56 and 60 millions sterling. France was giving Great Britain 500 million francs in gold, for which England would open a credit of three times as much for goods bought within the Empire.

In order to prevent any outrageous rise in the prices of war goods, a single delegate would do all the buying in foreign countries for the British, Russian, and French war offices.

He only asked the Chamber to vote a credit for three months, though six months' credit was voted on the last occasion. He was able to state that certain things were in preparation which would have a considerable bearing upon the duration of the war.

"But whatever is the duration of the war," concluded M. Ribot, "we have sworn to bring it to a logical end. With the help of our allies we will go the whole way."

LUSITANIA

TORPEDOED OFF IRISH COAST.

Sinks in Fifteen Minutes.

FIFTEEN HUNDRED LIVES LOST.

The mammoth Cunard liner Lusitania, of 30,396 tons, was torpedoed by Germans off the Irish Coast on Friday afternoon last.

The liner sank in fifteen minutes, and took to their deaths 1500 people, including many prominent Englishmen and Americans.

The vessel was apparently struck by two torpedoes, many passengers being injured by the explosion.

Great indignation has been expressed in both America and England at this latest outrage on the part of the Germans.

THE DISASTER.

A SUDDEN ATTACK.

LONDON, May 7, 6.40 p.m.

The Cunard S.S. Company's steamer Lusitania, 30,396 tons, was torpedoed by the Germans and sunk this afternoon.

The Lusitania was carrying 1300 passengers when she was torpedoed and sunk off Kinsale Head, County Cork, Ireland.

The Cunard Company state that a submarine sank the Lusitania off Old Head of Kinsale at 2.30 p.m.

No warning was given prior to the vessel being torpedoed.

NEW YORK, May 7.

A despatch printed here stated that the Lusitania had been beached, and that the passengers and crew were safe.

A later message, however, said that fears were expressed that all the passengers were not safe. One account said that the vessel sank in 21 minutes after being struck.

Three hundred passengers have been landed at Clanakiltz.

After the vessel was torpedoed she sent out the following wireless message: "Come at once; big list; position ten miles south of Kinsale."

LONDON, May 7.

The Cunard Company state that they had great hopes that many lives would be saved. A boat-load of survivors was being towed to Kinsale.

The Lusitania was not warned of the submarine's intentions, but her boats were swung out as a precaution.

Twenty of the Lusitania's boats and sixteen other boats were on the scene soon after the vessel was torpedoed.

SUNK IN BROAD DAYLIGHT.

LONDON, May 8.

At the time of the outrage it was perfect weather, there being a hot sun and a gentle southerly breeze. Captain W. T. Turner, who began as a cabin boy forty years ago, has commanded most of the large Cunarders, and was soon to be given command of the Aquitania. According to the best available information, the vessel was torpedoed about 2 o'clock. The signalmen at Kinsale Head observed the liner in difficulties at 2.12 p.m. Apparently the first wireless for help was picked up at Queenstown three minutes later, and Kinsale reported at 2.35 p.m. that the vessel disappeared. Twenty boats were counted on the scene immediately after. All the Lusitania's boats were capable of carrying fifty to sixty each. It is known that the liner carried more than sufficient boats to accommodate the passengers and crew.

RESCUE WORK.

SURVIVORS LANDED.

ESTIMATE OF SAVED.

LONDON, May 8.

Admiral Coke ordered four naval vessels and all available tugs, trawlers, and lifeboats from Queenstown. Help was summoned from all the neighbouring stations. Many motor boats were prominent in the rescue work. A Greek steamer was among the first on the scene, and towed boats harbourwards. A motor boat rescued fifty, who were transferred to the Admiralty tug Stormcock, and returned and towed several boats. Soon a fleet of the Lusitania's boats slowly moved shorewards. A fleet of motors despatched from Cork met the survivors. The wounded were soon placed in the hospital, where several died.

The survivors landing at various ports caused confusion in the estimates of the rescued. The American Embassy reports that half the passengers were saved.

NUMBER OF DEATHS OCCUR.

The survivors are being landed at Queenstown. Included amongst them are a number of injured.

A later message states that between five hundred and six hundred passengers have been landed at Queenstown. Among them were several people who had died of their injuries. Other survivors have been landed at Kinsale. The number is unknown.

The first and second officers and sixty-seven of the crew, including four stewardesses, were saved.

Five boats reached Queenstown late on Friday night. There were pitiable scenes among the barefooted men and women, who were thinly clad, and soaked with seawater. A Greek lady, an expert swimmer, swam a long time before she was rescued.

900 BRITISH ABOARD.

The Press Bureau states that there were 179 first-class British passengers and 725 other Britishers aboard. Immediately the Lusitania struck she took a heavy list, and those who made to the port side had very little chance. The first-class passengers were lunching at the time of the disaster. All survivors are in a pitiable condition.

ADMIRALTY ANNOUNCEMENT.

A woman who was saved visited the Queenstown quays early in the morning to learn if her husband and children were saved.

Forty-five more were landed at Queenstown from a drifter. The Admiralty announce little hope of more survivors.

SURVIVORS' STORIES.

NO PANIC.

Survivors state that when the vessel was torpedoed there was a great crash. Husbands, wives and children separated in the first confusion; but there was no panic. All quickly recovered self-possession. The liner shivered from stem to stern. There was no chance of making shoreward, and the vessel settled immediately. The list was so great that passengers feared a capsize. It was impossible to launch the port boats. The women and children were placed in the boats first.

TWO TORPEDOES.

Mr. Cowper, a Toronto journalist on the Lusitania, caught a glimpse of a conning-tower a thousand yards distant, and then noticed the track of a torpedo. The Lusitania was struck forward with a loud explosion. Portions of the splintered hull were sent flying into the air. A few seconds later another torpedo struck her. The crew immediately got the passengers into the boats. Everything was done orderly. Some of the boats which could not be launched had to be cut away, as the vessel was sinking. A large number of women were in the second-class, and about 40 babies.

SUNK IN FIFTEEN MINUTES.

Mr. D. A. Thomas states that Lady Mackworth was picked up unconscious after being in the water three and a half hours, and recovered.

The Lusitania was torpedoed fifteen miles offshore, and sank in fifteen minutes. She headed shorewards after being struck. He only heard one torpedo. The captain remained on the bridge till the last, and went down the vessel's side with a lifebelt, which kept him afloat for three hours till rescued.

THE FINAL PLUNGE.

Many of the passengers were stupefied by the fumes of the torpedo.

Before the vessel made her final plunge the stern rose high in the air for several minutes. Stoker Tonner, who escaped from the wreck of the Titanic, states that the torpedo went right through the engine-room. A few moments later the vessel was torpedoed on the port side, suggesting that two submarines had been lying in wait.

ONLY 658 SURVIVORS.

The Press Bureau states that there are 658 survivors out of 2160 passengers, nearly all in the first-class. Of the first-class travellers 106 Americans perished, thinking the ship would float. The ship sank in less than thirty minutes. 145 bodies have been recovered.

CAPTAIN SAVED.

5.20 a.m.

Captain Turner was saved, but nearly all the officers perished. Twenty-two rescued passengers died.

FIRST-CLASS PASSENGERS SUFFER.

The Admiralty announces that only 658 on the Lusitania were saved. Only a few in the first class made an effort to escape, the others believing that the steamer would remain afloat.

UNOFFICIAL ESTIMATES.

2.50 a.m.

Eleven survivors have reached Kinsale; others are scattered along the coast. Unofficial reports state that 750 were saved. The survivors state that there were two torpedoes.

LONDON, May 8, 4.50 a.m.

It is unofficially estimated in Dublin that a thousand lives were lost.

THE PASSENGERS.

MANY PROMINENT PEOPLE INCLUDED.

NEW YORK, May 7, 10.10 p.m.

The steamer carried 290 first-class passengers, 662 in the second-class, and 361 in the third-class. The crew totalled 665 all told.

The passengers included Charles Frohman, the well-known theatrical manager, and Mr. Hugh Lane, who has just offered Mr. John S. Sargeant, R.A., £10,000 for the benefit of the Red Cross Fund if he would accept a commission to paint his portrait. Mr. Sargeant accepted the record price.

It is believed that Mr. Hearst, proprietor of several pro-German newspapers, was on board the Lusitania. Mr. Alfred Vanderbilt was also on board.

LONDON, May 8.

The missing include Elbert Hubbard, author, and his wife, also the whole of a theatrical company recently touring with the play, "A Pair of Silk Stockings."

NEW YORK, May 8.

Americans aboard the Lusitania include Messrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, Charles Bowring, Elbert Hubbard. The English include Mr. D. A. Thomas, the Welsh Coal King, Lady Mackworth, the Rev. Basil Maturin.

Mr. Vanderbilt received a letter of warning before the Lusitania sailed, but disregarded it.

The Lusitania's list includes Mr. F. Lassetter and Mrs. H. B. Lassetter.

11.20 a.m.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Lassetter were saved.

The passengers included Mr. Stackhouse, the explorer, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Mackay, of Auckland; Charles Klein, playwright; Justus Miles Foreman, author. The boat carried 187 American passengers.

EX NIAGARA'S PASSENGERS.

The following names on the Niagara's list appear on the Lusitania's list:—

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Learoyd,
Mr. W. Bailey,
Mr., Mrs., Miss, and Master Neville,
T. Sutherst.
G. H. Turton,
Mrs. Wickham.

The survivors include Mrs. Learoyd's maid.

NEW YORK DEPRESSED.

NEW YORK, May 8.

Enormous crowds awaited the latest bulletins outside the Cunard offices. There is much depression throughout the city.

The American liner Philadelphia, however, departed for Europe with her cabins full.

UNITED STATES.

NO CHANCE OF WAR.

VIEW OF SENATORS.

GREAT PUBLIC INDIGNATION.

WASHINGTON, May 8.

Senators closely in touch with President Wilson assert that there is no chance of the United States making war on Germany. One reason is that the United States is unable to despatch an army to Europe, and another that the United States navy would find nothing to do, owing to the British bottling up the German fleet.

Senator Borah asserted that when Americans were killed and robbed in Mexico the United States regarded it calmly. They were unlikely, therefore, to do anything in the face of a similar occurrence as regards the Lusitania.

Mr. Gerard (United States Ambassador in Berlin) has been instructed to inquire if Germany is responsible for the Lusitania's loss, together with the loss of Americans aboard. If so, details are wanted.

The State Department, however, admitted that a tremendous sensation would be caused throughout the United States if any American lives were lost.

It is understood that there were 600 Americans on board.

Public indignation is growing in intensity, and extra police protection has been placed around the German and Austrian Embassies.

Count von Bernstorff announces that if the Lusitania was disarmed before her destruction Germany was not advised of the fact.

Count von Bernstorff hid in his hotel, and guards were placed before the door.

When informed that the Lusitania had been sunk, President Wilson refused to make any comment.

GRAVE SITUATION.

NEW YORK, May 8.

Washington has asked Berlin for a report on the loss of the Lusitania, based on the statement by the submarine commander.

Despite President Wilson's appeal for coolness, high officials declare the situation to be very grave.

BITTER COMMENTS.

PEOPLE EXASPERATED.

GOVERNMENT'S SUPINENESS.

Public opinion in the United States is rapidly reaching the pitch of exasperation. The press comments in the bitterest terms on the Government's supineness in the face of an appalling disaster. President Wilson hopes the country will remain calm, but there are indications of a growing outburst against the Germans.

There is a disposition among high officials to await the British Admiralty's report on the Lusitania affair. One official at Washington was told positively on Friday morning that the Lusitania's destruction was fixed for that day.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S VIEW.

VAST SCALE OF MURDER.

Mr. Roosevelt says that the torpedoing of the Lusitania represents piracy on a vaster scale of murder than any old-time pirate ever practised. "It seems inconceivable," he added, "that we refrain from action. We owe it both to humanity and to our national self-respect."

GERMAN INHUMANITY.

SCATHING PRESS OPINIONS.

The "New York Herald" describes the torpedoing of the Lusitania as a cold-blooded, premeditated outrage.

"The warning letters and telegrams revealing that Germany contemplated this high-handed and bloody act reveal," says the "Herald," "a callousness that makes one turn sickened as from a world of wholesale human butchers of medieval days."

The article prays that a way out may be found for the United States with dignity and honour, without bloodshed.

The "Times," in an article headed, "War by Assassination," says: "In the history of war no single deed is comparable in inhumanity with this horror. Germany has fallen within the scope of President Wilson's admonition. There must be a further communication to Germany, and something more than protest, and we hope the notice we are compelled to take will recall the Germans to a sense of reason."

The "World" says: "The Germans in extenuation claim that fair warning was given. Yet murder does not become innocent and innocuous because the victim is warned, and he persists in exercising his lawful right. No single act of war has an outraged American opinion and so riddled Germany's prestige. Decades will pass before Germany will live down her criminal record."

The New York "Tribune" says that the nation which remembered the Maine will not forget the Lusitania.

The Bishop of London cabled to the New York "Tribune" that the sinking of the Lusitania is a colossal crime, staining the reputation of its perpetrators for ever.

ACTION DEMANDED.

EMBASSY'S WARNING.

The press demands that the United States shall take immediate steps to safeguard the lives of citizens travelling abroad, pointing out that the United States never recognised the war zone around Britain.

The press refers to the German Embassy's warning to passengers by the Lusitania to refrain from making the voyage as evidence of a plot to sink the Lusitania, which was known to Germans weeks ahead. The German Embassy announced that as the Lusitania carried arms and ammunition, therefore it was unnecessary to give warning before the attack.

The British Embassy announced that the Lusitania carried no ammunition, otherwise she might have been interned in American waters as a warship.

GERMAN-AMERICANS.

WANT JUSTIFICATION.

LONDON, May 8.

The Marconi Company has intercepted a German wireless from the "New York World" to Herr Ballin, the shipping magnate, which reads:—"Believe message from you on the justification of the destruction of the Lusitania would be welcomed by millions of German-Americans. Your reply would be of incalculable benefit to Germany in this crisis."

WORLD SHOCKED.

BRITISH NOT INTIMIDATED.

OTTAWA, May 8.

Mr. George Foster, Acting-Premier of Canada, said: "The act of the Germans in sinking the Lusitania is the act of fiends, contravening all the usages of war. In the worst days of piracy pirates would have scorned such a deed. No doubt the plot was carefully planned. Such villainy shocked the world.

"The British people," he added, "refused to be intimidated by such outrages, but neutral nations must now see exactly how the Germans were outlaws among nations. Only one field was left to the German war lords to exploit, namely, private assassination. Doubtless this soon would be entered upon."

CRIME CONDEMNED.

NEUTRALS SPEAK OUT.

LONDON, May 9.

The French, Dutch, and Danish newspapers outspokenly denounce the callous warfare against humanity.

The "Journal des Debats" asks whether Germany is not seeking to set the whole world against her, with a view to finding an excuse for her inevitable capitulation.

Swedish papers express unanimous condemnation, and even the Germanophile organ, "Nya Dagligt Allehanda," stigmatises the sinking of a great liner simply because it was British as an unpardonable crime which will evoke a cry of horror and indignation throughout the civilised world.

The Norwegian papers express detestation of the crime. The "Morgenblad" says the Germans meant to terrify. They have terrified their friends, and terror breeds hate. German trade will feel this keenly, especially in America, when the war is over.

GERMAN EXCUSE.

WAR MUNITIONS ON LINER.

VON TIRPITZ CONGRATULATED

AMSTERDAM, May 8.

The "Cologne Gazette," deprecating the drowning of non-combatants, says England doubtless will make a terrible cry about so-called barbarous warfare, but will say nothing about the great quantity of war material for the Allies aboard the Lusitania. Moreover, two 12-centimetre guns were mounted on the vessel.

A Berlin telegram states that Admiral von Tirpitz has received hundreds of telegrams congratulating him on his success.

The German newspapers regard the sinking of the Lusitania as Germany's answer to the destruction of Admiral von Spee's squadron. They say nothing about the deaths of Americans. Some hint that if any of the latter are lost Germany will be only to glad to compensate their relatives.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

COPENHAGEN, May 9.

An official statement issued from Berlin says: "As soon as the Government learned that the Lusitania was carrying such extensive contraband, which would give the Allies sufficient material for several weeks, it was resolved to torpedo the vessel, as all other considerations must yield to the safety of German soldiers. It is hoped that she was torpedoed where the rescue of the passengers was possible."

Berlin publishes a telegram printed in colossal type regarding the Lusitania's loss. Germans regard the use of the torpedo as a new triumph of German naval policy. The general impression is that England has got what she deserves.

GREAT JOY.

IN GERMANY AND AUSTRIA.

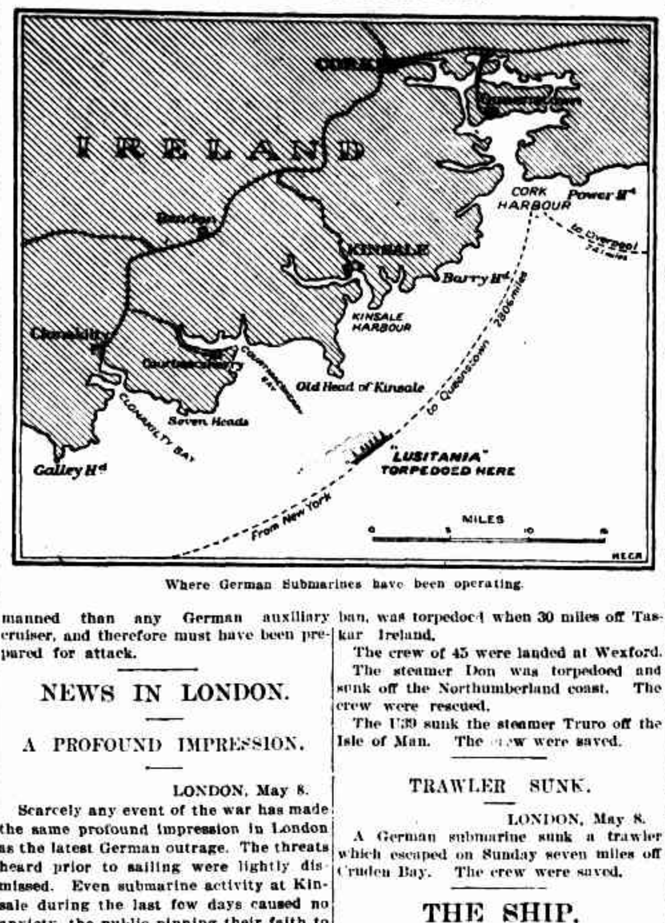
BERNE, May 9.

The sinking of the Lusitania was welcomed with great joy in Germany and Austria. The Rhine towns were beflagged. It is stated that the German Emperor has ordered that school children shall have a half-holiday.

The majority of German papers do not express regret at the act of piracy, nor mention the danger to women and children. They add that as the Americans were forewarned of the risks of the voyage, they must bear the consequences of war conditions.

The "Berliner Tageblatt" says the Lusitania was an auxiliary cruiser, with more strongly-mounted guns and more strongly manned than any German auxiliary cruiser, and therefore must have been prepared for attack.

SCENE OF CATASTROPHE.



Where German Submarines have been operating.

NEWS IN LONDON.

A PROFOUND IMPRESSION.

LONDON, May 8.

Scarcely any event of the war has made the same profound impression in London as the latest German outrage. The threats heard prior to sailing were lightly dismissed. Even submarine activity at Kinsale during the last few days caused no anxiety, the public pinning their faith to the liner's speed. Official confirmation of the first rumours produced a shock. Most people were unable to realise that a great disaster had happened. The absence of information deepened anxiety. Distressed inquirers besieged the Cunard offices, including many Americans. There were heartrending scenes as the officials were some hours without information. A lady fainted at the counter whilst asking for news of her brother and sister. Crowds in Cockspur-street increased hourly, the offices remaining open all night.

VESSEL UNARMED.

LONDON, May 8.

The Admiralty denies the statement that the Lusitania carried guns.

A Mansion House fund has been opened.

ANGRY BROKERS.

LONDON, May 8.

Violent hostility is being shown towards German members of the Stock Exchange. Several were thrown out of the building.

ABSENCE OF ESCORTS.

LONDON, May 8.

Some complaints have been heard about the absence of armed escorts for large liners approaching the coast.

ATTACK UNEXPECTED.

CHILDREN DASHED TO DEATH.

MESSRS. VANDERBILT AND FROHMAN DEAD.

LONDON, May 9.

The voyage was pleasant and uneventful. Nobody believed that Germany dare outrage civilisation by the destruction of a liner full of non-combatants and of many citizens of nations wherewith Germany was at peace. After passing Fastness the Lusitania slowed down, and the boats were swung out as a precaution. A sharp look-out was kept, and full speed was ordered off Kinsale.

The first torpedo entered the stokehold, causing a terrific explosion. It was followed by a second torpedo, which sent great columns of water and huge quantities of wood and splinters on deck. Boats containing thirty passengers tilted into the sea owing to the rope sticking. Altogether ten boats were successfully launched.

Mr. A. G. Vanderbilt is considered dead, and Mr. C. Frohman's body has been recovered. Mr. F. S. Pearson, the American financier, perished.

The survivors, while in boats, saw the submarine's periscope after the Lusitania foundered.

Mr. F. Gauntlett, of Washington, on being interviewed, said he quitted a boat which was being lowered, and swam to a piece of wreckage. This proved to be a collapsible boat. He ripped it open with a knife, and, together with another passenger, entered it, and both were enabled to rescue 30 people, who were struggling in the water. He noticed a cluster of women and children, under the men's protection, on the Lusitania's port side, and, as the vessel plunged the little army slid down to the starboard side, dashing against each other until engulfed.

GERMAN WARNING.

LONDON, May 7.

When leaving New York the captain of the Lusitania laughed at the German threats. Replying to them he said: "We are too fast for them."

A New York cablegram dated May 1 read:—Fifty anonymous telegrams were received by wealthy Americans aboard the Lusitania when she was on the point of sailing, warning them that the liner would be torpedoed. The relatives of passengers besieged the landing stages, begging their friends to abandon the voyage. The majority, however, departed. Foreigners stationed around the docks passed the word, "Death accompanies the Lusitania on this voyage." Almost a panic was created.

VESSEL'S CARGO.

VANCOUVER, May 7.

The Lusitania's cargo was valued at £150,000.

SUBMARINES.

MORE STEAMERS SUNK.

LONDON, May 8.

A submarine sank the steamer Candidate in the Irish Sea without warning.

One boat was swamped, but the Germans did not offer to help save the crew. All, however, were saved.

The steamer Centurion, bound for Durban, was torpedoed when 30 miles off Taskar Ireland.

The crew of 45 were landed at Wexford.

The steamer Don was torpedoed and sunk off the Northumberland coast. The crew were rescued.

The U39 sunk the steamer Truro off the Isle of Man. The crew were saved.

TRAWLER SUNK.

LONDON, May 8.

A German submarine sunk a trawler which escaped on Sunday seven miles off Cruden Bay. The crew were saved.

THE SHIP.

A FLOATING PALACE.

The Lusitania was one of the famous fleet of trans-Atlantic greyhounds, her gross tonnage being 30,396 tons. When she sailed on her maiden voyage on September 7, 1907, she was the largest and fastest liner afloat.

The Lusitania, like the Mauretania, her sister ship, and the 46,000-tonner Aquitania, of the same line, was a floating palace, fitted with all the luxurious appointments and modern improvements which the wealthy class of passengers on this most important trans-Atlantic service demand.

The dimensions of this leviathan were as follows:—Length, 790ft; breadth, 88ft, depth to boat deck, 80ft; draught (fully loaded), 37ft 6in; displacement on load draught, 45,000 tons; horse-power of turbine engines, 68,000; height to top of funnels, 155ft; height to mastheads, 216ft.

With her passenger accommodation fully taken up, and her full complement of officers and men on board, the Lusitania was a floating city, with a population of about 3200 people. Her first-class accommodation provided for 500, second-class for 500, and the third-class for 1300 passengers, while the crew numbered 827.

The Lusitania had four screws and four funnels, and no fewer than 27,000 plates were used in her structure, these being fastened together with 4,000,000 rivets. The accommodation for passengers was on an elaborate scale, the promenade decks being a feature. These covered an area of one and a half acres.

The Lusitania cost £1,250,000.

"A DASTARDLY ACT."

The Rev. Stanley Best, rector of St. Mary's C.E., Balmain East, in the course of a sermon yesterday, said it was a dastardly act, the sinking and sending to ruin a magnificent ship, and the sacrificing at a moment's notice of lives of hundreds of innocent people, who had never done any harm. "That is not war," said the preacher, "the Germans have resorted to such so-called culture, that I thank God their methods are unknown to the British race. Thank God, we do not think, as the Germans do, that might is right. The sinking of the Lusitania is awful to think about, and I cannot understand how America is going to keep out of the war now. President Wilson hates the thought and the sight of war, but I do not see how he can allow hundreds of his fellow citizens to be killed without taking decisive action. I lived in the United States for three years, and I knew the people there pretty well, and I am satisfied that they would not stand by and do nothing, when on top of the vile deeds the Germans have been doing, is added the sinking of a magnificent ship, with hundreds of their countrymen on board. This doctrine of hate of the Germans is against all ideas of progress and brotherhood."

THE PASSENGERS.

MR. A. G. VANDERBILT.

Mr. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, although an American by birth, passed the greater part of the past ten years in London, where he was very popular as a sportsman and entertainer. His residence, Gloucester House, in London's most fashionable thoroughfare—Park-lane—was the resort of diplomats, statesmen, and famous sporting identities.

He will be best remembered in England as one of the biggest and most successful exhibitors of high-legged horses at the International Horse Show, which takes place each June at Olympia, West Kensington, between the Epsom and Ascot race gatherings. His hackneys alone were worth thousands of pounds, and his horse-boxes at Olympia were always draped with silk curtains. He was a director of the show and of the International Horse Show Association and of the National Horse Show of America.

During the summer months Mr. Vanderbilt drove a coach from the Hotel Metropole in Northumberland-avenue, London, to the Metropole at Brighton, a distance of 52 miles. He did it as a hobby, and the fees charged for seats were very high. The coach, which was named the Venture, was drawn by four of his finest coaching bays. Mr. Vanderbilt used to say that a man had to be blasé to enjoy a motor trip through the heart of the beautiful Surrey country during the summer months. "Horses every time for me," was his motto. "I enjoy every trip I make, and am always sorry to get o the box when they're finished." Slight of build, and clean-shaven, he presented a picturesque attitude seated on the driver's seat of a large coach among a fashionable company. He wore a lavender grey top hat, smoked a large cigar, and at the back of the coach stood an attendant wielding one of the old-fashioned brass coaching horns several feet long.

Mr. Vanderbilt, his horses, and coach will be much missed in England both on the highroads and at the horse shows.

He was a personal friend of Lord Lonsdale, England's sporting peer, who was in the habit of entertaining the German Emperor at Lowther Castle, Penrith, and while in London a few years ago Mr Vanderbilt and the German Emperor met.

Born 38 years ago, he was the second son of Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt and Alice Gwynne Vanderbilt. He was educated at Yale University, and his occupation was that of financier. The Coaching, Royal Thames Yacht, Metropolitan, Knickerbocker, and New York City Clubs all claimed his membership.

CHARLES FROHMAN.

The late Charles Frohman was born at Sandusky, Ohio, and was 55 years of age at the time of his death. His start in life was due to his elder brother, Daniel, then a reporter on the New York "Tribune," whom he joined on that paper as a night clerk. Subsequently he used to assist at night, in a humble capacity, at Hooley's Theatre, Brooklyn, and thus began his theatrical career. In this career he became world-famous, ultimately leasing theatres in London as well as New York, and in both cities, in partnership with his brother or otherwise, launching many brilliant enterprises. When only 17 he took charge of a Chicago company with "Our Boys," and then joined William Haverley's Mastodon Minstrels, both for New York and London. He then assisted his brothers, Daniel and Gustavus, at Daly's Theatre, New York, and sent out the earliest touring companies which took the road in the United States. Charles Frohman made his fortune in 1888 by his faith in Bronson Howard's "Shenandoah," which had proved a very moderate success in Boston. He secured the rights, and Alf. Hayman and R. W. Hooley put up £300 each, and Charles gave his services gratis as an equal partner in producing it in New York. The profits were £30,000. In 1890 he organised the famous Empire Theatre Stock Company, and made another fortune. For some years he has controlled a vast theatrical combination reaching from New York to San Francisco. He visited London every year, and sometimes two or three times a year, and controlled there the Duke of York's Theatre permanently, and generally one or two other leading West-end houses, as occasion demanded. Nearly every English artist who has starred in America has appeared at one time or another under his management. His interests were in many directions linked up with Daniel Frohman, of the Lyceum Theatre, and Daly's Theatre, New York. His death will be regretted in theatrical circles on both sides of the Atlantic.

THE LASSETTERS SAVED.

Among the passengers who were saved on board the ill-fated liner were Mrs. H. B. Lassetter, wife of Colonel Lassetter, of Sydney, and her son, Lieut. Frederick M. Lassetter, who left Sydney on March 27 for England, via America.

Lieut. Lassetter, on the outbreak of war, left Oxford University and joined the London Scottish as a private. He was wounded in action in France, and, accompanied by his mother, was invalided and paid a visit to Australia to recuperate. He was subsequently gazetted lieutenant, and was on his way once more to the seat of war. His father, Colonel H. B. Lassetter, is at present in command of a brigade at Nottingham.

MR. ELBERT HUBBARD.

Mr. Elbert Hubbard, author and lecturer, is a native of Bloomington (Ill.), where he was born 56 years ago, the son of a farmer. He received a common school education, but managed to take an honorary M.A. degree at Tufts College, Boston, at the age of 40, and LL.D. from the Auditorium Aurex, Chicago. While a school teacher, editor, and lecturer, he met William Morris in London. On his return home he started the Roycroft Press at New York, and out of this began the Roycrofters' Corporation. He has been a prolific writer and publisher. In addition to his books he has written about 10,000 magazine articles.

MR. W. R. HEARST.

Mr. William Randolph Hearst was born in San Francisco in 1863, the son of the late Mr. George Hearst, who was a member of the Senate of the United States. He was educated at the public schools of San Francisco, and at Harvard.

In the newspaper world of the United States he occupies a position similar to that of Lord Northcliffe in England. He either edits or owns, among other important journals, the "New York American," "New York Evening Journal," "Boston American," "Chicago Examiner," "Chicago American," the "Los Angeles Examiner," and "San Francisco Examiner."

At the age of 23 he was editor and proprietor of the "Examiner" at 'Frisco, his native city. Nine years later he secured the "New York Journal," and inside a period of nine years he either started or bought the papers he now owns in Chicago and Los Angeles.

He was elected to Congress, and in 1905 contested the Mayoralty of New York without success.

MR. CYRIL HARCOURT.

Mr. Harcourt was an actor as well as a dramatist, and was in New York with his play as a member of the cast. "A Pair of Silk Stockings" was first staged in London, and enjoyed a long and prosperous run. At the termination of this the company was transferred to the Little Theatre, New York, where the London success was repeated. Mr. Harcourt, who is an Englishman, also achieved a London success with his play of English manners and cast, "A Place in the Sun." He has also won an assured position as a novelist, his unconventional story, "The World's Daughter," winning him distinction in letters. He recently published a second novel entitled "First Cousin to a Dream."

Mrs. Claude M'Kay, of this city, recently received a letter from Mr. Harcourt, saying that, after the American run of the play he proposed to return to London, and would most likely pay a holiday visit to Australia.

MR. W. J. BAILEY.

Mr. Wilson J. Bailey, who a few years ago abandoned journalism in Sydney to enter upon a commercial career, was accompanying Mr. James Chalmers, managing director of Farmer's, Ltd., on a business tour. They left Sydney by the R.M.S. Niagara on March 18 for Vancouver.

MR. AND MRS. LEAROYD.

Mr. C. A. Learoyd, a wool buyer, connected with the firm of Fuhrmann, Troost, and Co. Proprietary, Ltd., wool buyers, of Reiby-lane, Sydney, and who resided at Cromer, Phillip-street, left by the R.M.S. Niagara on March 18, accompanied by Mrs. Learoyd.

MR. D. A. THOMAS.

Mr. David Thomas was prominently associated with the coalfields of South Wales. He acted as managing director of the Cambrian Combine and other companies, and was senior in the firm of Thomas and Davey. As a politician he was a hardworking supporter of the Liberal party, and a great admirer of Mr. Lloyd George.

Not only was he president of the South Wales Liberal Federation from 1893-1897, he sat in Parliament for Merthyr Burghs from 1888 to 1910, and proved an active campaigner for Liberalism and freetrade.

SCENES AT WELLINGTON.

Intense interest is being taken all over New Zealand in the cabled news of the wrecking of the Lusitania. Newspaper offices are thronged with persons interested in the fate of passengers and in the developments of the disaster.

AUCKLAND (N.Z.), Sunday.

Auckland passengers aboard the Lusitania are believed to include Mr. J. J. Macky, of the firm of Messrs. Macky, Logan, and Caldwell, and his wife and son.

NO BUTTER.

WHOLESALE FIRMS WITHOUT SUPPLIES.

ALL ORDERS REFUSED.

Only a few boxes of butter were available in Sussex-street on Saturday. Many agents did not possess a single box, and had to refuse orders.

"The position in Sussex-street to-day," wrote the firm of Prescott, Ltd., in its weekly circular, issued on Saturday, "is that there is not a pound of butter available of any description, and all buyers have been put off until Monday. The position is becoming worse daily, as supplies at the factories are falling off consistently. We cannot see any relief until the price is advanced sufficiently to enable butter to be imported and sold on the local market. American agents have been quoting equivalent to 1/8 duty paid Sydney, to arrive about the end of June, but there is considerable doubt regarding the quality of this butter."

JAPAN'S DEMANDS.

CONSIDERABLE MODIFICATION.

Mr. Shimizu, Consul-General for Japan, stated last night:—

> "I have received a cable from my Government stating that the difficulties between China and Japan have been amicably settled."

BRITAIN'S MEDIATION.

JAPANESE OFFER.

LONDON, May 8.

The "Morning Post" Shanghai correspondent stated that Japan delayed presenting the ultimatum to China owing to Britain's mediation.

Reuter's correspondent stated on Friday that Japan offered to withdraw practically all her demands, but China still objected.

The demands China was still resisting were those contained in what is known as group five. These include questions relating to advisers, arms, land-ownership, schools, hospitals, railway concession in Southern China, and also questions relating to the province of Fukien, in Southern China. These have been the main obstacle in the way of the settlement of the difficulties throughout.

Japan then offered to withdraw group five except the clause relating to Fukien, and to reserve them for future friendly discussions.

Reuter adds that a compromise was previously reached with regard to questions affecting Fukien before the deadlock developed.

KIAO-CHAO.

PEKING, May 8.

The Japanese ultimatum was accompanied by an explanatory note, in which Japan further modified her demands, and repeated the offer to retrocede Kiao-Chao on the conditions previously offered. She insists on a settlement of the Yangtze railways and Fukien demands.

German sources report that the Maori's crew and boats' crews from the Crusader, totalling 7 officers and 88 men, were made prisoners and taken to Zeebrugge.

The Maori belonged to an ocean-going type of destroyer, of a class having a designed speed of 33 knots, and a displacement of 883 to 1045 tons. The boats of this class were launched in 1908-9.

THE LIQUOR PROBLEM.

NEW PROPOSAL.

BEER AND WINE DUTIES DROPPED.

LONDON, May 8.

The Press Bureau says that in view of the evidence that much of the mischief, especially in the northern shipyards, is due to cheap, fiery spirits, the Government, after consulting the spirit trade, proposes to abandon the taxing proposals and substitute the prohibition of spirits under three years old.

The Government has reached an agreement with the brewers for encouraging light beers, but the Irish representatives would not accept. The Government has therefore withdrawn the beer duties in order to avoid a controversy. The wine duties have been dropped owing to the new arrangement respecting spirits.

EMPIRE.

VOICE OF DOMINIONS IN AFFAIRS.

NEEDS OF NEW ERA.

WELLINGTON, Saturday.

The Minister for Defence, speaking at the annual meeting of the Victoria League, discussed the idea of single control of the Empire. Hitherto, he said, Imperial problems were settled for us by Imperial statesmen, but such a state of things could not continue for ever.

"We out here in the Pacific," the Minister continued, "are no longer pulling at the motherland's apron strings. We have come of age. The Empire cannot remain as it is. If it is to continue Imperial statesmen cannot also settle our affairs for us. We cannot make any sudden change, but I believe that with the evolution of time we will live to see this great problem settled for us."

The Minister stated that he believed one result of the war would be more frequent meetings of the Imperial committee of defence. They had been told that the Empire and the British people had degenerated. He did not think that Britons were degenerating, but would not say that they were not on the road to degeneration, and for all anybody knew the war was probably a blessing in disguise. It had been said that the Dominions were to be taken into the Imperial confidence upon peace being settled. It was very easy to say that the Dominions should be consulted, but it was a very difficult matter to say whether New Zealand and the other Dominions were to be called to London to discuss the peace terms.

FINANCIAL.

DECLINING GOLD PRODUCTION.

Some interesting figures relative to the world's gold production in 1914 are now available. For the last two years there have been declines, and the estimated total value for 1914 is set down at £92,310,195. For 1912 the total reached £95,854,568, having risen steadily year by year without a break since the first year of the century. In the quinquennium ended with 1905 the total gold output was £331,125,452, and in the succeeding quinquennium £445,593,558. As recently as the five years 1891-95 the aggregate was only £104,258,885. Thus the output of each of the past four years was within £9,000,000 to £12,000,000 of the total of the whole five years ended with 1895. Still, there is now a decline, and it was chiefly due last year to the diminution in the Australian output. That has been going back for a considerable number of years now, reaching its high-water mark in 1903, when the production was worth £4,218,000. For the last year it is estimated at £2,394,000, or a shrinkage of well on to £2,000,000 within 11 years. Happily, in other respects the colonies have made more solid progress. In South Africa, however, the production has shown a continuous expansion up to 1914, when there was a slip back of about £600,000, but the total was still worth £42,091,000. A question always asked is, what becomes of all this precious metal? But it is unnecessary to again go over the explanation of the sub-division between currency, arts and crafts, manufacturers, and jewellery.

BELLIGERENTS INCREASE GOLD STORES.

What is of the greatest interest at the present moment is the amount of the metal at command of the nations at war, and here the "Commercial Chronicle" of New York gives some interesting reminders of what has been taking place. During 1914 the Imperial Bank of Germany increased its holding of gold by about £45,000,000, the Bank of England by £34,000,000, the Bank of France by £9,000,000, and the Imperial Bank of Russia by £10,000,000. That is to say, these various State institutions together exhibited at the end of last year an increase of about £116,000,000 in their stock. Including the small accumulations of minor banks, the total addition to the visible stock of gold in the year was about £140,000,000, a sum which exceeded the entire output of the metal for the year, and the excess in turn shows that hidden accumulations must have been drawn upon. Great Britain drew openly from various sources, including the United States, but the Bank of Germany added its £45,000,000 through drawing upon domestic stocks, and by absorbing the war treasure of the Government locked up hitherto in Spandau, and computed to amount to about £12,000,000. In the middle of March the total stock of gold in the Reichsbank is shown at £114,681,000, but as the "Morning Post" quite justly points out, only about £25,000,000 of the total increase—now £46,000,000—has been sucked in from the concealed sources, such as the pockets of tourists. Great as the figures are, they will go but a little way towards helping the nations to finance the struggle now in progress.

NAVALTUM, LTD.

The directors of Navaltum, Ltd., according to the "Financial Times" of March 15, proposed to create and issue 112 further 5 per cent. debentures of £50 each, to be secured on the whole undertaking and assets and to increase the capital by the creation of 8000 "A" shares, entitled to one-half of the profits supplied by the way of dividend and to one-half of the assets in a winding-up. The directors state that in July a subscription of £4500 had been promised, but the outbreak of war prevented the arrangement being carried into effect. The new board, it is added, being convinced of the value of the metal, have made every effort to keep the company together, and have reorganised the business, so that for the past few weeks the works have run at a profit on a very moderate output. The time, however, has arrived when either the company must be wound up or fresh capital introduced to provide working expenses, purchase raw material, pay wages, and pay off pressing debts.

W. AND A. M'ARTHUR, LTD.

W. and A. M'Arthur, Ltd., reports being in receipt of a cable from its London office stating that the profit for the year ended January 31 was £28,353 4s 9d, as compared with £29,829 12s 6d last year. The directors recommended that after payment of final dividend to January 31, 1915, on the preference shares a 4 per cent. dividend for the year on the ordinary shares be paid, and that £4000 be placed to the reserve, leaving £5594 to carry forward. The amount of reserve as per last balance-sheet was £26,000, so that a further £4000 mentioned in cable brings the reserve up to £30,000. The sum carried forward at January 31, 1914, was £3750, which has now been increased to £5594.

STAMP DUTY ON CONTRACTS.

"W. M." writes:—

Sir,—Could you please inform me, through your commercial column, (1) the amount of stamp duty necessary on a contract for sale of land for £25 on terms, and (2) whether it is necessary that the contract should be sent to Sydney to be stamped, or can duty stamps be affixed by the purchaser?

(1) Five shillings.
(2) Yes, in Sydney.

THE EQUITABLE PERMANENT.

The report of the above building society covering the year to March 31 states that no appreciable falling off in the volume of business offered had resulted from the war. But a cautious policy was pursued, and advances which amounted to £82,993 were restricted. The amount standing to the credit of depositors' accounts totals £213,770. It being the period for the triennial division of surplus profits the board declared a bonus of 2 per cent. on both paid up and borrowing shares. The regular dividend of 10 per cent. was paid to shareholders. Profits amounted to £38,667, dividend and bonus absorbed £14,394, leaving a balance of £24,272. From this was paid £1200 bonus to borrowers accounts, and £16,000 was added to the reserve fund, leaving £7001 to be carried forward. The reserve and contingent funds, together with the amount of undivided profits, now total £59,807.

GREAT NORTHERN COMPANY.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The Great Northern Company declared a dividend of 6d per share, payable on May 13.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

An interim dividend of 4 per cent., being at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, on the ordinary shares of Marcus Clark and Co., Ltd., will be paid on May 15.

ETHICS OF INTEREST.

THE VIEW OF AN EVOLUTIONARY SOCIALIST.

The opinions of a revolutionary socialist on the ethics of interest published in the "Herald" on the 17th ult. have only just come before my notice. As a socialist (writes Mr. R. S. Boyer) I am intensely interested in the matter, and, as I differ from the writer, perhaps, you may deem my views on the subject worth publication.

Capital is generally defined as "Wealth used in production." Interest is a payment made for the use of this wealth by those lacking it. Now, I assert that since wealth in the shape of machinery, etc., is not, strictly speaking, capital till it is used in production, the possession of capital really means power over the labour which operates this capital. That is, the capitalist receives interest, not because it is naturally advantageous to borrower and lender, but because he has the economic power to exact it. Because the borrower is willing to pay interest, it does not follow that it is equitable. He has Hobson's choice. He knows that he can make money for himself only by paying tribute to the owner of capital; so he borrows when the capitalists demand is not so excessive as to leave no cream for himself.

To justify interest, the following illustration has been used: A man owns a spade, which took him a week to make. If he lends it he must lose a week in making another; therefore, he is entitled to something, i.e., interest besides having the spade returned. My criticism of this is that no man would lend a tool of which he has present need himself. The depreciation due to use should be replaced; but this is not interest, really. If a brick house, costing £500, needs replacing in 50 years, a sum of 4/ a week or £10 a year would suffice for this purpose. So it is obvious that when people claim interest they mean something beyond depreciation money. It may be added, too, that a balance at the bank does not depreciate. What is demanded for the use of credit is interest, pure and simple. To bring the illustration up-to-date let us suppose that by getting interest for the use of his spade our hypothetical man is enabled to eventually buy another spade, which he lets out at interest. Those who lack the enormous advantage of the possession of this tool, which we are supposing to be essential to wealth production, are compelled to hire it, because they must live.

Not only are they handicapped in their endeavour to own their means of life by excessive interest charges, which must be met; but they have to contend with the animosity of the capitalist, who puts every obstacle in their way, because he knows that his occupation will be gone if he has no expropriated labour to live upon.

As a modern example of this, take the housing question in Sydney to-day. By opposing, vilifying, and misrepresenting the State in entering the building business itself, landlords have been able to maintain a scarcity of houses, and so extort enormous rents. This makes the worker eager to escape from the clutches of the landlords, only to fall into the hands of the moneylenders. I hear that 6 per cent. is a low rate of interest for these men to charge, so probably 8, 9, and even 10 per cent. is an extortion not unknown in Sydney to-day. If the State were to lend more money to home-seekers at low rates of interest, or, better still, if the State and the municipalities were to build on a large scale (having better security than private individuals they can borrow more cheaply, and consequently can let houses at more reasonable rental), there would not be the same incentive to own one's house. For who would scrape together for years to buy a £500 house if one could be had for 12s a week. At present interest alone would come to this. With the competition of the State as a lender of money and the diminished demand from workers who would rather pay rent than live on the smell of an oil-rag for years, with the ultimate chance of losing considerably when they want to sell, moneylenders would have to be satisfied with the lower rates of interest to be obtained in other less profitable securities. Some of this money would reach the banks and be used in building just the same, with the difference that the workers would not be exploited to the same extent. Can it seriously be contended that to reduce the rate of interest in this way is unjust? And if the nationalisation and reorganisation of our banking system further reduced interest charges what principle of ethics is infringed? When we consider that the borrower of money pays interest sufficiently high to cover, not only the net profit in the average bank, but the salaries of managers, accountants, and clerks in the hundreds of useless branches (three or four where one would suffice) on top of the rents of offices, it is plain that the nationalisation of banks would considerably lessen the burden at present on the backs of the productive members of the community.

I must state that your revolutionary socialist, though having the same object as myself, is like a bull in a crockery shop when he ventures in the domain of finance. If you were to invent such a man in order to misrepresent socialism, you could not imagine a more superficial, idiotic specimen. Of all the absurd proposals that emanate from men who call themselves socialists, that to confiscate bank and insurance funds is the worst I have ever heard. The normal working man saves for two reasons (a) for security (b) to spend in the future. Since the workers will have more and more security as we approach the socialist ideal, it will be unnecessary to save for the first reason. But it will always be necessary to set aside one's claim to wealth if we prefer spending in the future rather than in the present. Suppose a man wants to take a trip to Europe—and in the future travel will become more common—and he deposits with the State bank weekly amounts for this purpose. He expects no interest, and is willing to pay for the service the bank does him. The money (i.e. power over labour) is being socially used. Surely your revolutionary does not intend to confiscate this? Stop giving interest when finance is nationalised by all means, but to propose confiscation merely frightens working men, whose support we want. Being, before all things, a democrat, I recognise the necessity of dispelling any misgivings and illusions which many workers have regarding our aims.

The workers to-day use banks and insurance companies because they offer them some hope against their awful insecurity. I advocate the substitution of something better before we do anything rash. If we increase the old pension to £1 or 25s a week at an earlier age, we secure for the workers a surer and larger income than they can ever hope to get by life-long thrift. For is not 25s a week interest at 4 per cent. on £1600? By giving widows with children a minimum of £1 a week with increases according to the number of children on a liberal scale, we should minimise their present deplorable dependence on rent or interest (when they have no money, which is rarely). In this way, by showing the workers what our aims are, we shall undermine their present blind, ignorant support of financial institutions.

Needless to say, I regard as absurd and impracticable any proposals to repudiate debts. With regard to our national debt it is impossible to deal thoroughly with the matter now that I have used so much of your printer's ink. When we consider that by selling our lands we have enabled private individuals to secure the unearned increment which we have borrowed from them in order to create still more wealth for them, it is evident that our present indebtedness is largely due to our rotten land system. To so tax land that no man will ever dream of buying it for speculative purposes, is imperative. This would bring more land into use—would increase our production and so give us better terms in the London money market on account of the favourable exchanges due to increased exports. To finance these proposals of mine I advocate increased taxes on rent, interest, and estates, at death.

THE WOOL DISPUTE.

THE SELLING BROKERS' DECISION.

We are informed that at the conference of interstate wool-selling brokers last Friday and Saturday it was decided that sales should only be held in Sydney, Melbourne, and Brisbane under the usual conditions.

COMMERCIAL.

OUR TRADE WITH JAPAN.

In 1913 our imports from Japan were of the value of £556,206. But now the trade is increasing tremendously, according to merchants who have dealings with that country. Chief imports in the past have been silk, oils, timber, sulphur, and fertilisers. Now the Japanese are sending us goods which formerly we obtained from Germany and Belgium, such as glass-ware and crockery-ware, metal household utensils, buttons, and beads. Then again the import of made-up wearing apparel seems to be increasing, the quantity of cotton goods, principally underclothing, sold being greater. Further shipments are coming down. Trade in these goods it will be the object of Japan to maintain. Imports of some produce will be temporary, such as bran and pollard, barley, and oats.

STATISTICS WHICH SPEAK.

The effect of war on the trade of the United States is tellingly illustrated in the figures of exports from that country in January of this year, compared with January of last year. The comparison may be made as follows:—

Exports to—	January, 1914.	January, 1915.
Austria-Hungary	£562,400
Belgium	880,565	£381,298
France	2,303,678	6,867,483
Germany	6,877,579	1,299,102
Italy	1,478,868	4,289,677
Netherlands	1,874,577	2,914,171
Russia (Europe)	537,198	130,817
United Kingdom	12,022,761	19,551,502
Argentina	586,567	341,415
Brazil	439,016	360,290
Japan	1,398,491	641,146

The features are the decrease of exports to Germany, Russia, and Belgium, the stoppage to Austria-Hungary, and the increased exports to Great Britain, France, Italy, and the Netherlands. In the case of the last two countries the causes of increase are probably two, first, inability to procure certain goods from Germany; second, a re-export of American goods to Germany.

The amount of wool manifested to arrive at Darling Harbour on Saturday was 650 bales.

BREADSTUFFS.

WHEAT LOADING AND STACKINGS.

During the week ended May 1 the quantity of wheat despatched from country stations was 42,995 bags, compared with 43,912 bags for the previous week, and 201,072 bags for the same period of last year.

From December 1 to May 1 there were despatched from country stations 1,194,647 bags, compared with 5,690,535 bags for the same period of 1913-14, and 4,517,613 in the same period of 1912-13.

The stacks at country stations and Darling Island on May 1 were 101,757 bags, compared with 121,823 bags on the previous Saturday, and 3,105,937 bags on May 2 last year. The number of bags despatched from the railway districts during the week ended May 1 and the stacks in railway districts on May 1 were:—

LATE MR. H. J. LEPLASTRIER.

The death of Mr. Henry John Leplastrier at his residence, Normanhurst, near Hornsby, on Friday, removes an old Australian colonist. His parents arrived in Hobson's Bay in the ship Lord Hungerford in February, 1849, landing at what was then called Liardet's Beach, now Port Melbourne, with a family of three sons and three daughters. The deceased, who was the last of the family, was in his 82nd year.

Formerly he was a prominent official of the Victorian Customs Department, and was a justice of the peace of that State. He had been living for many years in retirement, and up to the last retained all his faculties. His knowledge of the stirring times of the Victorian "Early 'Fifties" was extensive.

The deceased gentleman has left a widow, four sons, four daughters, and several grandchildren. The funeral took place at Gore Hill Cemetery on Saturday afternoon.

AN IDLE PORT.

DEPRESSION AT NEWCASTLE.

NEWCASTLE, Sunday.

Slackness of trade is being reported with monotonous regularity in connection with the coal-mining industry. The unprecedented shortage of freight is, of course, the main obstacle, and while the war continues there is slight prospect of an improvement. Only three collieries—and these small ones—reported full time during the past fortnight, and only half of them worked more than halftime. Wallsend "C" pit is idle owing to a strike, an extraordinary position when so many miners are idle because there is no work for them. The dyke, where the coal-loading cranes are located, presents a comparatively deserted appearance, and the arrival of an oversea vessel causes comment, a contrast to the time, not long since, when the port was alive with deep-sea vessels.

MEAT FOR BRITAIN.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

Victoria's share in supplying the Imperial authorities with meat for the army amounts to a contribution equal in value to £266,370. That includes all the meat that has been exported for the Imperial Government from March 10 to May 7 inclusive.

On Friday there remained in the cool stores 207,053 carcases of lamb, 146,519 carcases of mutton, and 25,814 quarters of beef.

DISTURBED WEEK.

SHARE AND METAL VALUES FLUCTUATE.

The operations of the Sydney Stock Exchange were very disturbed during the past week, and the finish on Saturday was capped by the news of the atrocious crime of the Germans in sinking the Lusitania and the great loss of life caused thereby.

The market had only partially recovered from the shock caused by the big loss of life attending the landing of the Australian troops on Turkish soil in the Dardanelles, when the Lusitania tragedy again cast it into a state of depression. The result was the Exchange was in a condition of depression throughout the week. This was totally opposed to business activity or solidity of values and the latter was thereby adversely affected, especially as the London metal market, though showing good prices, indicated a tendency to wobble. The market on Saturday was listless all round.

MINING NOTES.

The manager of the Corella Copper Company reports on May 7:—"Cutting chamber at the prospecting shaft, M.L., 1046. Have come across large boulders, assaying 27 per cent. copper. Outcrop very distorted."

At the Golden Horseshoe mine, Oberon, the crosscut at the 90ft level has been extended to 70ft, and passed through a hard bar, which delayed progress. Quartz and ironstone leaders in the face continue to show gold in dish prospects. The end of the crosscut is now vertically under the surface workings. The manager thinks the reef should be met with this week.

The latest report from the Bodangora gold mine states:—"No. 8 level west advanced 30ft, reef 46 inches wide, value per ton 6/. Winze advanced 18ft. Reef not broken, rise advanced 18ft, reef not broken. No. 7 level west advanced 5ft, reef 28 inches wide. No. 6 level, winze advanced 13ft, reef 12 inches wide, value per ton 54/."

The manager of Mudgee Slates, Limited, quarry, writing under date May 3, reports that the open cut has been extended four feet, the face being 30 feet high, and another set of rails laid down. The slate continues to improve, and the prospects are brighter than they have been since work commenced.

The Bonnie Dundee Company (C.T.) reports a crushing of 111 tons of ore for gold valued at £291.

Our Melbourne correspondent telegraphs:—"The following telegram was received to-day (Thursday) from the manager of the Hampden-Cloncurry Copper Mines: 'Duchess Mine, main shaft, 850ft level, main west crosscut has been advanced to 220 feet. Cut lode channel, quartz, and calcite, footwall more vertical than hitherto. Estimate necessary to drive north 70 feet to values.'"

The manager of the Iodide (Mineral Hill), Ltd., reports for the week ended May 1:—"Pumping and bailing commenced on Tuesday, now making good headway. Expect to have the main shaft unwatered to-day, and sinking resumed on Monday."

Boyd's Molybdenite Yetholme Mines, N.L., has been placed on the official list of the Sydney Stock Exchange.

During the past week the No. 4 level at Potters' silver mine, Condobolin, was continued 4ft, and shows very little change, the zinc vein being about 8in wide, and the lead vein 2in, which is also the hanging wall. At No. 1 north stope two veins of lead are showing, one the footwall vein, averaging 7in, and the other the hanging wall vein, 4in. Eight tons of ore were raised for the week.

In the fortnight ended May 1 the dredge of the Ovens Valley Company handled 7993 cubic yards of material for a recovery of 41¼oz gold. The average value of the ground was 5d per cubic yard.

The smelting operations of the Corella copper mine (Queensland) last month shows that 1658 tons of ore produced 236 tons of matte, containing approximately 116 tons of copper and 63oz of gold. The copper content of the ore treated was a shade under 7 per cent. In the previous month—March—the figures were:—Ore treated, 1784 tons, for 118 tons of copper, carrying 76oz of gold and 7oz of silver.

The following facts are extracted from a long report by the manager of the Bakers' Creek gold mine—whether weekly, fortnightly, or monthly is not stated:—"Last 100ft of the drive on the Shaft Reef, at No. 17 level, disclosed payable quartz. At one time the reef looked like pinching out, as it got down to one inch, but it widened out to its normal width of 6in, and continues to carry nice, bright, free gold." The manager adds:—"The prospects of this level (No. 17) certainly give matters generally a much brighter appearance. I am able to save the quartz now with very little loss, but the narrow vein is not conducive to a large tonnage being obtained. The appearance of the level is such that it will certainly be advisable to continue the sinking of this winze for ventilation and other purposes necessary for carrying on stoping operations. It also warrants the driving of No. 18 level on the Shaft Reef, and to do this it will be necessary to free the mine of water to that level."

According to the report of the manager of the White Crystal tin mine (Ardlethan), the faces of the north and south drives are 82ft apart, and show a lode of payable quality. The stopes continue in good ore in all faces, whilst the open cut is being extended east and west in fair grade crushing material. The battery is working full time.

Operations at the Occidental gold mine (Cobar) show that during the fortnight ended April 28 some 1371 tons of ore, with an average mine assay of 8dwt 22gr per ton, were sent to the battery. During the period in question the number of minor stoppages to the battery was below the average; but owing to a broken cam-shaft, five heads were out for the full fortnight, the actual running time being 88.2 per cent. of the maximum. The lost time for the full battery (including the five-head under repair) was 36.8 hours. The tube mills did fair work, but will soon need relining. Some 14 tons of concentrates were produced, containing approximately 152oz of gold. The cyanide works treated 1293 tons of slimes, containing 538oz of gold, the recovery being 442oz of fine gold.

The No. 2 dredge of the Araluen Redbank Gold Dredging Company, N.L., for the week ended May 7 obtained 18oz 17dwt of smelted gold for 127 hours' work.

ASSOCIATED SMELTERS.

In another portion of this issue appears the prospectus of the Broken Hill South Silver-mining Company, N.L., and also that of the North Broken Hill, Ltd., relative to the issue of £200,000 6 per cent. debentures, part of an authorised issue of £250,000 debentures. The money is required for the acquisition of an interest in the Broken Hill Associated Smelters Proprietary, Ltd., which is to acquire the whole of the Port Pirie smelting works, also the Bellambi coke works, of the Broken Hill Proprietary Company, Ltd.

RICH GOLD FIND.

PERTH, Saturday.

The mining registrar at Laverton has telegraphed to the Minister for Mines that specimens of ore containing 500oz of gold were extracted from Westeheads prospecting area, close to the southern boundary of the town site, during the last 10 days. Rich ore is exposed in the shaft from a depth of 50ft to the present bottom at 72ft, and 30 tons of 4oz to 5oz ore have been broken out and dumped on the surface. The telegram adds that the property is likely to be sold in a few days to a Melbourne firm for £3500 cash.

WESTERN AUSTRALIAN MINES.

KALGOORLIE, Friday.

The output of Lake View and Oroya Queen of Hills mine was 3452 tons, valued at £5668. The expenditure was £4037. The returns from other mines were: Lake View and Star, 18,224 tons, valued at £21,457 expenditure £17,720; South Kalgurli, 9658 tons, valued at £12,367, expenditure £9910; Associated, 10,409 tons, valued at £12,372, expenditure £11,260.

The manager of the Oroya Links mine reports that in the Eclipse mine at No. 9 level the winze at 150 feet north has been continued from 42 feet to 47 feet in material averaging 75s per ton over a width of 82 inches. The winze at the 155 feet south has been extended to 39 feet in ore averaging 32s per foot over 78 inches.

VEGETABLE CREEK TIN MINE.

Shareholder writes:—"It is with great interest that I read in Saturday morning's issue the exhaustive progressive policy which it is the intention of the directors of the above company to adopt. There is no doubt whatever that the policy of getting the development work sufficiently far ahead, so as to give an uninterrupted output, is a very wise one, and unquestionably will add tenfold to the life of the mine.

"Seeing that all operations are to cease at Strathbogie (for a time), and that the men will be transferred to Allen's shaft, where tin is available, this should considerably increase the weekly output, which will be very pleasing and remunerative for the vendor. But what about the shareholders?

"According to the figures given, 86 tons of concentrates have been sold this year, which would realise about £10,000. Also 40 tons were sold after the close of the last financial year, which would realise about £4000. This, added to the bank balance of £5000 brought forward, would give a total of £19,000.

"As it is understood the mine was not producing for six months, the pay-sheet would only be, say, £600 per month, absorbing £3600. The remaining six months would probably be at the rate of £700 fortnightly, absorbing £8400 a total of £12,000.

"As the resolution authorising the payment of royalty on a new basis only came into force last August, it is to be assumed that the vendor has received that amount from the £10,000 earned this year, therefore the amounts expended in wages and royalty total, say, £14,500, leaving a credit balance of approximately £4500.

"As a shareholder, I would be very pleased to know what the board's intentions are for the disbursement of mine, as it would only take £3000 to pay a sixpenny dividend, whilst the mine continued to give an increased output?"

MAMMOTH COPPER MINE.

RESTARTING SMELTING.

A brief telegram in Wednesday's issue stated that smelting operations were restarted on Tuesday by the Mammoth Copper Mine, Limited.

Owing to the war, operations ceased on September 23. Smelting started on July 8, 1914, and continued for 30½ days, when 2154 tons of ore were smelted for a production of 459 tons of matte, containing 158 tons of copper, 7771oz silver and 168oz gold. The market value of this product was at that date estimated at £10,923, copper being taken at £60 per ton, and left an estimated profit of £2188. This profit would be much larger if based on the present price of copper. The copper content of the ore treated was 8.17 per cent., whilst the silver and gold contents of the ore would be of material assistance in paying smelting costs.

PRESENT STATE OF MINE.

Although smelting operations ceased on August 9 last year, the development of the mine was carried on to a certain extent since then, as will be seen by the following extracts from the report for the four weeks ended April 18.

"Chieftain Mine.—Since restarting operations three stoping machines kept employed in No. 3 south orebody, breaking on an average 60 tons ore daily. Orebody here (No. 3 N. level) extends across and beyond full width of face, and assays 12 per cent. copper, 5oz silver, and 1dwt gold. One stoping machine now employed above level for average return of 25 tons ore daily. Stopes throughout maintained high values.

"Cinnaman Mine.—Copper-gold carbonates being mined from upper stopes; 150 tons already received for treatment. Regular tonnage, 15 tons daily, averaging 6.5 per cent. copper, 3oz silver, 7dwt gold. Stoping will be commenced in dense sulphides end of week; assays 10 per cent. copper, 8oz silver, 10dwt gold.

"General.—Traction engine employed hauling coke and limestone; 3000 tons ore already at grass. The development policy of the company for the near future includes sinking the main shaft to 400ft and opening out extensive levels at that depth. To date 10,600 tons high-grade sulphide ore have been raised from Chieftain southern ore-body, principally from Nos. 1 and 2 levels. The main northern ore-body is still practically untouched, and its potentialities in depth and length are very great."

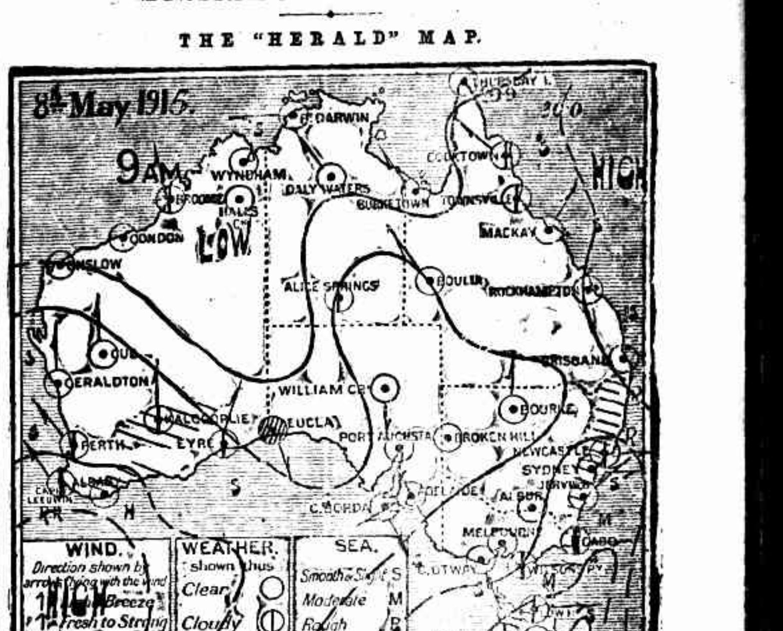
AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.



The cyclonic disturbance which resulted in the heavy rain on the central and north coast has now passed to the south-east, and at 9 a.m. on Saturday morning was centrally situated to the east of Tasmania.

Another good feature in the pressure distribution of Saturday was the monsoonal depression over Western Australia; so far this disturbance has resulted in some good rains over the western half of the State, and as it advances eastward should result in some rain in the southern districts of New South Wales. On the coast fine weather should result for the next two or three days.

Ocean Forecast.—Generally smooth to moderate.

In the case of a bandsman whose mind was left a complete blank as a result of his being buried in a trench at Ypres after the explosion of a shell, the experiment was tried at a Maida-vale hospital of leaving a sheet of music by the side of his bed. After some days he began to take notice of it, and subsequently he became able to read the notes. It was not until some time after he could read the music that he was able to understand the ordinary printing on the title page.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

Those horseowners who have not nominated for the Australian Jockey Club's Belgian National Fund Meeting on May 24 are reminded that nominations close to-day.

Among the fixtures for the first Tuesday in June to call for the attention of horse-owners and trainers will be the rich stakes of the fixture to be offered by the Western Australian Turf Club. Nominations for the above events can be made with the secretary of the A.J.C., Sydney.

Pony and galloway races will be held at Tuggerah Park to-day, and as 120 nominations have been received, interesting sport should result. Special trains will leave the Central Railway Station at 9.32 and 10.40 a.m.

The programme for the Rosehill Club's May meeting on the 22nd instant demands the attention of owners and trainers to-day, for at 4 p.m. entries close with the secretary, Mr. G. W. S. Rowe.

M.E.W. met with interference in the Two-year-old Handicap at Randwick on Saturday. Inquiry showed that Meekings, rider of Karanaud King, caused it, though not intentionally, and, under all the circumstances, the stewards thought a caution to Meekings sufficient to meet the case.

The Australian Trotting Club is offering £310 prize money for the six events to be decided at Victoria Park on Friday, May 14, entries for which close with the secretary, Mr. H. Cobcroft, at 8 p.m. to-day.

The next meeting at Kembla Grange will be held on Thursday, May 27. Entries close with the secretary, Mr. A. H. Hart, at 4 p.m. on Monday, May 17.

Nominations will be received by the secretary up to 5 p.m. to-day for the pony and galloway races to be held at Rosebery on Saturday.

There will be races at Wyong Park to-morrow, and special trains will leave the Central Railway Station at 9.32 (horses and attendants), 10.15, and 10.40 a.m., while the ordinary service to Newcastle will also be available.

The Gosford Club will hold a meeting on Tuesday, May 18, entries for which close with the secretary at 4 p.m. to-day.

The motorists had to contend with a variety of bad roads and bush tracks.

"HEAD OF THE RIVER."

SCHOOLS ROWING SUPREMACY.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

Agreeable weather conditions yesterday favoured the rowing of the final boat race to decide the "head of the river" for 1915. Both banks of the Yarra were crowded with enthusiastic spectators.

The crews were Geelong Grammar School, Wesley College, and Scotch College. Wesley, although the lighter crew, were obviously the best trained. Wesley had slightly the best of a good start. Wesley led all the way, and won by a short half-length from Scotch College, with Geelong Grammar School a further half-length behind. The time of 5m 17 3-5s was considered excellent, being 7 2-5s faster than of the heats rowed on the previous day.

BOXING.

DEMLEN v McNABB.

There was a fair attendance at Baker's Stadium on Saturday night, when Henri Demlen, of Belgium, met Billy McNab, of Newcastle. The respective weights were 10st 10½lb and 10st 10lb.

Demlen showed an improvement on his recent form, and his boxing methods were suited by his opponent's continual attempts to win by a knock-out. The latter was outpointed in nearly every round. There was no doubt as to the correctness of Mr. Harald Baker's verdict in Demlen's favour.

In the preliminary combats, Snowy Corbett beat Art Lee, and Joe Moran and Ern. Williams boxed a draw.

TATTERSALL'S RACES.

MR. RICH WINS A DOUBLE.

HERRINGBONE AND CHARLEVILLE.

Sydney Tattersall's Club was fortunate in the weather for its May meeting on Saturday. During the week, and even up to Friday evening, the prospects of a fine day were doubtful, and a heavy racing track was expected, but Saturday broke fine and clear, and a warm bright sun made things ideal for outdoor sport. About 18,000 people assembled at Randwick before the numbers for the second race were hoisted. The track, though not favourable to fast time records, was dry and in excellent order.

The principal item on the programme was the Winter Stakes (of £500). For this event 20 horses were numbered on the card, but only eight started. The most notable of the malcontents were Sir Alwynton, Taunter, Danaus, and King Mostyn. Sir Alwynton's stable mate, Tartanus, was the opening favourite, at 7 to 2, with Simon, Frisco quoted at 4 to 1, and bar this pair, 6 and 7 to 1 was going for a time. The most popular of the others was Charleville, who hardened rapidly to 5 to 1, and for money was as good a favourite as anything at the finish, while Tartanus weakened, and Sir Vive came into the betting with a rattle from 10 to 1 to 5 to 1. Simon Frisco cut up very badly. He was last all the way, and finished fully twenty lengths behind anything in the race, but he pulled up lame, something having gone wrong during the progress of the race. The pace for the first six furlongs was moderate, and at the five furlongs Firm slipped away with a nice lead, and was four lengths in front of Silver Grain and Sir Vive at the half-mile; when she turned into the straight Firm was well clear of this pair, who were joined by Matouree. Inside the distance Charleville and Tartanus appeared on the scene, and Silver Grain and Sir Vive retiring, this pair settled down to catch Firm. A stirring battle succeeded, and Charleville, getting up in the last few strides, narrowly beat the mare, Tartanus being only a head away third. Charleville was bred by Mr. H. R. Denison, who purchased his dam in New Zealand. He is a gelding by Charlemagne II. from La Gloria, by St. Leger from Charente, by Nordenfeldt. Charleville won several races for Mr. M'Pherson, who recently passed him on to Mr. H. S. Rich, for whom he won the Final Handicap at the late A.J.C. meeting.

Mr. H. S. Rich had an excellent winning day, for, in addition to winning the Winter Stakes with Charleville, he carried off the Flying Handicap with Herringbone, who was very confidently supported by her party, and wound up best favourite. Out of the 20 on the card for the Flying Handicap twelve started. Athenic, who is under orders for Brisbane, was one of the withdrawals, as was Eugeny, Lady Antonio, and Royal Laddie. For a time Lady Denman was favourite, at 4 to 1, while Sweet Malt was supported at 6 to 1, but at the finish she was on offer at 10 to 1. Herringbone opened at 5 to 1, and became solid at 7 to 2, and Lady Denman eased a point. Of the others Bob Bunsow, Ninfa, and Nuwara Eliya were the best backed. Sweet Malt was out of the slips smartly with Lady Denman, but the former had full charge at the half-mile, with Bellara and Ruinall handy. At the half-mile Lady Denman lost her place, and there was not much to choose between Bellara, Sweet Malt, and Ruinall as they turned into the straight, where Herringbone slipped up on the rails, and quickly had Sweet Malt and Bellara in trouble. At the half-distance Ninfa, with a fast run challenged Herringbone and fought it out gamely with the favourite, but was beaten. Herringbone, who is trained with Charleville by Mark Thompson, has been a profitable animal for Mr. Rich, though she failed him the last Newmarket Handicap. She is a chestnut four-year-old, bred by Messrs. H. and G. Main, at Retreat, near Bethungra, and is by their imported horse, Featherstitch, son of Ayrshire, from Tranquility, a South Australian-bred mare, by Thunderbolt from Repose, by Conrad.

Calugo, Del Monte, Bulbo, and Torchey were among the scratchings for the Two-year-old Handicap, for which 11 started. Calugo, who is owned by Sir William Cooper, and Bulbo are trained by I. Foulsham, whose stable was represented by Galen, and the public, taking a hint from the scratching tower, rushed in blindly to support Galen when the bookmakers opened at 4 to 1 the field. In a few minutes the colt was down to 2 to 1, and found support at that cramped price, but later Herringbone's stable mate Wedding Day—and Beanbri came into the market and relieved the pressure, and the favourite weakened to 7 to 2. The best backed of the others were M.E.W. and Sir John Barleycorn. On the face of his running against Long Reef and Bulbo at Warwick Farm, Galen appeared a false favourite in the eyes of followers of public form, but the result proved them very much in the wrong. After indulging Chantry with a lead for a couple of furlongs, Galen ran to the front, and appeared to have everything at his mercy inside the distance. A little further on the Prudent King colt Karanaud King made a bold effort, but the favourite carried too many guns, and won cleverly, if not easily, from Karanaud King with Rouen close up clear of First Lesson, who was only slightly in advance of Prince Manlin, Sir John Barleycorn, and Beanbri; and M.E.W. beat the others. The lastnamed met with interference, and inquiry by the stewards showed that it was caused unintentionally by Karanaud King, and the latter's rider, Meekings, was cautioned. Galen was bred by Mr. A. E. Thompson, and was reared at Widden. He is a brown colt by Maltster from Lovelorn, by Grafton from Lovelock, by Lochiel, and is a brother to Peck o' Maut.

For a time Bibbenluke and Merrimax were joint favourites for the Hurdle Race, for which seven started, but there was solid support for Jacoleen and Demand at the finish. Rentile had a few supporters, but King David and Woolerina were friendless. Bibbenluke has hitherto been a very safe conveyance over obstacles, but he toppled over the first hurdle, and gave Clifton a rough fall. A long way from home the race resolved itself into a match between Jacoleen and Demand, and at the last hurdle Demand had an advantage, but Jacoleen finished with great gameness, and ran him out of it at the finish by a long length. The pair beat Merrimax by about ten lengths, and the rest, finishing at longer intervals, were whipped in by Woolerina, a once crack sprinter.

The biggest field (16) of the day turned out for the last race, the Welter Handicap, which the bookmakers are likely to remember for some time to come. They opened at 5 to 1 the field, at which Elystan was most fancied. Miss Bob began at 7 to 1, but in a few minutes was down at 5 to 2, and remained at that till towards the finish, when 3 to 1 was offered to small amounts. The favourite and Danum set the pace together for half the journey, then Miss Bob cleared out, and eventually won in a canter by four lengths from Hopfield, who was succeeded by Kirribilli. The early pace appeared to bother Elystan, who did not come on the scene till towards the finish. Foil and La Balfour and Hobble Skirt made game efforts turning for home, but were quite outclassed. Miss Bob, who is owned by Mr. P. A. Connolly, has raced with success in Western Australia. For some time she has been trained at Randwick by F. M'Grath. She ran at the late A.J.C. meeting without attracting attention. Miss Bob is a low-set brown mare by Bobadil from Harvest Home, by Hova from Maltster's half-sister, Harvest Lass (imp.), and was bred in Victoria by Mr. J. C. Pigdon. Following are the details:—

HURDLE RACE; a handicap sweepstakes of 1 sov each, with 200 sovs added; second horse 25 sovs; and third horse 10 sovs from the prize. About 2m.

Mr. T. Donohue's br g Jacoleen, aged, by Jacobite—Leenos, 10st 2lb (C. Flanagan) 1

Mr. V. G. Benyon's b g Demand, aged, by Favour (imp.)—Manabrook, 11st 4lb (N. Stuart) 2

Mr. W. Ryan's br g Merrimax, 6yrs, by Merriwee—Maxima, 11st 5lb (S. Howie) 3

Other starters: Bibbenluke, 11st 10lb (J. Clifton); Woolerina, 9st 12lb (E. Purcell); King David, 9st (H. Hickton), Rentile, 9st (J. Collitt).

Betting: 5 to 2 v Bibbenluke, 3 to 1 v Merrimax, 5 to 1 each v Demand and Jacoleen, 10 to 1 v Rentile, 14 to 1 v King David, 20 to 1 v Woolerina.

Rentile was first to move, and led over the first obstacle, which was fatal to Bibbenluke. Rentile was first into the straight from Jacoleen, but passing the stand Jacoleen, Merrimax, and Woolerina were together just in advance of Rentile, Demand being 10 lengths further back, with King David last. A little further on Jacoleen took charge, and passed the nine furlong post four lengths in advance of Rentile and Merrimax, with Demand and Woolerina eight lengths further back, and three in advance of King David. At the mile post there was little alteration, except that Merrimax had run into second place, while Demand had improved his position. Jacoleen was only a length in advance of Merrimax at the seven furlongs, Rentile and Demand being next 12 lengths away. This order was maintained for the next couple of furlongs, but at the half-mile Jacoleen was a length in advance of Merrimax, Demand being next six lengths away, and 12 in front of Rentile. Demand joined Jacoleen at the bend, and turned into the straight clear of Jacoleen and Merrimax. Demand and Jacoleen were together coming down the straight, and jumped the last hurdle together, but in the run home Jacoleen got the verdict by a length, Merrimax being 10 lengths away third. Rentile was 15 lengths away fourth, and 12 in advance of King David, Woolerina being last. Time, 4m 1s.

FLYING HANDICAP.—A handicap sweepstakes of 6 sovs each, with 300 sovs added; second horse 50 sovs, and third horse 25 sovs from the prize. 6f.

Lady Denman was first to show out, but at the end of a furlong Lady Denman and Sweet Malt were together half a length in advance of Bellara. Bellara ran to the front at the half-mile from Sweet Malt, who was a length in advance of Ruinall, Herringbone, and Lady Denman. Sweet Malt and Bellara were together at the bend, just in advance of Herringbone, and so they turned into the straight. At the distance Herringbone was just in advance of Ninfa, and an exciting race to the post resulted in a win for Herringbone by half a head, with Bob Bunsow eight lengths away third. Ruinall, Nuwara Eliya, and Bellara were a head away fourth, followed by Sweet Malt and Barley Water in line, with Arlanza last. Time, 1m 15½s.

When they were fairly going Maltasia and Lady Skopos had charge, and they led past the seven furlong post clear of Utum and Metallicus, Fortune Hunter, and Algous being close up next. At the five furlongs Maltasia was half a length in advance of Lady Skopos, Vif being next, two lengths away, and two in advance of Metallicus and Tarpaulin. There was little alteration at the half mile, and at the bend Maltasia still had charge from Lady Skopos; Vif, Tarpaulin, Quarale, and Metallicus being close up. Maltasia turned into the straight clear of Vif and Lady Skopos. At the distance Vif was just in advance of Maltasia, while The Fortune Hunter was coming past on the outside. Vif and Maltasia fought out a gruelling finish, Vif getting the verdict by a neck; while The Fortune Hunter was three-quarters of a length away third, and Algous was ten lengths away fourth, with Lady Skopos and Quarale next, followed by a big gap; while Bright Sun was at the head of the others, and Lord Clarit last. Time, 1m 43½s.

Chantry was first to move, and at the five-furlongs he was two lengths in advance of Galen, Rouen, and Sir John Barleycorn. A little further on Galen took charge, and passed the half-mile just in advance of Chantry, with Rouen and Sir John Barleycorn next, just in advance of First Lesson. Galen still had charge at the bend, and turned into the straight well clear of Chantry, who was followed by Rouen, Sir John Barleycorn, and Karanaud King. Galen had charge at the distance from Rouen, Sir John Barleycorn, and Karanaud King, and, never being troubled, beat Karanaud King by a length, with Rouen half a length away third. First Lesson was four lengths away, fourth, followed by Prince Manlin, M.E.W., and Beanbri in line, with Chain Mail and Sealed Orders last. Time, 1m 17½s.

Silver Grain and Sir Vive were first to move, but Silver Grain led out of the straight clear of Firm, Sir Vive, Matouree, Charleville, and Necktie, with Tartanus and Simon Frisco last. At the mile-post Silver Grain and Firm were together a length from Sir Vive, Matouree, and Charleville. There was little alteration at the seven-furlong post, but at the six-furlongs, Firm had full charge from Silver Grain, with Matouree and Sir Vive next, just in advance of Charleville, who was followed by Necktie, with Simon Frisco still last. Firm had increased his lead to four lengths from Silver Grain and Sir Vive at the half-mile, and turned into the straight well clear of Sir Vive, Silver Grain, and Matouree. At the distance Firm was well clear of Charleville, Sir Vive, and Tartanus. Charleville and Tartanus, however, challenged Firm at the half-distance, and the race to the post resulted in a win for Charleville by a head from Firm, with Tartanus a similar distance away, third. Sir Vive was a length away fourth, and half a length in front of Necktie, Matouree and Silver Grain being two lengths away next, and twenty lengths in advance of Simon Frisco. Time, 2m 26s.

INTERCLUB COMPETITIONS.

Wet courts necessitated the postponement of many matches on Saturday, including the semi-finals of A grade. The uncertainty that existed as to whether play would take place led to some of the clubs having incomplete teams. The semi-finals of B II. are to be played next Saturday, and possibly those of B I. will also take place. The results were:—

FOOTBALL.

RUGBY UNION.

In lieu of the usual club matches, the Rugby Union footballers attended a parade at the Government House grounds. However, one or two matches were played, the following being the results:—

MANLY v WAROO, AT MANLY.

On the Manly Oval on Saturday afternoon Manly beat Waroo by 10 points to 7. Campbell and Ross scored tries for Manly, and Ross converted two tries; and for the losers Corney notched a penalty goal, and Futter dropped a fixed goal.

SECOND GRADE.

MANLY v Y.M.C.A.

The Manly second grade team easily defeated Y.M.C.A. by 34 points to nil. Creighton scored two tries, Roberts two, and Jackson, Morgan, and Bunting one each. Baker converted five tries, and also kicked a penalty goal.

RUGBY LEAGUE.

COMPETITION BEGUN.

PREMIERS DEFEATED.

Splendid weather conditions and large crowds marked the opening of the New South Wales Rugby League's competition on Saturday. Thirteen thousand people at the Sydney Cricket Ground saw last year's premiers—South Sydney—easily defeated by Glebe. Balmain and Newtown attracted eight thousand spectators to Wentworth Park, and provided a determined struggle, which ended with honours easy. The feature of the match was the excellent goal-kicking by Russell for Newtown and Cummins for Balmain.

From the outset of the Eastern Suburbs-Annandale encounter, at the Agricultural Ground, there was every indication that the City Cup holders would pile up a big score, and it was no surprise to the two thousand spectators present to see the Easterners finish easy victors by 25 points to 3. The visit of North Sydney to St. Luke's Park, Concord, was productive of a hard-won game, wherein they gained a victory by the narrow margin of three points. Although the Northerners shortly after the interval established a lead of eight points, they never looked really safe, owing to the persistent efforts of Western Suburbs, who rallied grandly towards the close and reduced their deficit to the value of a single try.

SOUTH SYDNEY v GLEBE.

Played at the Sydney Cricket Ground, and won by Glebe by 17 points to 7. Referee, Mr. T. M'Mahon.

A dazzling burst along touch by Horder was followed by strenuous forward play. South Sydney backs then attacked, but the defence was solid, Doerner's tackling of Horder being a very fine effort. The crowd enjoyed South Sydney's onslaughts, but Glebe answered every call. Next the Glebe backs began to prance about, and, in turn, South Sydney had to defend strenuously. Glebe were the first to score, Bolewski kicking a penalty goal. South Sydney retaliated. H. Horder made a serpentine-like run right to the line, and then passed to Ray Norman, who scored. H. Horder converted. Bolewski kicked another penalty goal for Glebe, and the score was 5 to 4 in favour of South Sydney at half-time.

The forwards had a great tussle at the beginning of the second half, with dashes by the backs of each team relieving the monotony. Glebe then began an attack, which became so persistent that the Southern defence crumbled. Pert scored a try, after Gray had made the opening along touch. Gray immediately put Glebe again within striking distance, but the Norman brothers and A. Butler repulsed the attack. Play quietened, then Hallett kicked an easy goal from a penalty, and the scores were level—7 all. Glebe now took charge of the game, and a series of attacks resulted in Bolewski (goaled by A. B. Burge) and Doerner (goaled by Burge) scoring tries, and the whistle sounded with Glebe winners by 17 points to 7. H. Thompson retired injured just before full-time. Earlier in the spell an indiscriminate kick by a Glebe forward knocked Hallett out. The victors received an ovation as they filed off the ground into the Sheridan stand, the trustees of the Sydney Cricket Ground having refused the application of the Rugby League to use the dressing rooms attached to the members' pavilion.

BALMAIN v NEWTOWN.

Played at Wentworth Park before 8000 spectators, the game being drawn 11 points each. Referee, Mr. J. T. Black.

Balmain were the first to advance, and a mark by Kelly was goaled by Cummins. Balmain continued the attack, but Newtown cleared danger, Collins intercepting. Russell goaled from a penalty, and the scores were level. The forwards made play fast, and then clever passing by Halloway and Johnson put Balmain on the attack, and Cummins kicked another goal. Attacks by both sides were followed by a most brilliant passing rush by Balmain to Newtown's 25. Each side held the advantage alternately till Russell kicked a penalty goal, and the scores were level, only to be altered in favour of Balmain by Cummins kicking his third goal. There were no further scores during this half and all 10 points were scored by goals—Cummins 3 and Russell 2.

Newtown showed improved form in the second spell. However, Kelly nearly scored for Balmain, dropping the ball at the psychological moment. Newtown were the first to cross the line, a forward rush ending in a blocked kick, and Regan scoring. Russell converted. Russell added to Newtown's advantage by kicking a goal, making the tally 11 to 6 in their favour. Balmain tried hard to break through, but bad handling and forward passing pulled them up repeatedly. However, after Fraser had lost possession near the line, he cross-kicked to Craig, who sent Schultz over with a try. Fraser converted. 11 points all. The remainder of the play was of an exciting character, but no further scoring took place. Each side scored a try, and Cummins and Russell each kicked four goals.

NORTH SYDNEY v WESTERN SUBURBS.

Played at St. Luke's Park, Concord, and won by North Sydney by 10 points to 7. Referee, Mr. A. Farrow.

Although North Sydney began with a brilliant passing rush, Western Suburbs were the first to score, C. W. Prentice goaling from a mark. After this, the forwards made play, with the Shoremen combining cleverly, but their opponents tackled like grizzly bears for some time. Ultimately Blinkhorn broke through and scored in the corner. Stewart failed at goal. Just before the interval Mitchell retired hurt, and F. Connelly took his place. The score was now 3 to 2 in favour of North Sydney.

North Sydney kept the Westerners busy defending early in the second half, McFarlane and Taplin shining out. However, the positions were reversed occasionally, although North Sydney were the first to score—Stewart. This was followed by a smartly-got try by Blinkhorn after Stewart had run him into position. Stewart converted. Western Suburbs died hard, and before "time" arrived A. Prentice kicked a penalty goal, and Simpson scored a try, which was unconverted. The final scores were North Sydney, 10 points; Western Suburbs, 7.

EASTERN SUBURBS v ANNANDALE.

Played at the Agricultural Ground, before an attendance of 2000 people, and won by Eastern Suburbs by 25 points to 3. Referee, Mr. C. Hedley.

Eastern Suburbs had no difficulty in conquering Annandale, although in doing so they did not display any attractive football. During the first half the game was vigorous and keenly waged, but far from being high-class. Annandale fought pluckily, and several times pressed the Easterners closely, but only for a time, as the Easterners would swing into line and carry the invasion into Annandale territory. Dufty opened Eastern Suburbs' scoring account a few minutes from the kick off. Messenger was the next scorer, as a result of goaling from two penalties successfully. At this stage, Annandale secured their only score, Brownlee crossing over from scrambling play near the corner. John Pye now retired, and was replaced by Munee. Frawley gained the Tricolours' second try, and Messenger added the extra points. At half-time Eastern Suburbs were leading by 12 to 3.

The Easterners were complete masters of the game in the second half, and increased their score to 25 points, tries being scored by Dalton, Cubitt, and Watkins, two of which Messenger converted.

BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

NEW SOUTH WALES FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION.

PYRMONT JUSTIFIES PROMOTION.

Another round of competition fixtures was concluded last Saturday, the feature of which was Pyrmont's win at Annandale's expense. Results:—

FIRST LEAGUE.

ANNANDALE v PYRMONT.

Played at University Oval, and won by Pyrmont 2 to 1. Pyrmont were aggressive from the start, but Balmain made matters even for some time. Carroll and Towle attacked solidly, but ineffectively, and later Christian goaled for Pyrmont—the result of a nice cross by Kelso. Mirtus, Newson, and Parke kept the impetuous leaders at bay in the opening stages of the concluding half, though they may have augmented their advantage but for poor shooting. Consistent pressure resulted in Moore adding another goal, and, although Carroll eventually opened for Annandale despite sterling efforts by Parris, Chalmers, Nash, and Towle, Pyrmont were returned winners 2 to 1.

BALMAIN v DRUMMOYNE.

Played at University Oval, and won by Balmain 4 to 0. Balmain were early in attack, but Sail and Cooper saved well. Cain transferred play to find Law and Honeybrook alert, and Balmain again attacked, securing a fine goal per Charlton. The remainder of the first half was in the leaders' favour. Early in the second half Buttel netted for Balmain, and, after Charlton had struck the cross-bar with a sterling shot, he secured on the rebound and netted his second goal. Drummoyne strove hard, but rare combination was worked up by the leaders' vanguard, Buttel being prominent, but, when attacked, he passed to Charlton, who registered Balmain's fourth goal.

GRANVILLE v SYDNEY.

Played at Clyde, and won by Granville 7 to 0. The playing area was very heavy through the recent rainy weather, and the champions, being favoured by the prevailing conditions, became masters of the situation, winning as above stated. Masters was in rare form, scoring four goals, Hoffmann, Cottam, and South securing the remainder.

GLEBE v NORTHERN SUBURBS.

Played at Drummoyne Oval, and won by Glebe 4 to 2. The Glebe left wing was much in evidence at the start, but their opponents returned the compliment. Glebe then attacked, and Bennett opened the score for them, and he added another before the interval arrived. Glebe were in scoring mood after the interval, and Hynd added their third goal. Northern retaliated splendidly, and Ray, intercepting from Edgeley, opened the score for them. Then M'Gowan found the net, after which strenuous effort was made to equalise matters. Glebe were not to be denied, and some neat work by Swift and Cosgriff ended in Bennett making the scores 4 to 2 in their favour.

RESERVE LEAGUE.

Granville, for whom Winters scored, beat Annandale, at Clyde, 1 to 0.

Balmain beat Drummoyne by 2 to 1. Macfarlane and Ellis scored for the victors, and Coombes for the losers.

Glebe forfeited to Pyrmont.

THE CLUB LEAGUE.

First Division.

At Moore Park, Rozelle beat Pyrmont Church, 3 to 0, Witheriff, McInnes, and Almond scoring. Y.M.C.A. beat Callan Park, 5 to 0, at Callan Park; and Botlicht, who played short-handed, were defeated by Gladesville Hospital, at Gladesville, 5 to 0, Anderson, Christie, Day, Jennings, and Jenson scoring.

Second Division.

Pyrmont Swimmers, 2 (Gullickford and Collins), beat Y.M.C.A., 1, at Moore Park.

N.S.W. JUNIOR ASSOCIATION.

In the all-age competition, Pyrmont District beat Dulwich Hill Baptist, 3 to 1; Balmain Wentworth beat St. George Rovers, 6 to 1; Pyrmont District, B, beat Kogarah District, 4 to 0; and Rozelle Ysopi beat Balmain Rechabites, 2 to 0. The junior competition games recorded a win for Balmain Gladstone (18 to 0), and a 3 all draw between Orange Grove and Pyrmont District, Bishop scoring all three for Orange Grove. Amongst the juveniles Kogarah District and Easton Parks secured wins.

METROPOLITAN ASSOCIATION.

COMPETITION MATCHES.

The second round of the Metropolitan Association competition matches was played on Saturday.

NEWTOWN v CANTERBURY.

Played at Epping Racecourse and won by Newtown by 4 goals to 1. Newtown had much the better of the first half of the game. Mann was always alert, and showed some exceedingly smart work. Canterbury tried hard to improve the situation, but could only score once—just on time. Mann and McAnish were the most prominent of the winning side, and Moss and Lane for Canterbury.

BURNS ANNIVERSARY v SYDNEY.

Played at Sydney Sports Ground and won by Sydney by 3 goals to 1. Sydney lost no time in making a strong forward movement, and their opponents were defending for the greater part of the first half. Play was very bright and exciting, and the scores were made equal before the spell. Burns Anniversary, although failing to add to their score, played a very fine game; the most prominent of the side being Aitken, Anthony, Hunter, and Bailey. Sydney benefited from a penalty kick, but, on the day, they were the better side.

BALMAIN v SYDNEY CALEDONIANS.

Played at the Sydney Grammar School ground and resulted in a draw, 3 goals all. The game throughout was very even, and the scores give a good indication of the play. Simpson (2) and Shaw scored for the Caledonians, and Lawrence (2) and Lazenby 1 for Balmain.

LANCASHIRE SOCIETY v BALMAIN CALEDONIANS.

Played at Arncliffe Oval, and won by Balmain Caledonians by 5 goals to 2. The first half of the game was rather one-sided, and Balmain Caledonians had scored 2 goals to nil when the spell was taken. Lancashire Society brightened up somewhat in the second period, but their opponents' defence was too good. Lancashire's first score came from a penalty kick, but the Balmain men then took charge of the game. Oliphant was in fine form, and kicked four goals. For the losing side, Holt and [illegible] each scored goals.

VICTORIA PARK v UNITED SLATERS.

Played at Primrose Park, and won by Victoria Park by 5 goals to 2. Play was very even for the greater portion of the game. Mears did all the scoring for Victoria Park, and Dykes and Martin each scored for the losing team.

FIRST RESERVE LEAGUE.

Balmain easily beat Burns Anniversary at the Sydney Grammar School ground, the scores being 10 goals to 2. Johnson 4 goals, Evans 3, Hillman 2, and Cox 1 scored for Balmain; and Angus and Forbes for the losing side.

Sydney beat S.S. Medic, at the Sydney Sports Ground, by 4 goals to nil. There was no score in the first half. Campbell (2), Green, and Winchester were the goal-kickers.

Balmain Caledonians beat Sydney Caledonians, at Easton Park, by 9 goals to nil. For the winners, Robinson (4), Shaw (2), Norman, Macleay, and Freckleton scored.

St. Paul's beat Lancashire Society, at Primrose Park, by 6 goals to nil.

JUNIOR LEAGUE.

Ultimo Kia-ora beat Petersham Royal, at Epping Racecourse, by 5 goals to 1. St. Paul's beat Golden Grove by 5 goals to 1.

AUSTRALIAN.

SATURDAY'S PRACTICE GAMES.

Ideal weather conditions prevailed on Saturday, when the final practice games of the League clubs were played. The form shown was excellent, and the coming season, which will open on Saturday next, promises well from a playing view-point.

SYDNEY v NEWTOWN.

These teams met at Moore Park in the presence of a moderate attendance. The game was well contested, Sydney winning by 6 goals 5 behinds (41 points) to 2 goals 7 behinds (19 points). For the winners, excellent form was shown by Griggs (late of North Adelaide), Harris, Tyson, O'Grady, and Coen; while Campbell, Henderson, Henry, Purcell, and Furlong were conspicuous for Newtown.

PADDINGTON v SOUTH SYDNEY.

Played at the Australian Football Ground, and after an even and interesting game Paddington won.

East Sydney and H.M.A.S. Tingira played a practice game at Lyne Park.

FIRES.

ALBURY, Sunday.

A double-fronted new general store, with contents, the property of L. A. Newman, tailor, has been destroyed by fire.

ALBURY, Sunday.

Albury Municipal Appeal Court last week dealt with a case of interest to local governing bodies. Among the properties assessed for rates was a block of three acres adjoining the gaol, and laid out as a garden. It had been valued by the council's valuer at £1000, and rated accordingly. The State Treasurer appealed against the rating of the property on the ground that the area was unoccupied Crown land, and therefore exempt. The police magistrate held that the gaol authorities appeared to be in occupation of the land, and until they did something to divest themselves of it they remained in possession. The assessment was accordingly confirmed.

CAMPBELLTOWN, Sunday.

The death has occurred of Mr. Michael Donohoe, of Broughton-street, Campbelltown, after a lengthy illness. Deceased was an old railway man, and had a very long period of service to his credit when he was compelled through ill-health to resign a few years ago.

Another respected resident of the district also passed away on Wednesday evening in the person of Mrs. Adele Morgan, wife of Mr. J. Morgan, of Dorchester, Campbelltown.

GOSFORD, Sunday.

Pioneers' Day, celebrated at Wyong, was most successful. Over 50 of the oldest residents of Brisbane Water attended the dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Millward, of Mangrove Creek Public School, were, prior to their departure from the district, entertained by the residents and scholars, and presented with a shaving outfit and dinner service respectively.

JUNEE, Sunday.

Mr. Reuben Price Taylor, who had been in business for the past 22 years, has died suddenly. Deceased was secretary of the Masonic Lodge at Alexandria, and was for many years secretary of the Independent Order of Oddfellows. He was admitted as a barrister at Birmingham, England.

LITHGOW, Sunday.

It is understood that all departments of the ironworks put in full shifts during last week.

The local coal trade shows further signs of improvement.

ALLEGED DISLOYALTY.

LABOUR COUNCIL TAKES ACTION.

PERTH, Sunday.

The Labour Federation Council last night considered the charge of disloyalty made against the delegate J. Swebleses, whose public utterances had, according to some delegates, brought the trades union movement into discredit.

In reply to the specific charge of making a remark calculated to bring the British flag into contempt, Mr. Swebleses said he had no recollection of having done such a thing.

He had never traduced the British Army or the Empire; he had tried to point out that atrocities could be proved not only in the case of the German army, but in the case of every other army. His attitude was that it was necessary for them to be more careful of their own backyard than the backyard of their neighbours. It was because he could see no good in the war that he had tried to show that all nations—British, German, and Russian—were just as bad and just as good as one another. He was a cosmopolitan, and proud to be so, and he did not believe in any country.

The resolution, which described Swebleses as being unfit to sit on the executive of the council, and which declared vacant his position as trustee, was agreed to by 31 to 28.

CORRIMAL STOPPAGE.

WOLLONGONG, Sunday.

After nine weeks' idleness at Corrimal mine, work will be resumed on Monday. The cavil was drawn on Friday.

WAR GOING SURELY.

FRENCH CONSUL-GENERAL'S STATEMENT.

JAPAN READY TO DO WHAT SHE IS ASKED.

The sixth annual dinner of the Granville Brotherhood, which was held in the Town Hall, Granville, on Saturday night, and attended by over 300 men, was made memorable by displays of intense feelings of loyalty and patriotic fervour.

In responding to the toast of "Parliament" Mr. Joseph Cook said Australian politics to-day were absolutely clean and aboveboard. The whole Parliament was devoting its best energies towards the making of a war machine, and party feeling, by one common consent, had been set aside. (Hear, hear.) The fight they were concerned in was one for self-government. They wanted to be let alone. Nations had ideals and souls, and all they asked was to pursue their own destiny, leaving others to pursue theirs without interference. They must one and all do their part, and not cease until the war was brought to a successful conclusion, and they made a repetition of it impossible. (Applause.) Referring to the grand achievements of the Australasian troops at the Dardanelles, he said, "Thank God they rang true." (Loud cheering.) "We knew they would do." (Renewed cheering.) He ventured to say that they had done all that was expected of them, and no fresh troops could have surpassed their achievements.

Professor David, in an eloquent address, proposed the toast of "Our Allies." He said that Australia should send a quarter of a million men to join the colours and follow the flag.

M. Alex. Chayet, Consul-General for France, in the course of his response, said from information received by means of private correspondence from the seat of war he could assure his hearers that if the war was going along slowly it was going surely. (Loud applause.) The spirit of the people everywhere in France was excellent, and had never been so good as at the present time. This had been confirmed by a wounded Frenchman now in Sydney, who said there was no doubt the Allies would be victorious, and would get rid of the German menace for ever. The Consul regretted that Australia had lost so many of her children, but at the same time he congratulated Australia on having taken such a prominent place amongst the Allies, and on having attacked the Turks with such courage. (Applause.)

Mr. S. Shimizu, the Japanese Consul, said that Japan was exceedingly proud to participate in the titanic struggle. She had been able to do little in comparison with what was going on in Europe, but hoped to do a little more. She was ready to do whatever might be asked of her. (Loud cheering.) The task that had been set the Allies was a tremendous one, but it must be accomplished. (More cheering.) The Australians were to be congratulated on their magnificent achievement. They had won his extreme admiration. His heartfelt sympathy and best wishes for success were with those brave men fighting in the front against an enemy whose brutal warfare had shocked humanity and cast a stain of shame upon them which would take centuries to wipe out. (Loud applause.)

Mr. T. A. Welch, the Russian Consul, also responded.

DELAYED NEWS.

APPEAL FOR ACCELERATED SERVICE.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

In the House of Representatives last week Mr. Cook (N.S.W.) asked Mr. Hughes, as Acting Prime Minister, if it would be possible for him to get information similar to that made public in the House of Commons, and make it available to members a little earlier than they were now getting it through the press. It was now 12 days since the incident occurred, and they had to wait and learn details from the Prime Minister in the House of Commons.

Mr. Hughes said that on Thursday he had despatched a cablegram to the Imperial authorities, pointing out how very interested the Australian public were in the operations at the front, especially those in which the Australians were engaged. He had urged that efforts should be made to allow this news to come to Australia at the earliest possible moment. "I pressed the matter strongly," said Mr. Hughes in conclusion, "and no doubt the Imperial Government will let the news come through promptly."

A HOLY WAR.

CLERGYMAN'S VIEWS.

The Rev. James Wilson, who has recently returned from the battlefields in Belgium, yesterday referred to the present state of the war. He said Turkey for centuries had kept one of the most favoured positions in Europe, not by her own strength, but because of the balancing of the great Powers of Europe against each other. Now this equipoise has been destroyed, and we are likely to see very soon the brutal and infamous Turk thrust out of his position in Europe.

There is a greatness of brute force and raw might—the prevailing type of thing—of which, at present, Germany is the greatest illustration. This so-called cultured nation with a "blood and iron policy" is worse than tenth century feudalism, thrusting its ugly features into the glorious dawn of the twentieth century. In her mad passion for conquest she has taken a little nation by the throat and torn it into bleeding fragments, and turned a fair land into a shambles.

The present war was a holy war, so far as the Allies were concerned. A Christianity that would fail to draw its sword in defence of the weak, and that would stand by and allow the womanhood of any nation to be outraged by the brute soldiery of Prussia, would be unworthy of respect. Christ and His people are at war with these hounds of hell.

The Lusitania horror added to the foul atrocities for which Germany would have to account. They were standing in a world's crisis, in which every fighting man told, and yet, added Mr. Wilson, "I recently heard a preacher thank God that none of his sons had joined the expeditionary force. Of such Christianity I am ashamed."

"FOLLOW THE KING."

At the meeting of the National Council of Women, held at Government House last week, Lady Edeline Strickland presiding, the following resolution, proposed by Miss E. [illegible], and seconded by Mrs. Waugh, was unanimously carried:—

"The National Council of Women, voicing an exceedingly large section of the New South Wales women, trusts that on Belgian Day, when the King's health is drunk, it may be in 'Follow the King' method, and be drunk in non-alcoholic liquor, and further suggests that the Mayors and civic authorities generally be asked to promote this suggestion."

TUG IN DISTRESS.

NEWCASTLE, Sunday.

Distress signals were observed from Signal Hill last night, rockets being fired a long distance to seaward. In response to the signals the pilot steamer Ajax left port last night, and spoke the tug Irresistible, one of Messrs. J. and A. Brown's fleet. It was found that the tug, which had towed the ship Admiral Cecile, bound for the West Coast of South America, with a cargo of coal, had broken down, and was unable to return to port. The Irresistible was in no danger, and the Ajax returned to port.

The Gamecock, another of Messrs. Brown's tugs, went out this morning to bring the Irresistible back to port.

The Union Steamship Company's steamer [illegible], which arrived here to-night from Wellington, reported having spoken the Irresistible about 20 miles east of Newcastle.

CONSOLATION BADGES.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The Minister for Defence, Senator Pearce, stated to-day that the department had decided to take no action to provide badges for rejected volunteers.

He did not think the department would be justified in going to the expense involved, and, secondly, a large number of men might not wish to wear the badges, thinking that they would brand themselves as medically unfit.

The Young People's Temperance League is preparing for Empire Sunday (May 23) a special temperance [illegible] for the use of Sunday schools. For Empire itself a pledge-signing crusade is being arranged.

JOHN MURRAY.

ALLEGED FALSE ENTRIES.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

Further evidence was heard on Friday before Mr. G. C. Morrison, Public Service Commissioner, sitting as a Royal Commission to inquire into the management of the training ship John Murray.

John Hill Sampson, recalled, said that he sometimes entered in the stores issued book the amounts shown on the delivery note, even though he knew they were not always correct. He had told Captain Williams that the entries were not correct, and the latter had replied, "I will see the contractor about it."

Mr. Morrison: Do you mean to say that you deliberately made false entries day by day in the stores issued book?

Witness: Yes; under pressure.

The commission adjourned until Wednesday.

THE QUESTION OF THE DAY.

The question of to-day, of to-morrow, and of every succeeding day, is

HAVE YOU USED PEARS' SOAP. If you have not, you have not done your duty by your skin and complexion. If, on the other hand—that is, on both hands, and on the face, and on the skin generally—you HAVE used PEARS', you can feel happy, for you will have done the best that possibly can be done for the skin's health and beauty. There can be no question about that.

PEARS' has been making beautiful complexions for nearly 120 years.

PEARS.

MATCHLESS FOR THE COMPLEXION.

IT IS REALLY NECESSARY

for everybody to undergo a periodical cleansing of the bodily system in order that all impurities may be eliminated, and sluggish organs assisted to perform their work in a satisfactory manner. As a remedy with gently aperient and tonic properties, Beecham's Pills are unequalled for this purpose. There is no remedy "just as good," and certainly nothing better than this old and well-tried medicine, which is wholly free from any harmful drug, and prepared from the purest vegetable ingredients of great curative value, as it exerts a most beneficial influence upon the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels. Most of the disorders due to derangement of the digestive system speedily disappear after a course of HEAN'S ESSENCE.

TO TAKE

REPLIES TO INQUIRIES

A further lot of replies regarding Hean's Essence are here given. Those who are not yet practising economy in the matter of cough mixture would do well to try Hean's Essence. The mixture is so good, and the money-saving so tremendous, that Hean's Essence is a favourite in many thousands of homes.

Mr. R. M. L.—"No. Hean's Essence is not constipating, and it does not nauseate or upset the stomach. Don't be afraid to take your doses freely, but always take slowly. The result is much better."

Mrs. O. R. N.—"Several mothers have told me they make toffee for their children in which they put a teaspoonful or more of the full strength Hean's Essence. A few pieces of this toffee are given to the children to take to school, and so they get their doses regularly."

Mrs. N. B. L.—"Either sugar or honey may be used. Many people prefer honey, because it makes the cough mixture sharper for the throat. Am glad you realise my name is spelt H.E.A.N."

Mrs. F. J. D.—"Make up a big bottle of cough mixture from Hean's Essence, and keep some by your bedside. For the night cough just gargle your throat freely when you wake, and you will get immediate comfort and relief. It promptly relieves tickling throats."

Mrs. S. W.—"Hean's Essence is an original idea. I worked out an entirely new formula, omitting all form of poisons, and the many hundreds of testimonials I have received quite prove its goodness. When you are offered an imitation or substitute, just remember that H.E.A.N.'S is the original and genuine."

Mrs. M. P.—"Thank you very much. The money-saving by making cough mixture at home from Hean's Essence is a very real saving—10/ on a pint. I am glad to hear your bronchial asthma is so much better by using it."

If readers are not yet able to obtain Hean's Essence locally it may be obtained by sending 2/ to G. W. HEAN, Chemist, 178 Castlereagh-street, Sydney. All mail orders are promptly attended to. Notice how my name is spelt—H.E.A.N.

PAINLESS!

The treatment of Teeth is something which cannot be put off. It is something which becomes more extensive and expensive each day it is postponed. Most people put it off because they fear pain. If you are one of these, note carefully:—

I FILL TEETH PAINLESSLY.

The most sensitive and tender tooth can be drilled and filled by my special method quite painlessly. I have an apparatus—the only one in Sydney—which enables me to do this work. I guarantee in writing all Fillings and Plate Work against fair wear and tear for 5 years.

MY SPECIAL METHOD OF EXTRACTION means immunity from pain. I extract the most difficult tooth—even if abscessed—without causing the least pain. I am prepared to forfeit £5 to you should you experience the least hurt. If you have a weak heart you will suffer no inconvenience from my method. I have extracted all the teeth for one old lady over 80, and she suffered neither pain nor ill-effects. I often have patients of 3 years of age.

Let me examine your Teeth and give you an estimate of cost FREE OF CHARGE.

OPEN TILL 6 P.M. DAILY (Saturdays included), UNTIL 9 P.M. FRIDAYS.

SPECIAL JOB PURCHASE OF CONEY SEAL COATS.

Very special facilities are offered smart women for acquiring handsome and fashionable fur garments at prices which are in accord with the times. Prominent, are a limited number of beautiful CONEY SEAL COATS and NATURAL MUSQUASH COATS. The skins used are superfine, the fashioning in accordance with the mode of the moment, and with the fullest confidence we recommend these luxurious garments to those who are contemplating the purchase of a Fur Coat for the winter.

VALUES IN CONEY SEAL COATS.

FOR WALKING OR CAR USE.

PRICE £6/17/6.—A SMART MODIFIED PEG-TOP COAT, in Coney Seal, fashioned in Magyar style, ¾ length, sailor collar, with roll in front, and lined throughout with Pale Grey Charmeuse. Fastens with one large button.

PRICE 8 GUINEAS.—A ROOMY BUT SMART CONEY SEAL COAT, the peltry, of fine lustre, is a ¾ length, the collar turned down, and cut with the envelope front. Full lining of old gold charmeuse.

PRICE 10 GUINEAS.—A HANDSOME CONEY SEAL STYLE, in ¾ length, beautifully cut with perfect Magyar shoulder, the fronts slightly rounded, and fastening with a huge art button. The collar is of the deep roll variety, and the garment, which is lined with grey silk paillette, may be worn closed to the throat.

PRICE 11 GUINEAS.—AN ELEGANT CONEY SEAL COAT WRAP, with envelope front, the Magyar being gathered into a deep band at foot. It is a full ¾ length, and has a flat turn-down collar, and fastens with a smart black pearl button. Lined with a lovely soft grey charmeuse.

PRICE 13 GUINEAS.—A SEMI-SAC MAGYAR OF CONEY SEAL in picked skins. The style is ¾ length, and fastens to neck under a flat and skilfully-cut square collar. The lining is of pale amethyst satin charmeuse.

PRICE 15 GUINEAS.—A CONEY SEAL ¾ COAT, cut to simulate a draped effect. It laps in envelope style and has a smart deep roll collar, which permits of the garment being worn closed to the neck with a small V. Two big fancy pearl buttons furnish the fastening, and the lining is of French grey satin charmeuse.

PRICE 19 GUINEAS.—A LUXURIOUS MAGYAR COAT of Coney Seal, cut in semi-sac fashion, and full ¾ length. Special smart touches are afforded by the use of skunk opossum for the long roll collar and deep cuffs. This is a really wonderful value, and the garment a delightful wrap, which is being offered at a very special price.

NATURAL MUSQUASH COATS.

This is a most popular Fur, and there is hardly a lover of good peltry who will not appreciate two very special examples which we are including in the FUR VALUES under notice. There are Musquash Coats and Musquash Coats, but that is a matter for those who are not aiming to secure exclusive style allied with moderate price. Our Coats are rare values indeed, and we specially invite the early inspection of the models we are submitting.

PRICE 15 GUINEAS.—A LOVELY COAT OF WELL-CHOSEN SKINS, beautifully matched, the style trending to a Magyar with a deep, roomy armhole, making it a specially useful and becoming wrap for evening wear. The collar is deep, and is revered, and it can be worn closed to the neck. Lined throughout with a delightful shade of gold charmeuse satin, and fastened with a large tortoiseshell button.

PRICE 26 GUINEAS.—A PEG-TOP MUSQUASH COAT, of extra fine skins, the style fashioned after a Magyar with deep armhole. The deep revers on the collar can be worn lapped so as to afford special protection, whilst adding a smart touch to what is really a regal and quite good-looking garment.

SPECIAL VALUES TO BE SECURED JUST NOW IN

PONY SKIN COATS.

Of this season's peltry notions, and especially where Coats are under consideration, there is perhaps none which is so really useful as the Pony Skin example. Comparatively speaking, it is inexpensive, as it gives wonderful wear, and it is one of the most sought-after of its class where the wearer expects extra smart appearance without having to pay too dearly for the same. We want all keen shoppers to see not only the special coats which we are now specifying, but also many other styles and extraordinary values which lack of space does not permit of mention.

PONY SKIN COATS, in Sac and Semi-sac Styles, with deep roll collars, also the new flat collar, fashioned in the newest lines ruling for FUR GARMENTS, in ¾ and ⅞ lengths, and lined with either soft satin charmeuse or satin brocade.

SPECIAL PRICES, 7½, 13, and 17 GUINEAS.

SPECIAL FUR DISPLAY TO-DAY, SECOND FLOOR SHOWROOM.

OUR FUR WINDOW will be of interest also. Make a special point of seeing both.

We pay carriage on all Drapery within the Commonwealth, but not on Carpets, Linos, or Toys.
